Appended quotations are based almost wholly upon prices obtained for goods from first hands. Yard rates necessarily range much higher owing to the expenses attending sorting out and grading cargo and even car lots, besides which must be added the cost of handling and carrying until consumers are ready to invest. Terms of sale also prove important factors and, altogether, it is impossible to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable in character.

VOL. LII. JULY 29, 1893. No. 1,524

Everybody interested in architecture and in building should read the Architectural Record. 25 cents a copy. Record and Guide office, Nos. 14-16 Vesey street.

IT can hardly yet be stated of the stock market that it has gotten to a point where one can be sure that the bottom has been reached, but one thing is sure, stocks judged by all past records are cheap, but like the trotters the record is always liable to be broken, It is many years since the market has had such a good round of advertising, and not since 1880 has it had such a general support from small investors. This must and will tell, but to turn a market from a falling one to a rising one takes a lot of time, just as it took a lot of time to bring about the decline. In another ten days Congress will meet, and we are sure to have lively times in the stock market as prices are at a point where a bull stands a good chance in any contest which may come. Don't think that you can get in at the lowest, as the competition for that honor is strong and hundreds will be left for one who can strike the bottom figures. There are a few good stocks selling at very low prices simply for the reason they are not known to the average investor. The Pittsburg, Cinn., Chicago & St. Louis R. R. is one of these, it being that part of the Pennsylvania system known as the Panhandle. The preferred stock pays semi-annual dividends at the rate of 4 per cent. The cash surplus last year after paying dividends was nearly $900,000, and its net earnings for May and June this year show an increase over same month of last year of nearly $330,000. This stock sold at 40 on Thursday last. The common stock selling about 14 is entitled to annual dividends at the rate of 3 per cent before the dividend on the preferred can be increased to 5 per cent. The Consolidation Coal of Maryland, listed on the stock exchange for 30 years, now quoted 20 bid, pays 2 per cent annually on the par value, and after paying its last dividend had surplus earnings on hand of $700,000. At present prices this stock yields about 10 per cent on cost. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas second mortgage bonds, which sold at 28 recently, pay 2 per cent, and in 1895 will become a fixed charge at the rate of 4 per cent. This road is controlled by the Rockafellers, is entirely free from any floating debt, and has over $650,000 cash in its treasury. These bonds are very good. Cheap, speculative stock, paying no dividends, one can buy with eyes shut; but the quickest recovery will be with securities which have a record for responding to favorable conditions.

IT takes time to bring about a clear understanding of the cause or causes which produce commercial depressions, such as the one this country is now experiencing. It is not until people have to some extent emerged from their troubles and are able to survey the entire field of disaster that they reach adequate conclusions. This has been the case with all financial "panics" and severe depressions, and the one we are now passing through will be no exception to past experience. Indeed, current discussion about our present circumstances indicates that people are beginning to perceive that their first judgments as to what has caused financial stringency are, if not inaccurate, at least insufficient. The Sherman Law, it is seen, doesn't quite account for everything. The more we look into our affairs the clearer it becomes that something else must have been at work weakening the commercial fabric. It is not possible, even yet, to completely diagnose "our case," but certain very important facts concerning our condition are disclosing themselves. Of these the most significant is that contained in the recently published returns of the British Board of Trade regarding the commerce of the United Kingdom during the first six months of the current year. Therein is given evidence of so remarkable an increase in the purchases of this country abroad (when compared with those of 1892), and of an even more remarkable decrease in our sales or exports, that the figures are worth publishing. We give them below:

It does not need to be pointed out how important a bearing these figures have upon our unusual gold exports, which, it will be remembered, have so far been attributed wholly to the Sherman Law. An adverse turn in trade amounting to something like $8,000,000 in the matter of our imports from Great Britain and $63,000,000 in our exports to Great Britain, $71,000,000 in all, is, it will be admitted, rather a cogent reason for gold exports. Statistics of our transactions with the world at large are even more unsatisfactory than in the instance of Great Britain. They show that the excess of our imports over exports in the lasi six months aggregates $108,450,261. The fact is our present troubles have been brought about in no small measure by an extravagance which has paid too little attention to the relation between income and expenditure. Rigid curtailment in this direction is necessary before we can get our affairs again on solid ground. This is an evil not to be removed by the repeal of Silver laws nor by legislative action of any kind. Individually and as a nation we must begin to practice greater economy or be forced to it by bitter experience. The Micawber philosophy: twenty pounds income, expenses nineteen pounds, eleven shillings and eleven pence—net result, happiness; twenty pounds income, expenses twenty pounds one penny—net result, misery has full play in our present condition.

IT must be the attractive simplicity of the remedy that has popularized the belief that nothing is necessary to effectively and happily dispose of the Silver Question, but to summarily repeal the Sherman law and go about our usual business as jauntily as possible. Really, if all this be true, there is no "Silver Question." What question can there be when we have made up our minds to so simply a course as to kick Silver out of the Treasury and discredit it as far as possible in the channels of trade? This course gets over difficulties so easily (by avoiding them) that it has grown greatly in favor with Public and Press, who, as a rule, hate thinking and readily adopt any nostrum that makes the successful treatment of a complicated disease an offhand affair of a dose or two. But, we shall find that the Silver Question cannot be disposed of by any mere negative process of repeal. A constructive policy of some sort will be necessary, and far from having the difficulty removed in a pleasantly precipitous way when Congress meets, the country is likely to find the Silver Question one that calls for more and more thought and sobriety of purpose the deeper it is gone into. Discussion is then likely to begin. As a preliminary to what is to come we very heartily recommend to our readers a perusal of the article, "The Silver Question and the Possible Solution of it," by Robert A. Chesebrough, which we publish elsewhere in this paper. It is certainly one of the ablest presentations of the subject which has yet appeared, and the main facts of the writer's argument seem to us to be incontrovertable and of particular value at a moment like this when people are so prone to remove their eyes from facts to fix them upon theories.

THERE are one or two points in Mr. Chesebrough's paper which deserve particular attention as preliminary to a clear understanding of the silver question. One is the attribution of financial disorder, so widespread at the present, to the Sherman Bill. Mr. Chesebrough says: "Surely it cannot be only because the United States has bought fifteen thousand tons of Silver at the lowest prices ever recorded, paid for the same, and then stored it up in vaults. This fact alone offers no elucidation, because the wealth and resources of the buyer are so enormous, and the purchase so comparatively trivial, that whether the material stored was silver or wheat or coal cannot make any appreciable difference. Therefore, there must be something else." A more powerfully operating cause than the silver purchases was the fear promoted assiduously by Eastern bankers and the Eastern Press that the United States Government could not redeem its silver currency in gold according to agreement. Unjustifiable fright followed. Unjustifiable, because, as Mr. Chesebrough points out, there is "a rule which though not quite in accordance with Gresham's Law on currencies, or with Wall Street theories as applied to Governments, is nevertheless absolutely correct in principle, viz., that the value of a promise to pay depends on the ability of the promisor (assuming his willingness) and on nothing else. The medium on which that promise is stamped or written is of no importance in the question. It may be on paper, on silver, or on leather or written on a wall, or entered in a book, and excepting so far as convenience is concerned it is really quite immaterial on which. Why a promise to pay one thousand dollars stamped on silver should be doubted, and the same promisor's obligation for the same amonnt stamped on paper be undoubted I have never been able to understand. In the first instance you have the value of the promise, plus the intrinsic value of the silver, while in the second there is nothing but the credit of the promisor to rely on. It matters not, therefore, what medium is used, or whether there is any medium at all, the sole issue is one of credit." The course before us now is either to repeal the Sherman bill outright and leave silver to its fate—a step involving consequences somewhat more costly than is commonly supposed—or to issue bonds to strengthen the power of the government to fulfill its pledges concerning silver and thereby bring about immediate relief by restoring confidence. To wait until the whole question can be "settled" will be to prolong our troubles, for an instantaneous settlement is quite beyond possibilities.

Legitimate and Illegitimate Competition.

ECONOMISTS of a certain school draw all their conceptions of social science in its wealth-creating features from the beneficent influences of the law of competition. In other words, they believe in competition first, last and all the time, and are instinctively opposed to any idea that looks to its restraint. On the other hand there are men, philosophers, also, who hold that competition is altogether a malign influence which should not only be bridled and curbed but rendered absolutely impossible by placing nearly all the units of society under some supreme direction. They would have some individual or coterie do the thinking for all the rest.

That both schools are essentially wrong will be evident to every practical man who builds his social theories upon observed facts. Competition is the law of nature. Scarcely has the urchin begun to feel that he is a being with legs and muscles before he begins to challenge his companions to trials of speed, and he finds in the competing use of his limbs a health-giving exercise that will tend towards the prolongation of life and the development of a robust body. But the competitive exercise may be overdone. Two little girls who were skipping the rope on a trial of endurance continued their contest so long that the weaker dropped unconscious to the ground and expired where she fell.

The truth is, competition is a beneficent influence when it is held under proper restraint, and exercised along legitimate lines; but it is a very malign influence when it is unrestrained and exercised along lines that may end finally in the defeat of its own objects. We would not credit a man with a very prolific mind for invention or with common sense if for the purpose of circumventing his rival he cut the ground from under his own feet.

The true ground for the exercise of the competitive spirit is commonly misconceived by the men who are most strongly the advocates of its processes. If engaged in industrial or mercantile operations they seem to think that competition is most useful when it leads to furnishing merchandise at lower prices than their competitors charge. But as a matter of fact the price-cutter is both a financial and social vampire, dangerous to the community in every position where he is left free for the exercise of his propensities. It is the first duty of every man to learn what his neighbors are charging for service, and then to regulate his own prices accordingly; but if he is either a good citizen, a good man, or a man of first-class intelligence, he will never try to circumvent his competitors by furnishing merchandise of an exactly equal quality with their products at lower prices. He will try rather to furnish a better quality of goods at the same prices, or to improve on both the quality and the price, depending for his success on a better class of customers.

But how, exclaims the advocate of economy, who thinks that a reduction in the price of merchandise is the chief end of man, are we ever to get lower prices if this policy is universally pursued? But casualties to industry result inevitably from low prices, and a reduction in personal incomes, reached disproportionately among the different classes of producers. They are impossible when the rewards of industry are generally satisfactory and well balanced.

Not to fly too strongly in the face of popular convictions, however, and to leave some justification for the men who believe that the highest wisdom is displayed in personal economies and a refusal to expend money, it may be conceded that there is a legitimate method for the reduction of prices, and one that is not only innocent but universally beneficial. This is the method seen in improved processes of production. It would be hard to overestimate the social and financial advantages of machinery. The moulding machine and kindred devices have made it possible for the house carpenter to hold in fee simple his own house, something quite impossible for his predecessors in carpentry if the grade of the house placed it above the rude shanty held under a title of squatter sovereignty.

We find here a suggestion of the true field for the operation of the law of competition. The man with a level head will try to produce better articles of merchandise than his rivals, and he will make use of every agency that will cheapen the processes of production. Even the manufacturer who has discovered some advantageous process which he persists in holding as an exclusive secret must be forgiven for his selfishness. But if he makes use of his knowledge for the purpose of underselling his rivals he must never be forgiven. Can he not be satisfied with his increased profits in production without trying to usurp the field?

We yield to none in our allegiance to the law of competition. It is competition that gives us our fast railway trains, made possible by improved road-beds and an efficient service. It gives us, too, our palace cars and our magnificent hotels. Competition enters into all the affairs of life, and it is a factor of almost incalculable force in promoting our art, our literature, and our science. But it is competition, too, devoted to price-cutting, that gives us our panics and their unhappy sequel of distress and poverty. Let prices alone and teach the world to make prices that were once thought high seem low. This can be done by increasing the magnitude of our accumulations and the ratio of our earnings.

THE pugilistic debate on Thursday in the House of Commons lifts into the region of pure humor that antique joke-argument of the English that the Irish are not fit to be trusted with jurisdiction over their own affairs because in every serious parliamentary debate closure would be put with the shillalah and measures would be passed by a count of unbroken heads. With many good Britons the impossibility of the Irish conducting the affairs of government with a decent respect for the human cranium has long been part of his political faith. "The Irish are incapable of self-government" has been a Saxon commonplace for years, in face of the political fight which the Irish have waged in the House of Commons unparalleled in its persistency against great odds, in its resourcefullness and its success. The Irish have won to their side at least one-half of the English people, and, curiously, now that the English have been forced to a serious discussion of Home Rule, they are unable to reach a decision by that reasonable debate and the ordinary processes of parliamentary procedure which they so frequently recommended to the Irish as sufficient, but have conducted themselves with the very violence of act and language which we were assured would be the peculiar disgrace of Hibernian politics. The Irish question from the first has been a huge misunderstanding on both sides; but it will be strange if the lesson of such episodes as that of Thursday is quite lost, even upon the English themselves.

AS we expected, the recent accidents on the trolley system in Brooklyn have greatly shocked the editorial mind in this city, and we have been regaled with columns of pure "fright." It is hard to believe that this stuff has any effect upon the intelligent. They surely cannot miss the prejudice and the manifest contradictions and inconsequentialness that run through the denunciations. For instance, one paper argues that the trolley is inherently dangerous, and should be rigidly excluded from all cities, because it is run in Brooklyn at a rate exceeding ten miles an hour, and thereby has caused accidents! As though the trolley could not be run at a safe speed. Any system of traction would be dangerous, operated as the trolley is in Brooklyn. The temptation to drive fast is always strong upon one, and when in command of a power so easily applied and controlled as electricity is, it is perhaps not to be wondered at that drivers are prone to exceed the regulation speed. But what has all this to do with the trolley? Accidents from this source are to be prevented by stricter management, and probably the best way to begin would be to indict the police and other officials responsible for the proper administration of municipal ordinances. As a matter of fact, the trolley, properly constructed, equipped and managed, is a safe form of traction. It is safer in some respects than the cable. For instance, the latter depends entirely upon brakes to bring cars to a standstill, whereas with the trolley not only are the brakes applicable, but the entire propelling force can be reversed to arrest motion. The accidents for which the trolley itself is responsible are very few, and these and others due to gross carelessness and mismanagement have been exaggerated by the newspapers in a wholesale way. The cable is not without its victims, and on the Broadway line, since it was first started, accident after accident has happened. But of these we hear little. They are attributed to the "inexperience of drivers," "faulty machinery," "inattention of the public," etc.; the very factors which have had most to do with trolley accidents. In all these matters there will be improvements in the case of the trolley as with the cable.

TERENCE V. POWDERLY, through his official organ—every great man has his organ, and organs are much more plentiful than great men—admits that he is a failure. He admits it, because, as he says through his mouthpiece, he has attempted to unite the workmen in one solid body, and has not succeeded. He thinks, however, that the cause is not yet lost. He sees the brighter day coming when he can succeed in leading his followers into politics. But is Mr. Powderly so dull that he has failed to observe, during all these years, that the workmen are already in politics? They are everywhere. They compose a large contingent of the force known as ward-heelers even, and they make themselves generally active at all the hustings. They are the most numerous political body in this country, too, if we count employes of all occupations as distinguished from employers; and if they fail of carrying any object which they have in view it is because, like all other men, they differ and divide and refuse to look at every public question through the eyes of Mr. Powderly or any other would be leader. The workmen are in politics for all it is worth and for something more than it is worth, and, like most other people in this country, a majority it may be said, they are deeply immersed in politics. But oh! exclaims Mr. Powderly, they are not in politics for the purposes for which workmen are organized. Wrong again. Workmen are in politics chiefly for the purpose of improving industrial conditions as the process is conceived among politicians. We will not say that it is well conceived; but it is politically conceived, and that is all that workmen will ever discover or draw from political conceptions. What Mr. Powderly means to say is that the workman is not in politics for the purposes for which he himself is in politics. That would be quite true. They may possibly be led into the kind of politics which Mr. Powderly advocates when they think the shearing season for lambs has come, and have made up their minds that it will be profitable to be themselves shorn. The mental perversity that the chief of the Knights of Labor has witnessed in his efforts at combining workmen in a united body does not begin to equal the perversity which he is bound to witness in his attempts at getting them all on his political platform. This world is as obstinate as a mule.

WHAT is the matter with the Bowery? The question is not asked in the sense intended for a political campaign when a candidate is in view and the answer is expected to come back indicating the popular approbation. It is asked seriously and with certain derelictions in view which render it impossible to give the conventional answer. What is the matter with the Bowery that it fails to respond to the spirit of improvement that is generally manifest on all other business thoroughfares in the interior of the city? It is a wonderful street undoubtedly, unique and possibly incomparable among all the thoroughfares of the world. It is thronged with people from morning to night, and, it might almost be said again, from night to morning. It is ablaze with the electric light at all hours when the sun is absent, and its shopkeepers attend pretty closely to business 365 days in the year, each one nearly twenty-four hours long. Certain it is that nothing but a death in the family can close its saloons or its restaurants at any hour; and one would suppose, when witnessing the general activity and persistence manifest on every hand that this street must be a manufactory for millionaires. Yet it is proof that the fire fiend is not nearly so destructive in New York as we suppose when we see that the Bowery is generally lined with the buildings that were constructed fifty years ago. The new building of the Third Avenue cable railway will look like a castle among ant hills, a towering structure flanked by buildings that hardly seem to rise above the ground. The elevated railway runs along almost on a level with some of the house tops. Are Bowery rents so low that all the space above the second or third stories, so valuable in other parts of the city, can be wasted? The Bowery, it is to feared, is beginning to illustrate the truth of the old adage, which says that the race is not always to those who try hardest to run, or words of a similar import.

Are You "For" the Proposed Building Trades' Exchange.

The Committee appointed by the Building Trades' Club to prepare and present a scheme for a new Building Trades' Exchange, which should purchase property and construct a building to be known as the Building Trades' Exchange, has prepared a prospectus for circulation among "those engaged in the various branches of the building industry." In it the plan outlined by the Committee for securing a building which shall meet the requirements of the proposed Exchange and of the Building Trades' Club, is set forth in detail. In substance it is as follows:

"An association will be organized, to be known as the Building Trades Exchange, having for its purpose the erection of a first-class commercial structure which will afford ample accommodation for the Exchange on the second floor, and the rest arranged for renting as offices to those whose business is in any way identified with the building industry; with accommodation on the top floor for the Club, and the main floor arranged as a permanent Exhibit for building materials and supplies.

"To accomplish this, it is proposed to issue Certificates of Membership in the contemplated Exchange (not exceeding four hundred), at $1,000 each, to be limited exclusively to persons actually pursuing a business connected, or identified with the construction or finishing of a building, such Certificates to participate pro rata in the entire net profits arising from the investment and be subject to redemption at an annually fixed value by the organization, upon the death of a member, or his retiring from business.

"With the entire sum realized from these Certificates of Membership, an eligible site, with a frontage of about 100 feet on two streets and extending through the block, will be purchased within the limits of 14th and 42d streets, 4th and 6th avenues, taking the full title for the same in the name of the Exchange, which will make the value of each Certificate at once its pro rata share of the value of the ground purchased."

The building, which would be an imposing structure, fire proof, and designed upon the most approved office building plans, would be built out of the proceeds of a mortgage upon the property.

"When the building is ready for occupancy the organization of the Exchange will be completed, having for its members in addition to the owners of the building such as may be admitted under the rules then established.

"With such an Exchange located in its own building, the advancement and elevation of the vast building industry will be assured, as it will endeavor to maintain and enforce a high standard of honorable dealings, of excellence of work, and faithful performance of contracts as a prerequisite to membership, to the end that connection with the body will be an assurance of 'Honor, Skill and Responsibility,' to which those seeking such will naturally tend. It will endeavor in every way to promote the best interests of the entire building industry." * * * *

"It is earnestly believed that the project, even as a financial proposition, will receive a hearty response, for there certainly can be no question as to the security when it is considered that with a property ready for occupancy valued at one million dollars, our statement is as follows:

INCOME.

From rent of offices	$123,000
From rent of exhibit space	30,000
From rent of basement, exchange and club floors	10,000
		$163,000

EXPENDITURES.

Interest on bond and mortgage, $600,000 at 4 per cent.	$24,000
Operating expenses	35,000
Taxes, water and incidentals	25,000
Allowing annual dividends of 5 per cent on 400 certificates	20,000
		$104,000

"This leaves a net profit of nearly $60,000 per annum to be applied either to increasing the dividend on Certificates or liquidating the mortgage.

"It is our firm conviction that with the proper energy manifested by those identified with the building industry, this project can be successfully accomplished; for none are so well qualified to see the merits of the reasonable plan and safe investment here proposed as those who are continuously engaged in the erection of just such buildings as investments for capitalists, well known to net a return of eight to ten per cent. It but remains for them to become subscribers for the Certificates, and the hope of years will become a reality, and they will secure for themselves a home such as will be an ornament to the city and the pride of its owners.

"The undersigned will act as a provisional organization until the sum of $100,000 is secured, when the subscribers will be called together to effect a permanent organization by the election of officers and trustees, adoption of by-laws, etc. No money will be called for until a sufficient sum is subscribed to purchase the site, at which time the body will be incorporated under the statutes of the State."

This prospectus is signed by the entire committee, which is composed of the following representative builders, all of whom have undertaken to personally support the enterprise: Andrew J. Campbell, Isaac A. Hopper, Augustus Meyers, John J. Roberts, Clarence W. Gaylor, Thomas F. Byrne, Edwin Outwater, Geo. Moore Smith, Henry A. Maurer, James B. Mulry, Jacob S. Browne, Charles A. Cowen, Warren A. Conover, John L. Hamilton, Alonzo E. Conover; John J. Tucker, chairman; Stephen M. Wright, secretary.

The Silver Question and a Possible Solution of It.

BY ROBERT A. CHESEBROUGH.

So much has been written and so many theories presented on the "Silver Question," that it would seem at a first glance that the subject was, or ought to be considered as exhausted, and that the proper thing for Congress to do when it meets should be to take instant action in the premises, viz., by the repeal of the Sherman Bill. At least that is the popular verdict. The subject, however, is so large, the issues involved so momentous, and the views relating thereto so conflicting that any and all information tending toward its solution deserves at least careful attention. Neither is it desirable to fall out of the "frying pan into the fire." In order to work out a problem and properly solve it, it is generally useful to examine first the underlying facts, and then to obtain, if possible, results from these facts, and finally to decide on a course of action.

At the outset, therefore, one great fact is apparent as a result of the Sherman Bill, viz.: That banking and mercantile credit has been undermined, business demoralized, and values of stocks, bonds and securities of all kinds, good, bad and indifferent, have melted away until more than one thousand millions of dollars of their face value has been wiped out temporarily, in this country alone, without reference to Europe. The question which presents itself is how and why has this occurred. Surely it cannot be only because the United States has bought fifteen thousand tons of Silver at the lowest prices ever recorded, paid for the same, and then stored it up in vaults. This fact alone offers no elucidation, because the wealth and resources of the buyer are so enormous, and the purchase so comparatively trivial, that whether the material stored was silver or wheat or coal cannot make any appreciable difference. Therefore, there must be something else. As the Silver was stored away in accordance with the law, the Government issued against it storage receipts in the form of notes or paper dollars to the amount of the purchase price of the Silver, and agreed with the holders of the notes, first, that it would redeem them in gold or silver whenever desired, and second, that it would maintain with its own credit the parity of the metals. And these are the precise obligations of the Government under the Sherman Law.

The question to be answered then is, are the United States able and willing to keep their agreement? If yes, how can any harm result to the holders of the notes? If not, then the discredited notes naturally must sink in value as compared with gold. Now, it was the fear that the Government neither could nor would adhere to this compact that has produced all this turmoil and annihilation of values. The people were brought to believe by bankers, the press and their representatives that the certain result would be that the silver notes, in accordance with Gresham's Law, must displace a currency of supposed greater value, and that a premium on gold was inevitable. Stocks, bonds and securities of all sorts have been poured into our market from all over Europe, and our own people have joined in the outpour and demoralization until at last there has occurred a veritable "sauve qui peut." Thus we discover that destruction has been caused by fright, whether justifiable or not, and that fear alone is responsible, for certainly nothing in the other conditions of the country, financial or mercantile, justified such a result, and up to this time at least the notes have been redeemed and the obligation respected.

Let us suppose a large theatre crowded from pit to dome with a vast audience listening to the actors. Suddenly there is a disturbance of some kind and an excited individual cries "Fire." Instantly there is a great rush to get out. Men, women and children are trampled to death, and their limbs and clothes torn from their bodies. Finally, when the rush is over, the panic ended and the dead and wounded gathered up, it is discovered that there was no fire, not even any smoke, but only a wild unreasoning scare which has produced the destruction. And this, in a financial sense, is about what we have just passed through. There has been no fire, in fact very little smoke, but only a mighty scare which has been fed by those who ought to know better.

The inquiry then arises, is this fright justifiable, viz.: Is the United States unable or unwilling to keep its contract? As to the first question, I propose to assert here a rule which though not quite in accordance with Gresham's Law on currencies, or with Wall Street theories as applied to Governments, is nevertheless absolutely correct in principle, viz., that the value of a promise to pay depends on the ability of the promisor (assuming his willingness) and on nothing else. The medium on which that promise is stamped or written is of no importance in the question. It may be on paper, on silver, or on leather or written on a wall, or entered in a book, and excepting so far as convenience is concerned it is really quite immaterial on which. Why a promise to pay one thousand dollars stamped on silver should be doubted, and the same promisor's obligation for the same amount stamped on paper be undoubted I have never been able to understand. In the first instance you have the value of the promise, plus the intrinsic value of the silver, while in the second there is nothing but the credit of the promisor to rely on. It matters not, therefore, what medium is used, or whether there is any medium at all, the sole issue is one of credit.

Can any one seriously doubt the ability of the United States to keep its contract? If yes, the financial record of the last thirty years has been read in vain. During that period it has reduced its national debt from four thousand millions to less than eight hundred millions, and were it not for its wonderful pension system there would be no debt at all left of any kind. And yet this is the nation that over-burdened Europe presumes to doubt, and is helped to do so by its own press and bankers. And all because the said nation has had the temerity to buy up a little silver at panic prices and issue a few promises against it. But some hasty critic will say "past experience is against such a theory, look at the history of the Argentine, of the French Assignats, of the Confederate States, and even of our own country during the Civil War." The answer to all of which is, that the depreciation of the promises issued in all these cases ensued only because the credit of the issuer was in doubt, and his ability to keep his promise uncertain. Remove that doubt and the truth of my proposition cannot be questioned. I ask again, can any serious person doubt the ability of the United States to pay its debts and keep its contracts? Surely no. And if that is conceded we reach the second point, viz., the willingness of the Government to keep its contract. Now, I do not believe that there is a single respectable man throughout the entire Union who would like to see the honor and credit of his country sullied by a disreputable act of bad faith for such a paltry pittance as might be saved by so doing. There is not and never has been any such intention or desire, as even the resolutions of the Colorado Silver Convention plainly show.

It is true that there are people who want the gold standard maintained, because they rightly fear monetary disturbance if it is lost; and a larger number who want free Silver coinage, because they think it will bring about a double standard and National prosperity, and the silver miners who want a good market for their Silver, and the wage-earner, because he hopes for high wages and abundance of work from increased money, and the debtor who dreads a tight money market. Now all these classes are actuated by good intentions, not ignoble ones, and would prefer to carry their views into effect, if possible, without injury to the honor or credit of their country. It is impossible and libelous to suppose otherwise. I will even concede that there are some persons who so earnestly desire to see free Silver made a legal tender for debts, and the universal money of the country, believing that such a result would insure local, and, in fact, universal prosperity, that to effect this, they would, if no other course were possible, be willing to imperil the good name and high credit of the Nation; but, even these persons, in and out of Congress, would prefer to bring about their pet project, if it could be done without sacrifice of the National honor. What they want is Free Silver at a high price, and abundance of money, but not necessarily through the repudiation of any of the obligations of the Government. How to effect this, I shall try to show a little later on. The willingness of the Nation may, per se, therefore be conceded.

We next come to the question of ways and means. If any Nation in Europe wants money, it sells its bonds anywhere it can find a market, at the best price it can get, to its own people preferably, or otherwise, in a foreign market, and puts the gold in its purse to pay its debts. The United States did this all through the Civil War, when it was a gigantic thing to do, and why? To preserve its unity and credit. And now, when it is such an absurdly easy thing to do, shall it let its credit and honor go down, and its mercantile and banking interests be destroyed, because of a few bonds issued, and a trifle of interest to be paid. Can any one doubt that the United States could sell one hundred millions of three per cent. bonds in Europe at par, even in these times, and thus turn the balance of foreign exchange so largely in our favor as to bring back the gold in volume to our shores, and thus arrest the panic and restore business, prosperity and values. Is it not better for the United States to pay out three millions in interest, for full value received, rather than to have a great Nation paralyzed, tens of thousands of its prosperous business men ruined, its savings banks broken, and its people (plainly speaking) robbed of their resources and savings.

Again, what earthly objection can there be to such a plain palpable duty as the issue of bonds? For answer, the monitors of the people, the press, tell us that the Administration does not like the "Sherman Law," wishes it repealed, and considers the financial avalanche a useful "object lesson," which will force Congress, through the prayers of the expiring banks and merchants, to surrender its views to those of the Administration. A wonderful reply. Where, I would like to ask, in the Constitution is the Executive made the law-making power of this land, or whence his right to coerce the law-making power to succumb to his personal views. Right or wrong in its views, Congress, within certain limitations, has the supreme power to enact laws, and it is the duty of the Executive to support and enforce them. But that is not the sole duty of the Executive. He holds his high position to conserve and maintain the credit, resourses and prosperity of the Nation, and is bound to use all reasonable and proper means toward this end. It may be urged as an excuse, that the power to issue bonds is doubtful, or, at least disputed, and that therefore the Executive does not wish to assume the responsibility; but, if true, whose fault or folly is that, for if history errs not, before the last Congress adjourned, one House passed an act granting such power to the President, and the other House failed to do so only because Mr. Cleveland and his Secretary of the Treasury declined the legislation as unnecessary. But why all this discussion and hesitancy about issuing a few bonds, when the result to be achieved is so eloquent. It would be a positive and unalloyed advantage to the people to have out one or two hundred millions or even more of government bonds, as one of the great disadvantages we are suffering from is an insufficiency of United States bonds as a basis for bank issues. But some banker says "issuing bonds is only a temporary expedient and does not go to the root of the trouble, which is the Sherman Law. What is required is a repeal of that law to effect a radical cure." There is no present reason to believe that Congress will promptly repeal the Sherman Law when it meets, nor anything to prove that if it does so, present real conditions will be immediately benefited, otherwise than by a removal of the scare.

The stock of silver on hand still remains to be dealt with, and under any circumstances time must elapse before a settlement of the whole question is effected. But the issue of bonds will be an immediate relief, absolutely certain in its prompt effect, and it is quite immaterial whether or not they may in time gradually drift back to our markets. No such argument has any substantial basis, or has ever heretofore been offered, and it is unreasonable to suppose that when confidence is restored, which it would be at once, this Nation, with resources augmenting so rapidly that the mind can scarcely follow, that it cannot take care of a few bonds. It has absorbed, without difficulty, more than a thousand millions of its own securities, returned from abroad in the past, and can do so again, more easily still, in the immediate future It is my belief that the decision once announced to the world that the credit of the country would be maintained under any and all circumstances by any and all means attainable, that there would be no need whatever, for any bond issue, for thereupon confidence in Europe would be instantly restored, and the return flow of capital for investment to the United States would be so immediate and so immense, as for the time to swamp the foreign exchange market.

It is to be lamented that the President and his Secretary of the Treasury did not take that stand last April, for, if they had done so, the present condition could not have obtained. The cause of the panic is the fear that depreciated silver is to be paid on the silver notes instead of gold. Remove that fear by a simple, unhesitating, unqualified statement, and the Sherman Act, whether good or bad, has lost its sting, and could run on for another year, or another five years, without any real or permanent injury to the country. If the world was convinced that we did not intend to pay our debts in depreciated silver, when it expected to be paid in gold, there would be no scare at all, for that is the real and only reason for its existence. Convince the world that we are and intend to be honest, that we are able and willing and certain to keep our contracts and to pay our debts to the last farthing, and the useless process of buying and storing up silver can be continued indefinitely without injury until we tire of its absurdity. It will make no appreciable difference to us whether we have 15,000 or even 30,000 tons of silver stored up, or whether we keep it, or give it away, or throw it away, so long as we do not force it on our creditors at its depreciated value in payment for our debts.

This is the whole question in a nut-shell. Supposing there was a small loss on it eventually, what does that signify to a Nation which can pay out one hundred and sixty millions annually for pensions? If the President had announced to the world: "The United States will, under all circumstances, maintain, as it has agreed, the parity of the two metals, and will use its credit, by the sale of its bonds, to enable it to do so," no early session of Congress would have been either needed or desirable. The fright would have ended, because its cause would have been removed. As he has not done this, because he prefers to insist on the repeal of the Sherman Bill, then Congress should do it immediately on assembling. This done, it can take its own time about the Sherman Bill, without the slightest need for haste, and with great reason for slow and cautious action.

Let us turn for a moment to the Sherman Bill, its intention, and the results accruing therefrom. The act itself was a compromise measure between the advocates of free coinage of Silver and their opponents; its intent, first, to make a market for silver at its long-established price and to keep that price up, and second, to furnish more money for the people. As to the first intent, it has proved a dismal failure; as to the latter, its workings have been on the whole beneficent, through the large additional supply of Silver notes issued. Why did the act fail to keep up the price? The answer to this inquiry seems to me to be perfectly plain. Because by it Silver was degraded from its exalted position as money, and made mere merchandise of, stored up in vaults in ever-increasing volume and storage receipts issued against it, until it became a menace to the world, leading to the belief that sooner or later, the Silver would be distributed to the people, and become the currency of the Nation, to the exclusion of gold. Does any one think in view of the past record of its maintained value that if this mass of stored silver could have been distributed as money throughout the world or even throughout the United States, it would have disturbed the comparative ratio between itself and gold? It certainly would not, or even if yes, the disturbance would have been so slight as to be imperceptible. The stock of silver in the world is estimated at 3,500 millions of dollars, the silver bullion stored in the Treasury at five millions of pounds in weight, which is worth at the present price, say 100 millions of dollars, equal to about three per cent only of the world's entire stock. Considering the annual production of gold and its addition to the stock of the world, there has been nothing in the relative production of the two metals to cause the wide variance in the ratio of value between them, and which ratio has been so nearly maintained for many centuries.

The decline in silver is not owing to over production, for there has been none such to cause it, but is attributable solely to the treatment it has received at the hands of both its enemies and champions. It has fallen between them and may well exclaim: "Save me from my friends and foes alike!" It was once money, they have made it merchandise, and must expect when they degraded it that it would be ruled by the law of all other merchandise, which may be briefly stated thus:—"When a great stock of goods is accumulated for which there is no present need or demand, a fall in price becomes inevitable." And this is exactly what has happened to silver. The question then arises, what shall be done with it? And the reply is again perfectly simple: Make money of it and it will rise once more to its accustomed level without any law, help or hindrance. "But how can this be done?" some one will say. "The people don't care for it and wont have it. It has been offered to them time and time again, ever since the first Bland dollar was coined, and without success." But is not the reason quite plain, and that is because we have by our laws practically legislated it out of use. In defiance of all rules of cleanliness, health and common sense, and the experience of most first-class solvent nations in Europe, we have educated our people up to the use of small paper currency instead of silver, and they don't need and therefore don't want silver, excepting for change, if they can have small bills. During the Civil War the Government issued postal currency and then the "shin plasters" for use as change, and immediately the silver disappeared from circulation.

To be logical, why not issue them now, or as storage receipts, in exchange for half dollars and quarters, and thus drive out of circulation by law the balance of the silver in use, and store it up also in a few more vaults. It may seem as a very absurd idea, but is no more so, excepting in degree, than what we are now doing. If you want silver to be money make a place for it as money instead of choking up every avenue to its use, and forcing it into the arts as its sole consumer. One of the most distinguished financiers in America very recently said to me: "He could not see that it would make any difference as to the price of silver, whether it was actually in circulation or placed in storage and notes issued against it." My surprise at such an opinion from such a source has not yet abated. Suppose England was to issue four shilling and eight shilling notes (which are the equivalents of our one and two dollar bills) in exchange for silver, forcing the people to take them and then to store up the silver in vaults, is it not evident that in a year or so she would be somewhat in our shoes. I say force the people to take them, because I believe they would not voluntarily exchange their admirable currency for any such miserable and unclean substitutes. But England has no such intention, and on the contrary has recently refused to issue even one pound notes, which are the equivalent of our five-dollar bills The smallest bank note issued in England is a five-pound note, the equivalent of twenty-five dollars of our money, and the consequence is that the people use gold and silver for their currency, and that the silver circulation in England is nine times larger per capita than with us. The smallest note issued in France is fifty francs, equal to ten dollars, and as a result the per capita circulation of silver is ten times larger than ours Is there any inconvenience, dislike or objection on the part of the inhabitants of either country to its monetary system, or has any American visitor to either nation ever complained or found fault therewith? Not to my knowledge, but on the contrary, I should say that natives and strangers alike were unanimously in favor of it.

It is undoubtedly true that issuing notes against stored up gold does not and cannot depreciate its value, no matter how large the stock stored, but this is true of gold only and of no other article, because it is accepted as the ultimate measure of all values amongst all nations. If silver had not been demonetized and made token money only, by the great nations it would have been true of silver also, and it would have been impossible to have brought about any sensible reduction in its price, excepting from an enormous relative over production, when compared with the gold production, a condition which has not yet been obtained. The demonetization of silver by the United States in 1873 was, in my judgment, an error and the original wedge which opened the door to the present condition, but in spite of that legislation and the hostility shown to silver by Europe, it stil maintained almost its ancestral and normal value, until the Sherman Act made pure merchandise of it and proved "the last straw," which broke its back. Not that, that much criticised measure should necessarily produce such a result, but because through its workings silver has become a "bete noir" which has frightened the world.

Now, it certainly was not the intention of the Silver men to produce any such results, as they supposed that if there was a large and constant buyer in the field the price would be maintained, but the logic of facts shows that they were wrong and that a result the exactly opposite of the one expected has ensued. Had the proposition of Baron Rothschild made to the Monetary Congress at Brussels, "for the nations to form a pool to buy and store silver." been adopted, the situation ought logically to have become worse instead of better, as it would have been simply adding another pile to the heaped up and useless store which has caused all the trouble and which should therefore serve to intensify the position and augment the difficulty.

THE BLAND ACT.

When the Bland Act of 1878 was passed, it was almost universally predicted by Wall Street that its result would be "a suspension of gold payments." Mr. Cleveland, himself, so believed, and his opinion is on record and was shared by nearly every banker in New York, and has been persevered in ever since. The theory was, that a currency of less value must drive out and take the place of the one having a greater value, and that a stamped promise on silver was fraudulent and was not equal to a stamped promise on paper. As a theory, per se, it was and is fallacious and can only be applicable when the credit or honesty of the promisor is in doubt. At all events, fifteen years have passed by, and leaving out of consideration for the moment the fear of what new laws may do with the silver on hand in the future, and as far as the law stands to-day and the ability of the Government is concerned (if the same be exercised) we are no nearer to a suspension of gold payments than we were then. Of course, if the country will not use its credit and resources to keep its obligations, anything is possible, but if it will use them, as in honor bound, and while its credit remains at its present high pinnacle, it is simply impossible, and this ought, by this time, to be evident to everyone.

If Congress should pass a law instructing the Secretary of the Treasury to recall all the one, two and five dollar bills now in circulation, and as fast as destroyed, coin the silver in the vaults into quarters, halves and dollars, there would soon be no silver question to contend about, as the silver would all be needed, would become in reality money instead of merchandise, would rise quickly to its normal value, and the repeal of the Sherman Act thus become quite immaterial.

Nor need such a measuse produce any contraction of the currency, for the amount in ones, twos and fives cancelled, could be re-issued as ten dollar bills on the simple credit of the country, thus giving to the people a larger supply of money which, events have shown, is very much needed. But I shall be told our people are used to and prefer small bills to coin. Unfortunately they are used to it, as they are to many other pernicious things, but there is no reason to say they prefer it, until they have tried the other plan, and excellent ones for believing, that as in England and France, coin would become quickly popular. People may, and do, live in malarious districts, and get used to chills and fever, some even in unnecessary dirt and misery, and appear to like it, but that is no reason why it is good for them, nor that they should be encouraged in doing so.

DANGER IN SMALL BILLS.

It is undeniable that a paper currency of small denomination is a source of contagion and a vehicle of disease, insidious and dangerous in the extreme. How many homes have been invaded by diphtheria, scarlet fever, consumption, skin diseases, and the rest of the fell brood of infectious and contagious disorders, the producing causes of which were unknown, no one can say, but it is fair to presume that in unnumbered cases the contagion might have come from the filthy paper money the people are compelled to use. A one dollar bill may, and I doubt not, often does pass through fifty hand in a single day, the clean and the unclean, the healthy and the diseased. If dangerous germs can be communicated by contact, and the scientific world now says so authoritatively, then small bills are the most effective means of that communication which a destructive genius could possibly devise. As an illustration, a carter, whose duty it was to remove the ashes from a large office building, came to receive his weekly payment therefore while I chanced to be present. His clothes were indescribably filthy and his hands and face covered with horrible open syphilitic sores. The money was paid him in one and two dollar bills, and, in counting it, he moistened his fingers with his poisonous saliva, and then thrust the roll into his foul pocket. How do you know that one of these identical bills are not now in your pocket, or in the hands of your wife or daughter? This incident impressed me so strongly, that since that time I neither accept nor carry dirty bills. In this relation, attention is also called to the extracts from high authority, printed in the appendix to this paper.

If it is true (and I believe it to be so) that the Silver Question would be ended, and the normal value of the metal restored by such a simple process, is it not also highly desirable to promote the health, cleanliness and godliness of the Nation, for we are told in scripture that the last two are close akin to each other. What the silver men want is a high price for their metal, and this way they would surely get it, and that without disturbing gold payments, or touching the Nation's honor. Prosperity and progress do not lie in the path we have been following, that much is certain. Some other path must be taken, and what it shall be is an important subject for discussion, and, therefore, all views relating to it are rightly admissible.

The effect of taking in small bills would be also to promote the circulation of two dollar and a half gold pieces amongst the people, a coin which has almost disappeared from use since the war, but which, before it was both plentiful and popular. The United States would undoubtedly be financially stronger if gold was in current circulation amongst its people, as it is in England, France and Germany, instead of as with us, mainly stored in banks and treasuries as a reserve to issue bills against. It is an axiom that "demand produces supply," and this is as true of gold as of any other commodity, if one has the wherewith to pay for it.

On June 1st, 1893, there was in circulation, outstanding of United States notes, silver certificates and national bank currency, under the denomination of ten dollars, the following amounts:

Of one dollar bills	$39,882,250
Of two dollar bills	31,[illegible]5,870
Of five dollar bills	242,494,583
Making a total of	$313,927,703

At the same date there was in the treasury:

Standard silver dollars	$361,278,816
Subsidiary silver coin	11,394,610
Silver bullion	114,[illegible]89,140
Making a total of	$486,962,566

If, therefore, the paper money, consisting of one, two and five dollar bills, was withdrawn, destroyed, and reissued as ten dollar bills, the demand for silver would be so great as to reduce the holdings of the treasury to a sum which would cease to be important or a menace to the country. Every dollar of the silver in bullion would be needed for dimes, quarters and halves, and I doubt if three years would pass before the Government would be depleted of every dollar of its silver and forced to become a buyer at normal prices, for coinage purposes.

The silver coins at present in circulation are: Of Subsidiary Silver $66,163,602, or less than one dollar per capita of the population, and of coined dollars, $58,053,489, or about eighty-five cents per capita of the estimated population, June 1st, of 66,826,000 inhabitants. If the experience of England, France and Germany has any value whatever, three or four times the amount of silver coins now in circulation would be required when the small paper money was withdrawn, and the Government instead of getting silver at 72 cents per ounce would have to pay $1.25 to $1.30 per ounce for the metal. Supposing such a course to be taken, and such results to flow from it. What shall we gain by it?

FIRST.—One hundred millions of dollars, at least, profit on the value of the silver now on hand over its present market price, instead of the expected loss we are mourning over.

SECOND.—Cessation of the silver scare and all its attendant frightful losses and political animosities, and a restoration of national prosperity and progress.

THIRD.—A restoration of the silver mining industry, and ultimately free coinage and an international bi-metallic interchange of the two metals on a fixed ratio of value, probably sixteen to one.

If it is true that the Silver Question can be settled by such a simple remedy, is it an answer to say that the "people prefer paper." After all, the answer is only a surmise and is not borne out by facts. As an illustration, some three years ago I made the experiment of paying wages to some three hundred employees in Silver dollars and continued the system for about a year and a half. My experience was that no objection whatever was made to it, and that it was universally liked by all of our employees, and would have been continued to this day but for the establishment of a small bank in the vicinity of the works, through which we arranged to pay employees by check drawn to order, the indorsement on the check serving as a receipt and a voucher for the payment. But the experiment was continued long enough to prove conclusively that the people do not and will not object to silver if its value is kept at a parity with gold.

If all paper money below ten dollars was withdrawn from circulation I believe it is safe to say that from six to seven dollars per capita in silver would be needed for use, and that 500,000,000 ounces would be necessary to supply that need before June 1st, 1895.

The stock of silver held by the Bank of France is about two hundred and fifty million ounces. In circulation, amongst the people, there is probably more than double that amount, making a total of over seven hundred and fifty million ounces in France, or fifty per cent more than in the United States, and still there is no burning silver question there, notwithstanding the fact that the population is less than one-half that of ours.

It is certainly pertinent to ask why is there not a like disturbance there? and the reason to me is perfectly evident, viz.: That no one ever dreams that the French Government will pay the four thousand millions of paper francs issued by the Bank of France in Silver. Is not this proof enough of the cause of our panic?

Here is a simple problem for the politicians and the press:

Cannot a Nation of sixty-six millions of people preserve five hundred million ounces of silver at a parity with gold, if thirty millions of people can keep seven hundred and fifty million ounces of silver at that parity? And, if not, why not?

Are our resources less than those of France? Certainly not.

What then is the cure?

Certify, unmistakably, to the world, that we are going to pay our debts and silver notes on a gold valuation and the panic will instantly terminate, and an era of prosperity will efface everything but the memory of its folly.

FREE COINAGE OF SILVER.

I might leave the subject here, but I can not refrain from touching for a moment on a larger issue, and that is the Free Coinage of Silver. President Harrison, at the time of the appointment of the delegates of the United States to the Monetary Conference in Brussels, stated explicitly "that it was to the interest of the Nations that gold and silver should be alike money, interchangeable, by agreement, at a fixed standard of value." That such a result would promote the prosperity of the world seems to me incontrovertible. Is it not apparent that the stock of gold for the use of the Nations is insufficient. If one Nation has a sudden and imperative demand for it, all the rest immediately "shake in their shoes," lest their supply should be diminished. A tremor of excitement is visible in all the Bourses, and the value of securities decline. What saved England from a serious crisis at the time of the Baring failure, was a loan of four million pounds sterling, from the Bank of France. It was stated afterwards that the metal was not even unpacked from its original cases, but returned intact, to France, as received, its presence alone serving to allay the panic and the demand for it.

NEED OF MORE MONEY.

As the population of large cities increase, as vast industries are launched, securities and paper values issued, railroads built, and manufacturing multiplied, the demand for actual money of some kind, is unceasingly added to. The farmer and the planter, who, formerly sold his products to the country store, and took a credit therefor, to be used up in his purchases of supplies, now sells for the cash to the speculator, railway and commission man. Negroes, farm hands, employes and laborers, are now all paid in cash, not in kind, and the process is still going on, all over the world, demanding more ready money, per capita, than it has had use for in the past. If gold alone is to be the future reserve against which all this money is to be issued, where is the gold to come from? It is estimated that the total stock of gold, outside of the arts, is about 3,500 millions of dollars, or about the same in value as that of silver. If silver is to be entirely demonetized, as seems to be the present determination of the monometallists, the scramble for gold, must, of necessity, become intensified to a degree which will be unbearable, especially if India, as is seriously proposed in some quarters, is also to be forced to adopt the gold standard. When that time arrives, if it does arrive, something of some kind must be done, for India will prove a bottomless sea, into which one quarter of all the gold on earth will sink and disappear from view, and from European use forever. On what ground the European Nations, England alone excepted, refuse to accept a double standard, I am at a loss to conceive, for it would most certainly result in the prosperity of all of them, and work incalculable benefit to the entire world.

SPREAD OF BIMETALLISM.

It is a curious study to witness the recent growth of public opinion in the direction of bimetallism in the City of New York. A single year ago, with but a few shining exceptions, merchants, bankers and the press almost universally condemned a "Silver man" as unsound and even as dishonest, and the silver dollar stamped by the Government as a fraud invented to cheat the creditor, the poor and the nation. For more than a dozen years past this theme has been so reiterated that a business man with any regard for his credit or reputation for sanity has been forced to silence and obliged to drift with the current. But light is breaking at last, and men are beginning to realize that after all, the United States, in spite of all laws of political economy, Gresham's included, can, if it only will, maintain the value of every silver dollar now within its realm at par with gold, for the simple single reason that its credit is inexhaustible. There is now really only one question left for discussion and that is: Can the United States alone and unaided establish and maintain permanently a bimetallic standard and force the world to follow its lead?

A short year ago bimetallists were an unimportant and derided minority of impracticable enthusiasts, but before the present Congress adjourns I predict that five intelligent men out of six will be converted to the belief that "bimetallism is the financial hope of the world," and that the only question debatable is how to bring it about. Pure silverites, that is, men who wish to displace gold from our currency altogether, are rare and have been only made such, because they have lost faith and hope in remedial legislation, and would embrace any alternative which would stave off impending ruin and destruction of their interests. But let these men see that it is possible to raise and keep silver at a parity with gold, that driving gold out of use involves worse disaster than we have yet seen, and that neither success, permanency, prosperity nor honesty lie in that direction, and they would be to a man our strongest supporters. What they want is $1.29 per ounce for all the silver produced in the country, and that obtained there is neither rhyme nor reason in degrading the nation to a silver basis only, and making it the bye-word and contempt of the world, and without the possibility of its remaining there longer than for the people to realize the enormity of their folly and rise in their majesty.

AMEND, BUT DO NOT REPEAL THE SHERMAN LAW.

The journals who have demanded unceasingly the repeal of the "Sherman Bill" by wiping it off the Statute Book fail to realize that such a course would be disastrous in the extreme, and is impossible of honest execution. Early last May Secretary Carlisle considered the question of paying silver certificates in silver, and possibly would have done so had it not been for the clause in the Sherman Law which commits the United States to preserving their parity in gold. It was this very hesitation of the Treasury which precipitated the panic. The silver men, if they did but know it instead of fighting the repeal of the Sherman Law should help to repeal it, because by doing so the legal obligation of the Government to preserve the parity of the metals would be swept away. I say legal, because I am entirely sure that the people would never submit to such dishonor as issuing notes at a guaranteed value and then repudiating the guarantee. It is unnecessary to say more on such a subject, and it is evident that the Sherman Bill in its entirety cannot and must not be simply repealed without additional legislation.

Congress, on assembling, in my judgment, should affirm the intention of the Government to preserve the parity of the metals, and authorize the issuance of bonds to effect that purpose. That measure alone would restore confidence and end the panic, independent of any and all further legislation. But it may be said, the President could have done that without Congress. Certainly, he could have done so, and with the same result. His motives for refusing are so far unknown, but we are bound to assume that some justification will be offered for a course which has been productive of such untold misery and destruction. Congress should also stop the purchase of silver until the Treasury stock is reduced to a level of 100,000,000 ounces, and remove the limit, as to its purchase price, viz.: one dollar per ounce, as otherwise if they make money of silver, instead of merchandise, as it is at present, they are not likely to get much at that price. A new monetary Congress should be held, and a fresh attempt made to get Europe to agree to a bi-metallic standard on a basis of sixteen to one, with England, if possible, without her, if necessary.

An international silver coin or ingot should be struck, of a fixed weight, which should be the near equivalent of four shillings, four francs, four marks, and one dollar, or a multiple of them, which coin or ingot should be a legal tender amongst all nations, interchangeable at a ratio of sixteen of these coins for a standard ounce of gold. Thus would be doubled the "reserve" of the world; the strife amongst nations for gold would cease, and financial panics based on stringency in money would be impossible for a generation. England alone blocks the way to such a desirable consummation, and the other nations fear to embark without her, but she too will be forced into line when France and Germany are ready to join us as bimetallists.

England is the great creditor nation of the world, and therefore it may have been heretofore to her interest to have had every debt due England paid in gold, as she owed nothing to the world, and always therefore could command money at all times by simply raising her bank rate of interest. We being a debtor nation, when confidence is destroyed and panic rules, our creditors clamor for their debts at the very time when we are least able to pay them, and hence the flurry we have gone through. But "tempores mutantur," in another decade we shall be a creditor nation also. This is the handwriting on the wall, and spite of all the sufferings of her colonies and of India and now of her own insular subjects, England still hesitates to accept anything which will hasten the transfer to younger hands of the financial supremacy she has so long and so magnificently held.

Can the United States maintain the free coinage of silver independently of Europe, in the event that Europe will not join them? I do not propose to answer this question dogmatically, but I believe from the study I have so far given the question that it can. In the late summer of 1890, when it was generally believed that Congress would pass a free coinage Act, silver advanced to $1.25 per ounce, and the exports of silver were (if I am not mistaken) the largest in the history of the country. Immediately when the Act failed in the House after passing the Senate, silver began declining both in price and volume of export until the present. Writers like Louis Ehrick try to explain this economic fact as follows: "Anticipating favorable silver legislation, silver speculators drove silver to $1.21 in September, 1890. Speculators, however, count for little against natural law." (See page 24, Ehrick on Silver.) A rather weak and forced explanation, and furthermore, not warranted by facts. The natural law which carried up the price and increased the foreign demand for it was, that the proposed law elevated it to the dignity of money, in this country, at least, and that therefore the demand for it increased as the price advanced, and that speculators had nothing to do with it. And so, in my judgment, would a free coinage law operate again. When stocks and merchandise advance in value, everybody wants them and buys them, when they decline no one wants them and everybody is a seller, and so it has been with silver, and so I believe it will be again. At all events the United States can take care of its own stock and production of silver without difficulty, and to insure protection against foreign silver it might be wise for the present, at least, if free coinage is determined on, to impose an import duty on silver of ten to twenty cents per ounce until the nominal value of the metal was restored. Such a measure would be a perfect protection to us; a righteous retribution for European hostility to silver, and result in bringing about an international bimetallic agreement.

The time is most opportune for a change of policy by England in relation to silver.

The recent action by the Indian Government guaranteeing the value of the rupee at sixteen pence, has involved it in difficulties which require for adjustment either a complete backdown therefrom or the acceptance of bimetallism. By the Sherman bill the United States has guaranteed one hundred cents in gold for a silver dollar, not sixty-six cents in gold, which is exactly what the Indian Government has done with the rupee, the former gold value of which was about twenty-four pence sterling. Either it should have guaranteed the full relative value of the rupee to gold or have left the matter entirely alone to be worked out by time.

It is hardly either to the credit or sense of the British Empire to assume an obligation at sixty-six cents on the dollar. Better guarantee one hundred cents, or nothing at all.

This mistake, however, has eased the path to international bimetallism, and it is to be hoped will reconcile England to that haven of financial beatitude.

During the last twenty years the drain of gold to India has exceeded 500,000,000 dollars, and still continues without so far entering into the currency of the Country, but seeming to be absorbed and hoarded. Not one dollar of this vast sum ever returns to the World's use. What the future aggregate of that absorption will be if India is to be forced to a gold basis, is a problem so fraught with dire possibilities, that it should call for the closest study from enthusiastic monometallists. If all the world is to be brought to the single gold standard, then unless immediate and immense new supplies of that metal are forthcoming from somewhere, this planet is not going to be a very pleasant abode, until that Empirical scheme has broken down.

I am quite aware that this paper will subject me to invidious and hostile criticism, but I am prepared to endure both, because I am convinced by long study of the subject that in the main these views are sound, and if not mistaken ones, then ultimately truth must and will prevail.

APPENDIX.

CONTAGION IN MONEY.

BANK NOTES ARE COVERED WITH THE GERMS OF FATAL DISEASE.

Some singular facts concerning the danger of infection by paper money have been learned by bacteriological analysis of the bank notes of the Spanish Bank of Havana in general circulation. Attention was drawn to the subject by the fact that circulation increased the weight of the notes in consequence of their acquiring foreign matter. The examinations made showed on the notes in use for some time a considerable number of microbes, and on some notes as many as 10,000 microbes were detected.

Eight pathogenic species were encountered, including those of diphtheria and tuberculosis. The result of the examination was that a general warning was issued to the public against the active source of danger.

The use of bank notes is at all times attended with a certain degree of risk, and especially in Havana, where children have the habit of carrying paper money in their mouths, and are thus very liable to swallow the germs of some mortal disease.

Congressman Outhwaite has been making an investigation into the disease carrying capacity of a dirty currency note.

Dr Graham writes that he made an examination of eight bills. A one dollar bill of the series of 1878 showed three kinds of bacteria; one of series of 1883, two kinds; two two dollar bills of the same series, one bacterium each, and another dollar bill, series of 1886, two kinds. The bills were all much worn and very dirty. The culture made of the notes showed that on each of them there were numbers of bacteria colonies, which might some day, under some circumstances, develop energy enough to immigrate to the human system. For instance the doctor's report shows that one of the bills has thirteen colonies of two kinds of bacteria.

The doctor says that it yet remains to determine the nature of the various microbes to ascertain if they be pathogenic germs capable of producing disease.—Washington Star.

Special Notices.

STEAM HEATING AND VENTILATING.

An experience of over twenty years, and an intelligent application of that experience, has given to the Barron Steam Heating Company, of 48 Dey street, a high standing in New York City as heating and ventilating engineers. THE RECORD AND GUIDE has just received a handsomely-bound copy of their catalogue for 1893-94, which contains a large number of illustrations of different classes of boilers, radiators and pumps, preceded by an introduction that might be read with value by every builder, architect and house-owner. The company has furnished and erected the steam heating apparatus, boilers, etc., in large numbers of buildings of every description including such structures as the Cosmopolitan Magazine Building, southwest corner of 6th avenue and 11th street; the Trinity Lutheran Chapel; St. Aloysius Academy, Jersey City, and in numerous flats all over the city. The company estimates on factories, hotels, flats, apartment houses, private dwellings, etc.

HOUSE CLEANING AND RENOVATING, A GOOD SEASON TO GET SUCH WORK DONE.

The Manhattan House Cleaning Bureau, established in 1880, continues the leading house in that line of business. Mr. James E. Garner, the proprietor, looks after every detail of the work and numbers among his customers very many of the best people in the city. He has recently cleaned up the new Buchanan mansion at No. 11 East 69th street, and unpacked and arranged lots of the fittings. He does all manner of house cleaning and renovating promptly and at moderate cost. Mr. Garner will cheerfully furnish estimates, and he makes special rates to builders.

AN ACTIVE AND SUCCESSFUL MASON AND BUILDER.

Harry McNally is one of the very busiest of the many active mason builders of which this great city can boast. His work has done much to improve the metropolis, and an inspection of any or all of the following substantial structures he has built will satisfy the most exacting of Mr. McNally's workmanship: At No. 55 South 5th avenue a seven-story warehouse, which will be ready for occupancy about September 1st, owners Chesbro & McNally; 22 Catharine street, seven-story shop, for L. Abrahams; 141 West Broadway, six-story warehouse for Schneider & Herter; stable for 100 horses, on 82d street, between Lexington and 4th avenues, for Mr. Korn. Mr. McNally recently completed a seven-story factory on the southeast corner of Pike street and East Broadway for A. Cohn. His office is at No. 215 East 23d street and his residence 161 East 118th street.

SMALL FLATS AT REASONABLE RENTS.

Tobin & Cuff, agents and brokers, of No. 364 9th avenue, between 30th and 31st streets, have charge of the renting of the Tobin flats, on 33d street, near 9th avenue. The apartments are well arranged and are for rent at reasonable rates. The same firm have many other desirable properties for rent and a number of good investment parcels for sale.

Real Estate Department.

The real estate market has been as devoid of features calling for comment this week as could be imagined. Just enough of business has been done to require the presence of a few brokers in town and to demonstrate that the market is still firm. The prices at which property has changed hands show no indications of a weak market. Prices remain as they have been ever since the first of the year, firm, with no disposition to decline. True the brokers have read the reports of the Wall Street circus with some feeling of apprehension of reflex action on the real estate market, if the terrible sacrifice of corporate properties that has been going on should continue; but this has been more than offset by the expectation that the near approach of the special session of Congress (August 7) will mark the turn of the tide in Wall Street. The ultimate effect of this panic, it is the universal belief will be to bring real estate into greater favor with the investment public.

Building News.

The vicinity of Madison avenue, at 87th and 88th streets, has been considerably improved by the two very handsome apartment houses that are being erected on that avenue—one by Higgins & King, on the northwest corner of 87th street, and the other by Smith & McMorrow, on the southwest corner of 88th street. The buildings are both seven stories and basement in height, their fronts being dissimilar. The former is of Lake Superior redstone and brick and the latter of light brick and terra cotta, the latter by the Perth Amboy Co. They are both to be rented out in suites to a high class of tenants. The one on the 87th street corner will be finished in about two months, while the other will be ready for occupancy about the beginning of next year. The two buildings occupy the entire westerly front of Madison avenue, between 87th and 88th streets.

* * * *

B. A. & G. N. Williams, while they have lost none of their cunning as stonecutters, cannot help going out of their line to do a little building on their own account now and then. Their latest venture is the row of six houses on the south side of 92d street, east of 5th avenue, just about finished.

* * * *

F. J. Schnugg, who has made a small fortune in building, has just completed four flats on the southeast corner of Park avenue and 97th street. It must have required some courage to build so near the Elevated Road's engine shops. Still, other buildings in the neighborhood seem to be well tenanted. Besides, the "L" road obstructions at this point will within a few years be driven away, and property surrounding will be correspondingly benefited. By the way, why do not the property-owners concerned push forward the proceedings for opening up Lexington avenue and the other streets obstructed by the elevated road sheds. Perhaps the purchase by John D. Crimmins of the block north of the sheds may be a precursor of the coming improvement.

It is rather a curious sight to find the six flats built by R. E. Johnson on the north side of 118th street, 100 feet west of 8th avenue, at a standstill—a condition in which they have been for seven weeks, though nearly completed.

F. Braender's illness has greatly retarded the completion of his six new flats on the south side of 121st street, west of 8th avenue. They are within a month's good work of being completed, and ought to rent well in such a locality.

Those who wish to have their theories verified about building following the line of rapid transit, will find ample support in riding on the cable cars along Amsterdam avenue, north of 125th street. Buildings are gradually creeping up along that avenue, and on the streets branching forth from it to the east and west. One of the latest improvements not yet completed is that of the row of ten four-story flats being built by S. O'Brien on the south side of 133d street, west of Amsterdam avenue. They are arranged for one family per floor and are to rent at from $20 to $25 per month.

G. F. Picken's six houses on the north side of 113th street, east of Lenox avenue, are completed.

* * * *

Two well-known East Side builders have just about finished two improvements in far East Side localities where both have made considerable profits. F. Schuck has completed four apartment houses on the northwest corner of Avenue A and 8 th street, and L. & J. Brandt have nearly finished four flats on the north side of 83d street, east of East End avenue, the latter being practically Avenue B. The Brandt flats overlook the East River, with its sail and steam craft ever passing by.

The plans for the improvement of the plaza at the 5th avenue and 110th street entrance to Central Park are in a fair way to be carried out. The work was awarded to Joseph Moore by the Park Board on Tuesday upon his bid of $5,594.

The parade ground at Van Cortlandt Park is to be improved according to plans by the Park Board engineers, at an expense of $93,188.49. John Cox has been awarded the contract.

A NOVELTY IN HOISTING ENGINES.

A novelty in the employment of power in the construction of new buildings can be seen at the Postal Telegraph Company's building, corner of Broadway and Murray street, in the shape of an endless chain hod elevator run by electricity The Pittsburg Terra Cotta Co. has introduced this feature, by which it is claimed a saving is effected.

The following buildings were damaged by fire during the past week, and will probably require reconstruction and redecoration: 337 East 88th street, owner Ludwig Heckner; 950 Broadway, owner National Express Co.; 119 9th avenue, owner Henry Finke; 207 West 27th street, owner A. Eustace; 380 Hudson street, owner G. W. Straight; 124 Forsyth street, owner Herman Gussman; 247 Avenue B, owner Owen Ledwick; 337 5th avenue, owner A. T. Demarest & Co.; 350 Grand street, owner Edward Ward; 347 West 13th street, 824 Amsterdam avenue, 181 Prince street, 11 Marion street.

Commissioner Michael P. Daly, of Public Works, will receive proposals until noon of next Monday (July 31) for:

Furnishing the Department of Public Works with twenty thousand (20,000) cubic yards of clean sharp sand.

Regulating and grading with asphalt pavement, on concrete foundation, the roadway of 153d street, from Amsterdam avenue to Boulevard.

Regulating and grading 150th street, from Amsterdam avenue to Boulevard, and setting curb stones and flagging sidewalks therein.

Regulating and grading 187th street, from Amsterdam avenue to Kingsbridge road, and setting curb-stones and flagging sidewalks therein.

* * * *

Commissioner of Street Improvements Louis F. Haffen, of the 23d and 24th Wards, will receive proposals until 3 o'clock on Friday next, Aug. 4, at his office, No. 2622 3d avenue, for the following public work:

For regulating, grading, setting curb-stones, flagging the sidewalks and laying crosswalks in 154th street, from Morris avenue to Railroad avenue East.

For regulating and paving with granite block pavement the carriageway of Clifton street, from Cauldwell avenue to Union avenue, and laying crosswalks.

For constructing sewer and appurtenances in 161st street, between Railroad avenue West and Morris avenue.

For completing the construction of sewers and appurtenances in Melrose avenue, between 160th and 156th streets, with branches in 157th street, 158th street and 159th street, between Elton and Courtlandt avenues.

Out Among the Builders.

Rose & Stone have about completed plans for a "Mission House and Nursery" to be built at the southeast corner of 1st avenue and 60th street. The building will be 76x100 feet, built of light colored brick and brownstone, three stories in height in the front and five stories in height in the rear. It will be of fire-proof material. In the basement will be a gymnasium, boys' reading-room, dining hall, coal cellars, etc. The main floor will contain a reading-room for men, class-rooms, library and main auditorium, 52x46 feet, with a clear space of 30 feet to the roof. Around this auditorium will be a gallery for class-rooms. Other rooms, such as meeting-rooms, officers' rooms, bath-rooms, kitchens, etc., will also be found in the building. The building will cost between $55,000 and $60,000. It is to be built by Isaac V. Brokaw as a gift to the Madison Avenue Reformed Church. The architects are receiving estimates now, and the contract will probably be given out next week.

F. J. Schnugg will build four five-story flat houses on the plot, 108.6x112 feet, at the southeast corner of Bradhurst avenue and 146th street. The corner house will be 27.6x102 feet, and the others 27x71 feet. They will be of brick and Indiana limestone, with all improvements, including exposed plumbing, and be arranged for two families on a floor. They will cost about $90,000. Louis Entzer, Jr., is the architect.

Louis Entzer, Jr., has plans under way for two private dwellings which Dr. Quackenbush will build on the north side of 92d street, 150 feet east of Madison avenue. The houses will be 17x52 feet, and four stories in height, with a three-story extension 8x10 feet. They will be of brownstone and the interior will be hardwood cabinet trim throughout, with tile bath rooms. They will contain all improvements and be heated with hot air. The cost will be about $35,000.

John C. Barth will build a modern first-class apartment house on the plot, 102.2x100, on the southwest corner of Amsterdam avenue and 81st street. It will be seven stories high, with stores on the avenue, and an ornamental entrance on the street. Besides all the other improvements it will contain a passenger elevator.

John Hauser has plans in preparation for a five-story brick and brownstone flat, to be built for Mrs Delia Strickland, on the north side of 78th street 150 west of 1st avenue. It will be 25x58 feet, with five-story extension 6x13 feet, have all improvements and be arranged for two families on a floor. It will cost about $18,000.

Charles Rentz has plans on the boards for a six-story and basement brick, stone and iron store and factory building, 25x55, to be built at No. 64 Market street, for Mrs. E. Appleby.

The two three story dwellings at Nos. 157 and 159 West 45th street, are to be torn down and a first-class modern six-story flat will be built on the site.

Joseph L. Buttenwieser will remove the brick tenements from the lots at Nos. 103 and 146 Madison street, and erect in their places two modern six-story apartment houses with stores.

Brooklyn.

M. Gibbons & Sons are excavating for the three-story and cellar factory building, composed of iron, brick and stone, to be constructed for V. Savarese & Bros., on the south side of Irving street, near Van Brunt, size 50x66. Cost, $10,000. Also, for the three-story and basement flat building on Sedgwick street, near Columbia, for Mrs. E. T. Smith. Cost, $8,000.

Out of Town.

ELMSFORD, N. Y.—A. T. Gillender will build a two-and-a-half-story frame and stone dwelling, 120x40 feet, with stable 75x66 feet, and lodge 20x30 feet, at "Knowlwood." The house will be in the Colonial style and will have all the improvements, including steam heat. The house will cost about $20,000, and the stable and lodge about $9,000 more. Berg & Clark, of New York, are the architects.

FRANKLIN, N. J.—Earnest R. Tilton is at work on plans for a brick and stone building with slate roof to be built here for school purposes and to cost $30,000.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of Transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

Mortgages against 23d and 24th Ward properties will be found all together at foot of this list.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—Operators and the market for Common Hards do not appear to have found the "financial strain" particularly detrimental, so far as any effect is shown on the movement of supplies at least. Stock continues to come along with about the former freedom and to meet with quite as good demand as at any time since the seasons's consumption fairly commenced, and down to the present writing there has been an excellent daily clean-up of the arrivals. Prices, too, seem to have been sustained without much difficulty, and while $5.75 is admitted to be a pretty full figure only obtained on the very best goods it may be returned as a top quotation from whence figures range down to about $5, possibly a fraction less for some of the poorer makes of Jerseys. The general run of quality from the yards along the Hudson continues excellent, and as a consequence the finer goods are not commanding the premium sometimes falling to their lot, and there is an intimation that in occasional instances up-River stock has been found to answer every purpose, where contracts or expectations were based upon the assumption that Haverstraws were to be used. Pales have retained good favor too from the class of trade that can use them, with the supply reported as all sold at full former rates. North River Fronts have generally been coming to hand on contract, with no fresh stock for the time being available, though some will be ready next week. All advices from points of production carry an impression that the offering should be free from washed brick for some time to come. The dry weather that has permitted the pushing forward of building operations almost without a break has also proven of great advantage to brickmakers in working out supplies without injury, as well as turning off a full production and it appears safe to predict plenty of good brick for a long time to come, as there is no doubt shipments will continue as fast as stock is ready for marketing.

LATH.—The market has had one of its periodical tumbles, but the break was natural enough and really seem to show, all things considered, that there is a great deal of latent strength in the situation. On Monday about twelve million lath put in an appearance and were followed by additional arrivals which, of course, compelled receivers to do a great deal of hustling around after custom; but they seem to have found it, and at the moment there is practically no stock unsold. Prices, of course, weakened and wind up at about $2.25 per M. for spruce, and this comparatively light shading of only 10@15c. against last week's figure makes a pretty good showing. Buyers were found largely in the local district, but to some extent at outside points, the Jersey cities and towns in particular. The Hemlock lath, previously noted, as expected came to hand, and considering the state of affairs prevailing on regular goods did very well in realizing $1.30 per M. Of course there is the usual story of small quantity expected, but lath can probably be obtained if wanted, and we have seen a letter from St. John, N. B., recounting how upon information that this market wanted a supply the shipments ran up in two or three days to about eight million.

LIME.—At 90c. for common and $1.00 for finishing the market for Eastern lime remains steady, with a fair demand, and the position assisted somewhat by moderate arrivals. Operators, however, generally speak cheerfully in regard to the outlook, and consider that the market is now fairly in hand. A committee representing the combination of Maine manufacturers has been here to look over the situation, and gone back to recommend an entire shutting down of all the kilns burning for the New York market until conditions shall become more propitious. The idea is to wait until all who are holding old stock here shall have worked it off and cleaned up the market, thus not only making a place for renewals, but giving dealers a chance to get something fresher and more desirable in stock.

LUMBER—Probably so far as natural development of demand is concerned there has been no improvement since our last, but business has, on the whole, increased somewhat. Agents and receivers have been more willing to negotiate with first-class customers upon a reasonable credit basis, and through judicious presentation of the merits of their offering succeeded in booking orders especially for special cuts and assortments which generally are engaged at this time of the year against the accumulation of winter stock. Indeed, all buyers admit that on the natural influence of prospective supply of desirable goods and an ordinary consuming demand all standard grades of lumber can apparently be handled with perfect safety, but until financial confidence is more generally entertained it will be useless to expect anything in the way of even moderate activity. Supplies coming to hand in fulfillment of contract have increased the local accumulations somewhat, but otherwise the quantity of stock showing up here has, as a rule, been small, and the careful shipments by manufacturers remain as one of the supporting features of the position.

Spruce has again appeared to have a strong market, yet the undertone is really one of great irregularity. It all depends upon how custom may happen to be caught, and 50c @$1 00 per M. difference on specifications and deliveries, almost identical in all particulars, is no uncommon experience. Pretty much all the natural demand at the moment is for specials, and it is intimated that some of them are being taken by commission houses and pocketed for the present upon the hope of ability to make a deal with manufacturers later in the season. For random cargoes there would be quick demand from a few dealers who are really in need of stock, but there is doubt expressed about ability to obtain very full rates except by mere good luck. Piling is quoted steady, with a good prospective demand, and Hemlock remains nominally steady at about the former average range of quotations and meets with some demand, but there is no haste or anxiety on the part of buyers. They know they can get enough stock whenever the call for it may be made, and appear to have no fear in regard to prices, even in the face of reports of a proposed great curtailment of the output of stock.

White Pine continues to be spoken of somewhat more cheerfully than noticeable for the average run of stock. Especially will that apply to the better qualities, of which the present offerings are very small and the chances for an increase are slim, while all dealers and manufacturers want some for working stocks. The coarser grades are, for the present, called steady, and a retention of tone will depend somewhat upon offerings. Receivers contend that stuff will not be plenty, but the new cut has not commenced to move, and there is a natural chance that as manufacturers commence to get stuff ready for market they will want custom for it and may be willing to offer some inducements to attractive buyers.

Yellow Pine may be called about steady, as no recent pronounced shading on cost has been made. It is, however, generally understood that sellers are quite as plenty as buyers, and that no opportunity to make a deal is neglected, with some remarkably close shaving of the value line under competition to secure the run of orders. Export trade is not very liberal at the moment.

Carolina Pine is handled with care, and buyers as a rule confine their orders to small parcels against immediate wants. They find a supply available equal to the call made and at former rates, but no open shading on cost allowed, and manufacturers generally prefer to curtail the production rather than continue work and sell at a loss. Our city mills are doing very well in turning out small lots of dressed stuff to suit present character of demand.

Hardwoods remain nominally unchanged in value, and meet with quite as good a demand as other descriptions of lumber. That to be sure does not indicate a very extensive trade, but it keeps all sections of the market in line, and there seems to be an idea that affairs must mend soon. Not many dealers or manufacturers are believed to have much stock under engagement to arrive, and it is calculated that so far as credits can be satisfactorily arranged there will in the natural order of things be a disposition to invest with greater freedom. Now and then some fair export orders are booked, but want very nice stuff, and buyers look for easy terms.

The Northwestern Lumberman reports that the recent meeting of the Poplar Manufacturers' Association at Louisville has undoubtedly resulted in a firmer feeling regarding poplar. Among the larger manufacturers there has never been any doubt but what poplar prices would hold up this season; but there were a few, not so well informed as to the condition of supply and demand, who were not so confident. The report of Secretary Thomas, showing the amount of lumber and logs on hand June 1, ought to be sufficient to convince these doubting ones that there will be no difficulty in disposing of all available poplar at current prices. It was even proposed at the meeting to advance the old list, but owing to the financial depression this was not deemed advisable.

One encouraging feature of the report is that it shows no accumulation of low-grade poplar within the last six months. On the other hand there was, in round numbers, 16,000,000 feet of common and 8,000,000 feet of culls less in stock than on December 1, 1897.

Many mills have already shut down because of lack of logs, and they are not likely to have any more this season. Others will shut down within the next sixty days, and should the same ratio of shipments continue for the balance of the year as for the last six months, there will be a shortage of 30,000,000 feet on December 1, as compared with the same date a year ago. Dull trade may prevent any further advance in prices for poplar, but it is hardly possible there will be any decline.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

The Albany Argus as follows:

The lumber market is in only a fair condition for the season. A few of the large houses report a very encouraging week's trade with a continued good inquiry, but from the majority the trade announcement is of dullness. One prominent pine house reports its sales this year equal to those of the same period last season, which is very good considering the many drawbacks already encountered. Several of the dealers are concerned to some degree in the failure of the D. G. Burton Co., of Mt. Vernon, noted in another column. A couple of other small failures are rumored, but it is not thought that the firms mentioned owe any money in Albany at present. The best feature of the market for pine just now lies in the fact that assortments are improving and that there are no hindrances to prompt forwarding of lumber from Tonawanda. When the money stringency is past and the demand for lumber generally improves, Albany will likely have a first-class stock to sell. The new cut is now arriving, all the old lumber having been delivered. Most of the new cut thus far received has been practically dry, having been manufactured from "railroad" logs at steam saw mills. Prices continue firm.

In spruce and hemlock there is yet the disposition already noted, not to force trade, not so much on account of hard times as because of the abnormally light stock on the yards. Trade is quiet. The production is now entirely stopped on the upper Hudson on account of the low water. All the saw mills have been shut down for eight days past. There is a very fair assortment of Black River spruce here, however, considerable having arrived during the week. Hardwoods, shingles and lath are quiet.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows on the Chicago cargo market:

There was no improvement in demand up to Thursday, and conditions were unchanged from those previously reported. Receipts are falling far behind those of a corresponding time last year, as can be seen by referring to the figures following these reports. Lumber is forwarded no faster than the commission men think is advisable in the present state of the market. Sales are mostly made for cash, as the sellers are unwilling to take risks in the matter of time payments. This necessarily restricts sales to those who have the means to readily pay for their lumber. On the other hand the yard dealers are buying as little as possible, because they do not wish to draw down their bank balances until they see more demand for lumber and can make collections easier than now. Still, there is sale for lumber, and the cargoes that drop in, on an average of two or three a day, are disposed of without much waiting, though it often requires hard work and the division of single cargoes between several yards.

Short piece stuff is still held for $10 a thousand, but doubtless concessions of one kind or another are made so that the buyer thinks he has obtained his lumber for less money. Slim jims are priced at $11, but probably a large percentage of wide joists would not block the sale at that figure. Prices are easy, and are inclined to sag when the occasion demands it. When lumber is put on the market it is because the shippers either need piling room or money for running expenses. The manufacturers say that they will ship no more, if there is a tendency to pound prices below the present figures. The flurries among the Kansas City and Denver banks, late last week and early in the current one, had a depressing effect on the cargo market. At the same time, the Lake Huron tows came in, causing an overload, at a critical time. These events were rather more than the market could stand, and shippers were dissatisfied with results of sale.

The most pronounced feature of recent yard trade is the cut in prices that has become general, two or three of the large shipping concerns leading off with lowered lists. The dealers now openly confess that there has been a cut of from $1 to $1.50 throughout the entire list of piece stuff and common lumber. At this reduction there is some further shading in special instances.

Editorially the Lumberman says:

The manufacturers and dealers the country over are settling to the conclusion that there is an actual depression in trade, that values are being scaled down, and that they must make calculations to meet an extraordinary emergency. There is less whistling to keep the courage up than a month ago, less blowing wind against the inevitable change, but greater resignation and preparation to withstand the worst that may come Assumed cheerfulness and make-believe protestations that there is nothing the matter with the lumber business have given sway to a grim admission that the demand has seriously fallen off, that prospects are not bright, and that the financial means to carry on business is not easily obtained. In all the leading markets operators are looking affairs squarely in the face, and concluding that they will have to be content this year with meagre results by comparison with those of last year. There are bright spots in the general field, and some signs of improvement; and there is a degree of hope expressed that in the fall, after the crops have been harvested and the silver question has been disposed of by Congress, there will be restoration of confidence and a revival of demand for forest products. But all sagacious men realize that, at the best, the lumber business, like other lines, cannot immediately pick up what the monetary flurry forced it to throw down. There must be a new beginning on a readjusted basis, and a toiling upwards to the heights of previous prosperity.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman as follows:

There is not much of anything new in the condition of the up-river drives to state this week different from last. Many of the drives are at a standstill owing to the low stage of water that everywhere prevails. It is expected that some of the drives that are now delayed will come out as soon as sufficient head of water is received from the government dams, but the outlook is not very encouraging to say the least. A late report states that the Bear river drive has reached Leech lake, and the Deer river drives are already in the government dam at Pokegema Falls. As far as can be ascertained none of the logs have yet come out of the Crow Wing and its tributaries, but it is thought that the larger part of the cut will be gotten out safely before the season is over. The Tamarac and Lower Prairie drives are said to be all out clean. The Pine river drive will come out clean, but the upper Pine and Thunder lake logs will probably be left over until next season. The most of the cut on the Willow river is thought to be hung up indefinitely. The greater part of the Swan river cut is already out in the booms, but it is probable that a few million will be left behind. A part of the Vermilion lake drive is in the Mississippi, and the rest of the logs will no doubt come along within a week or two, although the cutting away of the dam at this point has hindered the progress a good deal. The Rum river logs are coming slowly but surely, and both the Hillman brook and Platte river drives are out all right. What the drivers are most anxiously looking for is a week of good rainy weather, as this would help matters a good deal at the present time.

ENGLAND.

The Timber Trades' Journal says:

In London things are very quiet, but on the coast a considerable quantity of stuff is selling. A cargo of pitch pine, 35 feet average, about 800 loads, was recently placed on the east coast at 50s. Freights are steady from all places, and though 97s. 6d. has been paid for two or three ships from Pensacola, 95s may be accepted as the ruling rate to U. K. or Continent. Prices of Southern timber are better on this side than they have been, but the supply on hand is still ample for all requirements, and it is only on the faith of the reported shutting down of the mills at Pensacola that the tone here is improving. In Canadian pine the demand is quiet on this side, but there is very little here and comparatively nothing coming that is not already sold. The fall fleet from the St. Lawrence is likely to be very late, and will probably be unable to get back again in time to make another voyage.

NAILS.—Demand has continued moderate from all sources, and the market decidedly dull and unsatisfactory. Some buyers have recognized the remarkably low rates ruling, and willing to invest, but could not secure the backing desired to accomplish that end. Present offerings are fair, but there is a steady reduction of the make by forced or voluntary shutting down of mills. We quote Cut at $1.05@1.25 per keg for car lots and $1.35@1.45 per keg for parcels from store for iron, and add 3c. per keg for steel; Wire, $1.50@1.55 at mills, and $1.80@1.85 from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Business has been irregular, with occasional indications appearing to promise an increase in the run of orders, but nothing positive in that line as yet reached. Buyers do not need very extensive supplies at this season to carry on their regular trade, and even if they did would experience difficulty in obtaining them except for the ready cash, which no one is carrying around to any extent at the moment. So far as business goes it embraces a regular assortment of standard goods in the way of dry and mixed colors and ready-made paints, and there has been enough of all kinds to go around, yet apparently no surplus as manufacturers manage very well in keeping the production within bounds. Base material of pretty much all kinds is plenty, and that in conjunction with the condition of trade keeps values on paints easy. White Lead of standard quality commands former prices on ordinary deals but outside makes sell lower. Corroders' rates stand as follows: Lead in oil in kegs and dry lead in kegs in lots of less than 500 lbs., 7¼c. net; in lots of 500 lbs. to 5 tons at one purchase, 6¾c.; 5 tons to 12 tons, one purchase, 6⅝c.; 12 tons and over, one purchase, 6½c.; kegs. Lead in oil in 12½ lb. tin pails, add 1c.; in 25 and 50 lb. tin pails, add ½c.; and in 1 to 5 lb. tin cans, assorted (100 lbs. in case) add 2½c. per lb. to keg price. Terms on lots on 500 lbs. and over, note or acceptance at sixty days, or 2½ per cent. discount will be allowed for cash paid within fifteen days of invoice date. To make either of the above required quantities any assortment of packages of white lead, red lead and litharge may be counted. The above quotations are free on board cars or boat at corroding point. Linseed Oil has been moderately active with more or less irregularity on cost, though city makers claim that they have not been compelled to make any allowances for ordinary deals. We quote on general range at 48@49c. for Western, 50@51c. for City from domestic seed, and 62@63c. for do. from Calcutta seed. Spirits Turpentine meets with only a moderate trade demand and although the offering is not excessive there has been pressure enough to gradually lower the line of cost. We quote at 27@28c. per gallon, according to quality, quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—Demand has been somewhat irregular, but as common for some time past all parcels of stocks handled were for immmediate wants. Offerings have balanced the outlet, and former rates were accepted. We quote Tar at $1.90@1.95 in pine or Wilmington bbls., $2.00@2.05 in pork bbls., and $3.70@3.75 in oil bbls., Pitch $1.50@1.70.

BUILDING MATERIAL PRICES.

LUMBER.
Appended quotations are based almost wholly upon prices obtained for goods from first hands. Yard rates necessarily range much higher owing to the expenses attending sorting out and grading cargo and even car lots, besides which must be added the cost of handling and carrying until consumers are ready to invest. Terms of sale also prove important factors and, altogether, it is impossible to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable n character.

VOL. LII. AUGUST 5, 1893. No. 1,325

THE most phenomenal advance that the stock market has had for a long time was that of yesterday, an advance which showed that strong hands are now directing and dictating prices to those who have profited so largely by that general distrust which has frightened mill owners, manufacturers and others half out of their natural wits. In fact this last rise would indicate that there are some people who have positive information, not yet known to the general public, which leads them to believe that a way has been discovered out of our financial troubles, and should this prove to be only partly true it would be safe to predict that the rise has only begun and that a bear panic is likely to be the order of the day. The pity of it all is to see a country so great as this, among the nations of the world, wallowing in the mud, solely on account of bad financiering, and compelled to sell its wheat at prices dictated by those whose necessities would compel them to buy it at much higher figures had we not been completely outfinanced by them. This country is great in everything but its rulers, but even they can only hold it down for a time.

AT the present moment the state of business abroad is so certain to have an influence over here upon our own affairs that the European markets cannot be watched too closely. In English trade during the past week there has been practically no improvement. Reports as to the state of the labor market show conditions scarcely so hopeful as a month ago. In the engineering and shipbuilding trades there has been no substantial advance. Dullness in the mining industry continues, with slight improvement in Scotland and Wales. The lace, hosiery and worsted manufactures are reported as depressed; the sea-carrying trade is dull, and drought has adversely affected the crops in several districts. Moreover, as a cloud on the horizon, there is prospect of a serious dispute between miners and mine owners over a reduction of 25 per cent in wages. On the other hand, against these unpromising conditions, there is to be noted the satisfactory character of railway dividends for the last year. The reserve of the Bank of England continues to increase, but discount rates are slightly harder than they were, owing, it is said, to the disinclination of people to tie up their capital and to expectation of considerable exports of gold to the United States. In Germany there is no improvement in trade conditions. Iron and steel are very dull, but manufacturers hope that increased demands for army needs will help them somewhat. Buyers in many trades are holding back, anticipating still lower prices. The demands on the Imperial Bank continue heavy, and the stock of metal held is below the figures of several years past. All funds and bank shares are reported depressed. The receipts of the Saxon railways have declined 0.15 per cent, and the returns from the stamp tax has fallen off from 16¼ to 12½ million marks. Trade with the United States, however, is reported to be improving. In Austria the premium on gold in foreign exchange continues to advance and the public are alarmed. Hope for improvement of the situation is centred in the harvest, which is reported to be only middling in quantity but excellent in quality. On the whole, the harvest will be better than last year.

IT looks as though it might require a severe wrench to the constitution of the State of New York to permit the city to bear a part of the expense of the Park avenue improvement. In the good old days when half the townships and cities of the State were bonding themselves in aid of railways the transaction would have appeared regular enough; but it seems to require very ingenious special pleading to show that the elevation of the tracks of a railway owned by a private corporation is a public improvement in the sense that the word public is politically comprehended. A bridge or the approaches to a bridge across the Harlem River, to be owned exclusively by a railway company, will be a very different undertaking from the construction of a bridge on a public highway owned and maintained by the State. Corporation Counsel Clark has given the opinion that as the construction of the viaduct will open many cross streets now closed by the railway it will be a public improvement. But the opening of the streets will be only an incidental benefit. It is not the purpose of the work to open streets. The purpose is only to enable the Central road to carry its trains up to the elevation prescribed by an act of Congress for crossing the Harlem River. It only happens that the streets will be improved precisely as the river will be improved by the elevation of the grade. But the fact that the river will be improved would hardly give Congress the right to appropriate money raised by taxation all over the United States for the purpose of helping to elevate the tracks of the New York Central Railroad. Yet there is no special provision in the Federal Constitution forbidding such an appropriation. It would only be declared unconstitutional by reference to first principles; and we would like to see Mr. Chauncey M. Depew go to Washington and tell Congress that it had decreed a public improvement and should meet half the cost. There is hardly a railway in the United States that could not ask for the use of public money by founding its request on some public benefit corresponding with the benefits conferred in this case. There is little room for sympathy with this work; and we shall await the results of the suit brought by the banker Felice Tocci to restrain the city from issuing bonds with considerable interest. There should have been a tunnel under the Harlem River for the use of the Central railway many years ago. The road could have built several tunnels when its stock was selling at 155, and both Congress and the city, in compromising with its neglect, are trying to make themselves accomplices in something that must be called a misdemeanor if not a crime. It seems that almost everything with any engineering features in New York must be misconceived. The city should have use enough for all the money it can spare in running streets under the Harlem River.

The Safer Policy.

WHEN Congress meets on Monday, this country will experience something akin to the sensation of relief that attends the first visit of the physician in the house of the sick. Expectation of a speedy improvement in the state of our affairs prevails even now, for, according to the popular notion prevalent at least in the East, all that is necessary to call back prosperity and the foreigners' timid, elusive gold is to bring Congress to a penitent and summary frame of mind about the Sherman Law. The common notion is, that even if Congress has not found doctrine, instruction and reproof in the contemplation of recent disaster, the rest of the country has, and is now possessed of so very positive ideas as to the way of salvation that it will take a ruling hand in putting things in order and preclude the smallest opportunity either for dilatory play with monetary theories or for pandering to special interests.

But to those having eyes, it seems probable that expectation of an immediate repeal of the Sherman Law will be disappointed. However desirable the direct course may be, we should build no hopes upon its being adopted. Legislatures seldom take the direct course, and in cases like the present one, where the conflict of interests and theories will necessarily be severe, a delayed compromise of some sort is far more likely to be the result. It is sheer nonsense to suppose that the Silverites have been converted in any numbers from their views by the events of the last two or three months. In a tight place, it is the nature of most people to squeeze forward in preference to crawling backward, and we know that Senator Jones' flexible understanding interprets the present crisis as a complete and signal justification of free coinage. Had we more silver than the paltry 4,500,000 a month, he thinks, we should not be stumbling over our own prosperity in senseless fright as we are to-day. Silver is a revengeful goddess, and maddens and overthrows those who slight her. The Senator from Nevada is not alone with these opinions. Indeed, we venture to say that, as with all punished heretics, the Silverites are more confirmed in their beliefs to-day than ever, and will be more clamant, active, argumentative, obstinate, when Congress meets than formerly.

The situation, from whatever side we approach it, is favorable to a long fight, particularly as it is very likely that the Western representatives will make strong appeal to the South for support now, in return for the assistance given in the last session against the Force Bill. The South may be relied upon to respond with a considerable measure of aid. Fight is certain and it is, of course, quite impossible to foresee the outcome; but surely enough is within sight to convince us that the instantaneous surrender of Silver is extremely improbable. The Sherman Law may be repealed, particularly as it is not satisfactory to either side, but that will not happen speedily, indeed it should not be looked for until one side or the other is completely routed or a compromise emerges from the controversy.

Under these circumstances it is scarcely the highest wisdom for the commercial world to base too much expectation for better times upon anticipations that Congress will be quick, sharp and decisive in dealing with silver. The policy of "Unconditional Surrender," "Instant Repeal," advocated with such vigorousness by the New York press, undoubtedly sounds well. There is the off-hand dictatorial air of omnipotence about it which is very taking and quite convincing if we will but overlook obvious standing difficulties which cannot be brushed aside by the easy touch of newspaper assurance. These difficulties will have to be met and tussled with, and in the end we shall find that the policy of "unconditional surrender" needed much time for consummation. Under ordinary conditions we could well afford to await the issue, but circumstanced as we are to-day can we? While Congress is wrangling, dancing to the music of discordant and hair-brained theories, the commercial world will be paying the piper an extravagant price for the fun. Disappointment and delay is so harmful to our interests at the present time that we ought seriously to consider whether it is not better to demand of Congress that the first step be one of compromise. The country needs immediate, even if it be temporary, relief. With that obtained the Silver Question can be argued without ruining our people.

The Silver Question.

VIEWS OF REPRESENTATIVE BANKERS AND BUSINESS MEN ON MR. CHESEBROUGH'S PROPOSITION.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE published last week a clear and comprehensive exposition of the Silver Question, by one of the ablest business men of this city, together with his views of the proper solution of it. The views therein expressed were so bravely taken, in a community which has been substantially driven by partisan newspaper hue and cry to an almost opposite extreme, that it was a foregone conclusion that they would be harshly criticised. In some quarters this has been the case.

But among expert financiers, among men who are brought by daily occupation in practical touch with every phase of the financial situation it was to be presumed that any divergence of views would extend rather to the means to be employed to place the national currency on a firm and abiding basis than to the permanent policy of the nation regarding the minor one of the monetary metals. And so the fact seems to be. While some assume the existence of a present emergency, calling for emergent action for the purpose of allaying the widespread alarm which has locked up the money of the country, and would apply temporary remedies like the issue of bonds suggested by Mr. Chesebrough or the mere unconditional repeal of the silver purchase clause of the Sherman Act, others would go farther and treat the whole subject constitutionally, as the doctors would say, and at once. They would repeal the purchase clause only by an act which would provide at once for the free and unrestricted coinage of both gold and silver, and trust to the natural trade operations to adjust their proper relationship toward each other.

In order to lay the question properly before its readers, THE RECORD AND GUIDE has interviewed some of the foremost financiers and business men of the city on the question, taking Mr. Chesebrough's suggestion as to the text. It required a great deal of persistency, at a time when every demand on the time of such busy men amounts to an intrusion, to obtain these expressions, but they are authentic and reliable, for every report was written out in full and submitted to the person interviewed and corrected by him before it was finally authorized, except in the case of Mr. Cannon, who was too busy to revise the proof of his remarks.

President Henry W. Cannon, of the Chase National Bank, and a representative of the United States in the Brussels International Monetary Conference, is just now one of the busiest men in the country. Besides looking closely after the affairs of his own important financial institution the burden has been laid on his shoulders by the Clearing House Association, of managing, as chairman of the committee, the issuance to the various banks of the Clearing House loan certificates. Nevertheless, he took time to give THE RECORD AND GUIDE a short statement of his views upon the matters treated by Mr. Chesebrough in his article.

As to what should ultimately be done with silver, he said it would be better to let time and the changed conditions that were approaching determine. Perhaps a different feeling towards silver in Europe would be one of these changed conditions. "The duty of the moment" said Mr. Cannon, "is to repeal the purchase clause of the Sherman act. That step taken, confidence will be restored and money will come out of its hiding places and Europe will again be an investor in our securities. Then we can take up the silver question in the International Conference with our own position much strengthened. It may be that England will then see the matter differently than she did at the first meeting, and the way to a general understanding as to the future treatment of silver be made more easy. Practically silver has been demonetized in nearly every nation except the United States; so that the burden has been thrown on this country, of maintaining the former parity of the two metals, and I do not think we ought to undertake to carry the load alone until we have tried once more to reach an agreement under which all the principal nations would act in harmony. No, there is no occasion for a new commission. The present commission is adjourned, you know, to meet again in November. The matter could be taken up at that time with better prospects, I think, of reaching an agreement, than when we first met."

"What would you do with the silver now in the Treasury?" Mr. Cannon was asked.

"Nothing," he replied. "Let it stay there as a security for the certificates that are out against it. Let it abide the final determination of the whole question. If the International Conference should fail to reach a conclusion acceptable to our country it would then be the time to consider independent action, but not before."

Mr J. Edward Simmons President of the Fourth National Bank, said: "There isn't any use of debating the question further. Congress should repeal the purchase clause of the Sherman Act unconditionally—throw silver down at the feet of Europe and say 'there is the whole question—now settle it' No, no no—not now, at any rate—we must not take any such risk as free coinage would be at this time Leave all that and all the other features of the silver question to abide the result of the next session of the monetary conference. The thing to do right now, and the only thing to do, is to repeal the silver purchase clause of the Sherman Act. That's enough for the immediate present."

Astute real estate agents and brokers, concerned for the interest of their clients, have recognized the strong probability that a long continuation of the present stringency is likely to produce a depressing effect in real estate values, and have addressed themselves to the study of the best means to avert such a misfortune. President Geo. R. Read, of the Real Estate Exchange, enjoys exceptional opportunities for gauging the general sentiment on the question among the most extensive owners and operators in real estate, and his views are likely to reflect the opinions of the majority of such men.

"The present depression has been brought upon us," he said, "by our unfortunate financial policy. We have attempted, practically single-handed to keep a constantly increasing volume of silver at parity with gold and to force it upon the world as money and the world has rejected it. Our continuation in this policy has bred a widespread distrust of our ability or willingness to pay our debts in the money of the world—in gold. Now, we have been doing business very largely on foreign capital. We have had millions and millions of foreign gold loaned to us or invested in our securities, which is the same thing, and under the distinct understanding that we would repay in gold. When our foreign creditors, therefore saw, or thought they saw a disposition to pay them back in depreciated silver they began to withdraw their money from our market, and this condition of things has been going on for some time. It began three years ago and has grown in volume ever since, until now it has reduced us to these serious straits.

"Now what we want to do is to take the back track at once. Stop the Treasury purchases of silver and declare our purpose emphatically to pay every debt in gold or its full equivalent. Bring all our money up to the gold standard—use silver only for subsidiary currency, and if necessary issue bonds to provide for the redemption in gold of all our outstanding silver certificates This done, confidence in our integrity—in the honesty and uprightness of our purpose, will be restored and foreign money will immediately flow back upon us. It will come in a greater volume than ever, because no other country in the world can afford such profitable and safe investments. We are the most prosperous nation on the face of the world, and money can earn a better income with us than anywhere else. But we haven't money enough of our own—we have always been a big borrower in the markets of Europe, and for many years to come we will continue so to be. It behooves us therefore to keep faith with those from whom we borrow. Do this now, by coming frankly and honestly to a gold basis with our currency, and we will be able to borrow all the money we want. Yes, money will be offered to us in greater volume than we will know what to do with.

"In real estate we want cheap money. When money is plentiful it is cheap, and with the cause for the present distrust removed, money will once more be plentiful. When money is cheap the real estate market is active and the people are prosperous. When money is dear the market is paralyzed—and business is brought to a standstill. No; never mind about the future of silver until the principal nations of the world agree upon a definite policy with regard to it. There is no danger that silver will disappear entirely from the world's coinage, it is too important and valuable a commodity; but it is passing through a transition period just now, in which its relative position for a long time to come will be determined, not by this country alone, but by all the leading nations of the world.

"In the meantime there is but one thing for us to do, and that is to come to the position taken by England, Germany, France and Austria—and agree to pay our debts in the money of the world—to render gold for gold."

President William P. St. John, of the Mercantile National Bank, is by all odds the ablest representative of consistent bi-metallism in the East, if not in the nation. Although he has taken no part in the political gatherings having the free coinage of silver for their object, he has not refrained from the clear and emphatic expression of his views when in assemblages of bankers or of business men, as in the meetings of the Chamber of Commerce and kindred bodies, and consequently his views are well understood by his colleagues of the banking profession. But the daily press, in their one-sided manner of discussing public questions, have refused to report him accurately and consequently he has had no public hearing. After looking over Mr. Chesebrough's article, which, in the main, conformed to his ideas, he said:

"I cannot agree with Mr. Chesebrough in his view of the duty of Congress even in the supposed present emergency, which does not exist in fact.

"It is no part of Government business to attempt to maintain a parity of bullion value in market for its coined money. Any such attempt on the part of Government is likely to prove futile. It is this likely futility—of any such attempt on the part of Government—that affords our gold monometallists a plausibility in their argument.

"The Government's duty is to provide the means by which trade operations in their employment of money will effectually maintain the market value at the valuation appointed for the mint.

"If the mints of the United States would receive gold bullion and silver bullion without limit in amount, and for an appointed number of grains of silver issue a silver dollar, and for an appointed number of grains of gold issue a gold dollar, each to be equally unlimited legal tender money of the United States, and for convenience allow as now the circulation of the coins by certificate, the trade demand for money would determine whether or not both gold and silver would seek our mints; and if both did seek our mints it would be because the money use of either was the best use that owners could make of it.

"With a volume of domestic business to furnish such a demand for money the appointed number of grains of gold and of silver for a dollar of each would be the dollar's worth of gold and silver in the markets of the world. This means that the mint price would be the market price just so long as the trade demand for money enticed both metals into the mint for coinage into money at the mint valuation.

"If the domestic trade demand for money is not sufficient to employ both, as the best use of each that owners can make of their gold and silver, then the mint valuation of the one which does not seek the mint is too low. Or, what is equivalent, the mint valuation of the other is too high; which is to say, more grains must be appointed for the dollar coin of the overvalued metal.

"Such an alteration of the coinage ratio for so vastly influential a mint as the mint of the United States ought to be adopted only after the actual experience to dictate it. With intelligence controlling the Treasury and public confidence in that intelligence the test of experience could be applied, under our prodigious trade demand for money, with all the safety of a nursling in its mother's bosom. Any alarm to be engendered as to the perils of a silver basis of money in the United States under such a provision of law, could only come of ignorance or unscrupulous perversion of facts for which few of our self-appointed tutors in this community would assume responsibility.

"History contains for us a complete object-lesson of the mint operation, of an important nation under equally free coinage for gold and silver. Such was the operation of the mints of France during seventy years to 1873. The fact that owners of gold and silver voluntarily took both to her mints for coining into her legal-tender money is evidence complete that the mint value of each was at least as high as the market value of each, or one would have gone elsewhere constantly. Furthermore, it is historically true that during these seventy years the London value and Hamburg value of gold and silver in the market was practically the mint valuation of France, modified only by the freight between these points and Paris, and a marginal difference additional over or under, according to the momentary rate of exchange."

Mr. St. John has put this statement into other words recently, as follows:

"The world's yearly production of silver which (compared by weight) is now about 23 times, and in 1855 was about 4 times, was in 1803 and later 5½ times the yearly production of gold. Yet, during these astounding variations in the relative production, the mints of France, valuing gold at 15½ times silver, continued open during the 70 years to 1873 for the coining of both metals without limit—with the world's market price of gold and silver hovering closely about her mint price, constantly, during all these 70 years.

"Here, evidently, was Value determined by Law.

"The calm unconcern with which France, without endeavor, thus automatically dictated the relative value of gold and silver for the commercial world, during a period of 70 years, is historic. The circumstances and conditions which favored France were altogether inferior to the circumstances and conditions which now combine to favor the like automatic achievement by the mints of the United States, if made equally unrestricted in their operation.

"The opportunity which France so successfully enjoyed was decreed by her great General, the renowned of all soldiers of modern times. It will be pitiable if the Representatives of the people in Congress cannot be persuaded on the facts to give the United States a fighting chance to do as well."

Mr. St. John did not believe an issue of bonds as recommended by Mr. Chesebrough, was necessary. There is no present exigency calling for such a course All desirable improvement in our monetary system, with such increase in the circulating medium as is required, would be effected by opening the mints to the unrestricted coinage of gold and silver. Neither did he approve of the suggestion that the one, two and five dollar bills be retired and ten dollar bills issued in their stead as a means of compelling the actual circulation of gold and silver for money of small denomination The contagion in small bills is only one of the many minor risks one had to take in order to make progress in such a world as this.

He did not approve of the suggestion that another effort be made, through an international monetary conference, to get Europe to agree to a bi-metallic standard. Attempts at international agreements of this order, he said, were unknown previous to 1865. They might do, as in the case of the Latin Union, where several nations border upon each other and their international use of the money is really only a continental domestic use of the same, like the use of United States and Canadian coins in our border cities and their's, but no agreement of such a character, which sought to make the United States a party, is either necessary or obtainable.

Recognizing the popular preference for paper money, Mr. St. John has recently offered the following proposition: He says—"A bill to fulfill the demands of the platform of the party now entrusted with our legislation, might possibly shape as follows:

"FIRST. Our mints to receive without limit all deposits of gold bullion and silver bullion, not too base for minting and issue therefor unlimited legal tender notes of the United States at coin value, these notes to be redeemable in gold or silver coin, at the option and convenience of the United States; and on request of the noteholder, but at the like option and convenience, to be redeemed in gold or silver bullion at not less than coin value. All outstanding gold certificates, silver certificates and Treasury notes of 1890 to be cancelled whenever received, and the proposed notes sub-tituted therefor at face value. This act repealing the so called Sherman law entire.

"SECOND. If a new valuation for gold and silver is provided in the bill, provide also that the existing legal-tender silver and gold coins shall be available for redemptions of the proposed new notes until the new coinage is ample therefor, say for one or two years after the date of the enactment and thereafter let the present silver dollars be held for a later determination by Congress as to the permanence of this new valuation, that determination to abide events.

"The bill proposed would fulfill two requirements of the platform referred to. First. It offers equal access to the mints of the United States for gold and silver. Second. It 'safeguards' the 'established parity' in our already vast and prodigiously enlarging domestic-trade demand for money.

"Our silver-certificates afford a slight indication of results. Mere paper titles to legal tender silver dollars deliverable on surrender of the certificate, $330,000,000 of these silver-certificates are now afloat and in banks, as money, in parity with gold."

Special Notices.

INTERIOR WOODWORK AND OFFICE FIXTURES.

Gustav Franke, the well-known manufacturer of fine interior woodwork and office fixtures, has recently set up quite a number of office partitions in oak, mahogany and walnut, and is now at work on an oak office for a bank which is about to move. Mr. Franke also furnished the elaborately carved oak staircase and entrance at the Hotel Recherche, No. 117 West 32d street. The Beer Stube at the same place is also Mr. Franke's construction. It is a fine piece of work, executed in the old German style, with carved panels, wainscot and mantels. The drop ceiling, music balcony, chairs and tables, are all in same style and from Mr. Franke's factory, at No. 30, 32 and 34 South 5th avenue.

ANTINONNIN.

W. H. Schieffelin & Co., well-known wholesale druggists of this city, of No. 170 William street, are recommending a newly-discovered preparation, called Antinonnin, for the extermination of caterpillars and all manner of insects destructive to plants, shrubberry or trees, and rats and mice. The technical name of the stuff is orthodinitrocresolkalium—a name sufficiently ponderous in itself to end the life of any rodent on which it should chance to fall. But notwithstanding its name, the Antinonnin is scientifically declared to be the most effective of insecticides. The class of testimonials adduced in its favor show it to be well worth a trial. It is used in solution of water and may be applied to vegetation with an ordinary watering can, and for rats and mice may be spread on bread or meat, or made into a paste with flour and water.

THE FORMATION OF REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING COMPANIES.

The Jacob & Skinner Realty Co. has been incorporated at Albany with a capital of $50,000. The incorporators are Wm. H. Jacob, Reuben Skinner and Leonard Jacob, Jr. They are now engaged building twelve stables, six on Amsterdam avenue, of which three are finished, and six on East 76th and 77th streets. The formation of companies to transact a real estate and building business promises to be very popular, as recently announced in these columns.

Real Estate Department.

There has been quite an agreeable amount of business consummated in the real estate market this week—more by quite a significant amount than was to have been expected at this time of the year. This fact does not quite harmonize with what some would-be critics of the real estate market are trying to demonstrate, but that is rather the misfortune of the critics than of the market. The disposition in some quarters to show that the real estate market is under serious depression in consequence of the prevailing monetary stringency is as yet without foundation in facts. If there were no unusual financial disturbance, no more business would be expected at this season than has actually been effected, because this is the season of inactivity. Wherefore, any effort to show that the prevailing dullness is due to the financial depression, bespeaks an ignorance of the regular phases of the real estate market. What may come if the financial depression should develop into a widespread and prolonged business panic is quite another question. But there are many evidences that the financial depression has passed its worst stage and that things monetary will continue to improve from now on. If this shall be the case we may look forward with confidence to a strong and active fall market.

Gossip of the Week.

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

Richard V. Harnett & Co. were the brokers in the sale of the Hotel Glenham property this week, by Robert L. Cutting to Henry O. Havemeyer. The property is Nos. 153 and 155 5th avenue, near 20th street, fronts 50 feet on the avenue and contains about 4,800 square feet. Harnett & Co. say the price at which the property was sold was $275,000, the seller taking some Stamford property in exchange at $25,000. It is said the hotel will be razed and an office building be erected on the site.

The four-story brick store, No. 359 6th avenue, next to the northwest corner of 22d street, on lot 27x65, has been sold by the Heller estate to Ehrich Brothers for $126,000, or over $71 per square foot. This property has not changed hands before since 1858, when it was sold for $11,500. The sale to Ehrich Bros. shows an advance of over 1,000 per cent in thirty-five years. This advance is all the more remarkable when it is known that houses only three blocks west on 23d street, which sold in 1868 for $30,000 are selling now for about $25,000 each, or, in other words, a decline of over 16 per cent in property suitable for residential purposes only, against the wonderful increase above mentioned, where the property was in the line for business use.

The premises, Nos. 585 Broadway and 154 Mercer street, with frontage of 29 feet on Broadway and Mercer street x 200 feet deep, have been sold by Emanuel Stern and David Schwartz to Herman Wronkow for under $1[illegible],000. There is a four-story stone front store on Broadway and a one-story building on Mercer street. This property was sold at auction in May, 1881, for $ 41,500. We hear Maurice E. Strauss negotiated the sale.

Broker Maurice E. Strauss has sold for Mitchell A. C. Levy the two five-story flats, 50x about 90x98.9, Nos. 345 and 347 West 23d street, to the Mayer estate for $117,500.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

The lien filed against Sophia Schwab and W. S. Anderson & Co. by B. Goldman for glass set at No. 4 East 14th street is unjust, as the contract was for at least $200 less than what he claims. The money is now in the owners' hands and can be paid at any time.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—Probably no one connected with the trade is greatly surprised that the market for Common Hards has finally made a break. It was due last month according to conventional programme and its delay is an evidence of the large consumption that was for the time being taking place. This week opened with fifty barge loads at the depot, besides sailing vessels on hand or expected, and that was a little paralyzing in itself, but when followed up by additional arrivals of considerable magnitude and some falling away in demand from day to day receives, of course, found themselves in a position where a modification on cost was inevitable. The shading is generally called 25c. per M, because $5 50 is named for a top rate on fancy stock, but as a matter of fact the allowances have been greater because special deals had to be made and buyers knew their advantage It may be well to add that no conditions of quality have contributed to the decline, as the general condition of stock was really good and rather above an average for the season Inquiry as to the causes of shrinkage of demand seem to show natural influences The large structures, into the foundations of which so many bricks are turned, are now about completed and the lessened quantity required for ordinary walls more generally measures the scope of demand, and the chances are believed to favor a still further falling away Exactly how the production is likely to be managed is somewhat doubtful, but as yet there are no open intimations of a desire to shut down on the part of manufacturers, A spell of bad weather might lead to considerable curtailment in the production, but so long as stock can be made and shipped or stored at the yards if needs be, the make will probably continue. Rates have become very dull, and there is considerable stock hanging around unsold, for which $2.50 is about the top rate asked on the best grades, but buyers fail to respond.

LATH.—Conditions were deceptive last week and the market, instead of bracing up and making a recovery, took another downward dip of quite an acute character. There was simply no waiting or natural demand for the additional offerings and an outlet had to be forced, with natural, unavoidable result. The very large quantity of stock noted in our last report was in course of sale distributed among all classes of custom and probably into the hands of every buyer whose trade could be obtained or was wanted, and therefore when receivers found cargoes coming along day after day it was really a serious question to find a place for them The result is that price sold down to $1, and the chances are that is all that could be made now under any further attempt to realize, though the asking basis is 5@10 points higher Further arrivals of Hemlock lath after a search found buyers at $1.75, and considering the state of the market were pretty well sold at that.

LIME —There is practically nothing new this week. Demand continues a little slow, and is not clearing up the supply quite as rapidly as hoped for, while at the same time a few additional arrivals have come along which must be taken care of Those conditions, however, we do not benefit to buyers because of the existing compact in regard to the preservation of uniform prices, and which is claimed to be sufficiently guarded to prevent evasion by any special discount allowances Production and shipments are said to be gauged to what seems to be about the requirements of the market.

LUMBER.—More or less negotiation is taking place of a character similar to that advised one week ago. Sellers feel a natural desire to arrange for the placing of coming supplies and a great many buyers are quite willing to help them; a condition of feeling on both sides of the market that cannot fail to lead to some business. The great difficulty in the way of negotiation, however, is the terms of settlement and, as nothing has yet taken place in the financial situation to warrant relaxation on matter of credits, there is a great deal of custom that has to be held in abeyance or ignored altogether, because of the necessity for extreme caution. As a very large proportion of the deals accomplished are of a sort of special character, there is a great amount of uncertainty regarding the terms, but the general indications are that buyers get many advantages compared with prices at present quoted and, in a general way, the tendency of values is downward. Efforts to curtail shipments to this market have been more or less successful, but not universally so, and there seems to be a feeling that stock enough will be available as the season progresses Some shortage of logs at the mills has been largely neutralized by diminution of demand.

Spruce remains in about the old position. Considerable stock has arrived on contract and also some random, the latter selling in the usual irregular manner, the price being fixed by momentary influence of each respective sale rather than by any general rule. More or less negotiation is still going on over specials and agents say they could increase this line of trade without difficulty if willing to accept all the custom offering, but they still make it a point not to seek much business, because by doing so they would be placed at a disadvantage and compelled to recognize tenders that as matters stand do not come at all, or can be ignored when they do develop. Recent advices from primal points report continued light sawing and claims of a determination to cut nothing except upon orders. The log supply, however, was better than previously reported and holders' ideas thought to be weakening somewhat.

Hemlock gets a little demand all the while from regular sources and it is served at about former cost, though even that means some irregularity as price depends a great deal upon the customer and his proposed methods of settlement. Quantity available seems to be ample, yet not particularly excessive and manufacturers rarely resort to direct pressure to realize.

White Pine is generally quoted as steady, and the selling side expresses the usual confidence in the situation. The present demand, however, is not particularly beneficial to the market as many operators have commenced to receive supplies due on contract, through which they can meet current engagements, and the desire to make fresh deals is limited. Possibly it might be better to say that the ability to enter upon fresh obligations is curtailed, as even toward the best of concerns there is a shyness growing out of the monetary strain that makes business slow. Meanwhile offerings are increasing somewhat, and that possibly has an influence to induce buyers to stand off for such advantage as the action may bring them.

Yellow Pine gets proportionately as much attention as any other class of lumber, but in a general way has the usual unsatisfactory market Sellers can promptly be found for every demand opening up so far as ordinary selection and quality is concerned but the necessities of the period compel closer scrutiny of credit than usual and custom at low figures must have good backing.

Carolina Pine continues to be called for only in quantity sufficient to satisfy immediate consuming wants and a great deal of the dressed stock is drawn from the city mills. Former prices, however, are generally asked, and agents offer stocks with moderation, as manufacturers are keeping production low and preventing further accumulation at the mills as much as possible.

Hardwoods may be called about steady, as the old run of prices is asked and offerings of nearly all kinds of stock are made moderately and carefully The demand, however, does not assist the market much at the moment as buyers of all classes feel in no hurry to increase their obligations, and the majority of them find it very difficult to comply with the suggestions made in regard to terms. From primal markets the reports in most cases come pretty steady and there is strong claims made for poplar in particular, but as a rule there does not seem to be any fear of an advance and buyers incline to get along with a few car lots of stock as necessity may arise.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

The Albany market per Argus as follows:

The lumber market here runs along in an even tenor. There is little change in the situation from last week. Receipts have been a little heavier and there are pretty good assortments now on hand Notwithstanding the general dullness in the trade due to the prevailing financial depression, several houses are ahead on the business for July, which has just been closed up. The past week has been quiet with pine houses but no further unfavorable developments are noted. Quotations for all desirable lots are firm as ever. Customers usually buy from hand to mouth and all orders are kept closely shipped up Large orders are the exception. A prominent dealer, just returned from the west, reports the situation there practically the same for several weeks past. He thinks the lower grades are held a little easier, perhaps, but otherwise there is nothing new. The money stringency is severe. The reports current that the large planing mills here had suspended operations is untrue. Bennett's and others were running to-day. Willard's was shut down, but the stop is believed to be only for a day or two, as frequently happens in midsummer.

Spruce and hemlock are in the old position with prices firm. The market is quiet, with stocks not very large and in good control. One house reports receipts by rail alone of over 7,000,000 feet of spruce Lumber coming this way finds a ready market. Shingles and lath and hardwoods continue steady, and without feature.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

The week has been peculiar for a general abandonment of any claim, previously maintained that the lumber trade is in any other than a state of depression. Extreme hot weather over the greater portion of the country and the failure of important banks in the west have been too much for what little spirit remained in the business. The more sanguine operators who had sustained their courage by persuading themselves that prevalent trouble in finance and trade was only temporary, that business was all that could be expected in midsummer, and that it would soon revive, have succumbed to the general mood, given up the contention against fate, and lapsed into a condition of patient endurance. Perhaps this is the best attitude they could assume under the circumstances. By admitting the worst they are in a position to brace themselves to stand the strain and to take advantage of improvement when it shall come.

Naturally the general sluggishness of the demand for lumber has caused a reduction of prices. In this market the drop from last spring's values on common and cull lumber has been about $2 a thousand stock better than common has not suffered as much, though it is sure that good product can be bought now at prices appreciably lower than those prevalent as lately as May. Besides, the tendency is downward, as can be seen in the recent decline of piece stuff prices in this city both in the yards and on the cargo market.

There is a strong sentiment in favor of the closing down of the saw mills early in the fall, and the forthcoming meeting of the Mississippi Valley Lumbermen's Association will be looked forward to with in terest. It will be impossible, however, to secure an agreement Some of the manufacturers are so situated that they cannot shut down, while others are practically compelled so to do by the financial conditions. * * *

At Chicago:

The price of ordinary tallies of Manistee short piece stuff this week has been $9 75 a thousand. Some of poor tally has sold at $9 50. Mill run—long and short together—has gone at $10 All long would sell for more money if anybody wanted it, but few do.

Common dry inch is worth about $11 a thousand; green $10 to $10.50. Not enough cull inch is coming to make a market on that class of stuff, but doubtless that would sell somewhat lower than previously quoted figures Little or no high grade lumber is arriving.

It is a noteworthy fact that, notwithstanding the cargo market is so dull, and the yard trade is taking lumber grudgingly, weekly receipts are still large when compared to those in any other point in the country. For the week ending July 22, receipts of all kinds of lumber in this city amounted to 43,247,000 as compared to 52,861,000 in a corresponding week last year. This shows a falling off this year for that week of 9,627,000 feet. The figures apply to all kinds of lumber, but the greater bulk is northern pine. The exhibit shows that the lumber movement is still of large proportion despite adverse conditions.

There is a slightly better demand for poplar in the eastern markets and prices are consequently firmer than they were a couple of weeks ago. Buyers who have been awaiting a break in values have apparently at last become convinced that nothing of the kind will occur, and are laying in supplies more freely. The trade is still of a hand to mouth character, but stocks are light at both the retail yards and the factories and the immediate requirement is sufficiently large to make a considerable movement of lumber Compared with the demand three months ago trade is dull, but when general trade conditions are considered the poplar market is active.

There is a much stronger feeling among manufacturers as a result of the meeting at Louisville two weeks ago. The knowledge that dry stock is extremely scarce, and that the supply of logs in sight is not sufficient to make up the shortage this season, will undoubtedly have sufficient force to maintain prices. With an ordinary demand and present conditions of supply, there would probably have been an advance in values on July 1st, and as it is some of the leading manufacturers confidently predict that prices will be from $1 to $3 a thousand higher before next spring. For the present, however, prices are likely to remain about as they are. Mill men are shipping their cuts as fast as it is in condition, but few of them are behind with orders, and for the next two or three months expect to supply all demand comfortably.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman as follows:

It is a matter of indifference to many of the log owners whether some of their drives are hung up this season or not, so far as the need of them for sawing this fall is concerned. As a matter of expense and trouble, however, it means a good deal to them, and it is with considerable satisfaction that they learn for the most part that nearly all their logs will get out into the main river this season, even if they do come slow. A fairly good rainfall in the upper river regions last week did much towards helping things along, and it now looks very probable that the greater portion of the drives would be in a position by the first of August to receive the full benefit of the annual opening up of the government dams at that time. Comparatively speaking, there will be very few logs hung up this year, and when the usually large winter's cut is taken into consideration, this is saying a good deal.

The reports from all lumber manufacturing centres are to the effect that mills are shutting down nights, and in some instances are temporarily suspending operations, awaiting a settled condition af affairs. Buyers are getting more and more cautious and the result is that stocks will be carried in the manufacturers' yards longer than usual. Only where needed for consumption are large orders being placed.

CANADA.

The Monetary Times says:

Dealers in Toronto tell us that trade in sawn lumber has come practically to a standstill, as a result of the financial difficulties across the border. No attempt is being made to push business under the circumstances. Values, however, remain unaltered at spring quotations. There are rumors afloat that some large manufacturers have been tempted to break prices but we believe that they have no foundation. On the other hand, buyers in the east refuse to buy unless they obtain a cut in prices, and thus the matter stands. Stocks in the Eastern states cannot be large, but those coming into the western mills are considerable.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Timber Trade Journal says of Liverpool:

The import is now in full swing, and not only are the usual sailing vessels coming into the docks from Quebec, St. John, and other spruce deal ports, but several large steamers have arrived with full cargoes of spruce, chiefly from St. John, N. B. With but little exception, all these are being rapidly transhipped, either by boat or rail, up the country in fulfillment of contracts already made In a similar position is most of the import of square pine and such like Quebec goods landing from the sailing vessels from that port. Freights are still upon an upward tendency, not only from North American ports, but from the Baltic and White Sea.

The imports have been considerable during the week, and stocks have been allowed to accumulate slightly. American arrivals are reported to several ports, and, while there is no marked activity in large orders, there a fair amount of inquiry. The Greenock Quebec imports are still of no moment. Pine deals to Glasgow continue to drop in in reasonable quantities. The stocks, however, do not come up to excessive quantities. The total imports to Scotland to date for the year are still about 30 per cent under last year.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot finds a moderately active demand only, most of the large consumers being fortified with stock coming to hand on contract and the current call confined to small parcels required for immediate special necessity. Offerings seem to be ample and prices easy, with rumors of business below those generally named. On the average range of valuation we quote at 10 @10¼c. for Lake and 9½@10c for casting brands. Manufactured copper has no new feature worthy of note, the demand and resulting business assuming ordinary trade proportions only, and buyers finding cost quite as low as before all around. We quote as follows: Sheet, not above 30x72 in., 16 oz. and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz., 23c.; do, 12 to 14 oz., 24c.; do, 10 to 12 oz., 25c.; do, 8 to 10 oz., 28c.; do under 8 oz, 30c. Sheets longer than 72 inches add 1c. for 12@14 oz., 2c. for 10@12 oz. and 3c. for 8@10 oz. Sheets, not above 30x96 in., 16 oz and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 24c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 26c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 30c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 33c. Sheets longer than 96 inches 22c. for over 32 oz, and add 1c. for 16 to 32 oz.; 1c. 14 to 16 oz.; 1c. 12 to 14 oz, 1c. for 10 to 12 oz., and 12c. for 8 to 10 oz. Sheets, not above 48x96 32 to 64 oz, 22c.; do, 16 to 32 oz, 24c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 26c. to 12 to 14 oz, 28c.; do, 10 to 12 oz. 32c. Sheets wider than 48x96 and longer, 22@25c. for 32 to 64 oz.; 25@2[illegible]c. for 16 to 32 oz, 27@29c. for 14 to 16 oz. and 29@34c. for 12 to 14 oz. All bath tub sheets, per lb., 16 oz. 24c.; 14 oz, 26c.; 12 oz, 27c.; and 10 oz, 29c. Bolt copper, ⅝ inch diameter and over, 22c. Circles, segments and pattern sheets, 60 diameter and less, 3c. above price of sheets of same thickness; circles, 60 to 96 do do, 4c. do: circles, 96 do and over, 5c. do. Cold or hard rolled copper, 1@2c. per lb. above the foregoing prices. Copper bottoms, 26@32c. per lb IRON—American Pig is called for as ordinary wants of the regular trade may arise, but no large deals are making, and notwithstanding the effort to diminish production, there is plenty of stock available. Competition to sell it, too, is keen, and prices generally rule easy for all grades. We quote at $14.00@15.00 per ton for No. 1 X foundry; $13.00@14.00 for No. 2 X do. and $11.75@12.50 for Gray Forge. Old material does not appear to be in excessive supply but there is plenty of it, for the continued moderate demand and prices generally are weak and irregular. We quote at $16.00@16.50 for old iron rails; $15.00@16.50 for No. 1 wrought scrap; $11.50@12.50 for cast scrap, 13.50@14 for old car wheels, and $6.50@10.00 for borings, stove plate, etc. Manufactured iron shows no really new features. The store trade is of a most unimporiant character and the structural iron companies are not adding much to their line of contracts at the moment. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary size, at 1.80@1.90c. from store, and refined at 1.90@2.20c; Rods round and square, 2.10@2.20c.; Bands, 2.20@2.30c.; Norway Nail Rods, 3¾@4c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 3.00@—c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1.10c. less on large lots from car steel rails, it is said, have met with rather more inquiry of a tentative character of late, but no great amount of accomplished business is reported. Light weights are irregular, but regulation size rules about steady. We quote standard sections $29 per ton at mill, with usual advances for delivery at tide water Pig lead has found a fluctuating market mainly influenced by the necessities of sellers, with efforts to realize at times a little pronounced. Buyers, in consequence, retained the major portion of advantage and values at the close are still somewhat weak. We quote at 3.35@3.40c. per lb. The manufactures of lead are quoted at 6¼c. per Pipe, 7c. for Sheet, 15c. for Tin-lined Pipe, and 37½c. for Block Tin Pipe. Pig tin in trade demand is handled with a great deal of conservatism and merely in small lots for current use. The speculative element appears to be in a hesitating mood, and frequent fluctuation in value was the result, but holders of the supply have pretty good control and disclaim any intention of making much of an effort to realize at the moment We quote at about 18.75@18.80c. for round lots, and 19@19½c. for jobbing parcels Tin plates has no important movement. There is now and then a little demand for ordinary store parcels to keep up assortment, but beyond that buyers do not care to move Offerings generally plentiful and prices irregular, with average tendency in buyers' favor. We quote as follows: I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment Melyn grade, $6.35@6.37½, each additional X add $1.50; I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Allaway grade, $5.60@5.65, each additional X add $1; Charcoal terne, M. F. grade, 14x20, $7.35@7.40; M. F. grade, 20x28, nominal; Worcester, 14x20, $5.70@5.75; Worcester, 20x28, $11 35@11.40; Dean grade, 14x20, $5.30@5.37½; Dean grade, 20x28, $10.50@10.70; D. R. D. grade, 14x20, $5.10@5 15; D. R. D. grade, 20x28, $10.10@10.15; I. C. Coke, Penlan grade, 5.30@5.35; J. B. grade, 14x20, 5.40@5 45; I. C. Bessemer steel, squares, $5.40@—— basis; I. C. Siemens steel, squares $5.65@—— basis Spelter has not secured much attention from any source of late; the offering was pretty full and prices more or less to buyers' favor for all deliveries We quote 3.90@4c. for Common Western, according to brand.

NAILS.—Trade is slow and unsatisfactory still, and all hands much dissatisfied with the market. Production has been much curtailed, all the wire nail mills in the country being reported shut down, but there is an ample supply of stock for the outlet, and sellers very well pleased to accept former rates. We quote Cut at $1.05@1.25 per keg for car lots and $1.35@1.45 per keg for parcels from store for iron, and add 3c. per keg for steel: Wire, $1.50@1.55 at mills, and $1.80@1.85 from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC. In some cases there is report of a slightly increased business, the result mainly of regular custom compelled to obtain some renewals of working assortments, yet nothing like animation is shown, and the market as a whole is stupid. A great many localities ordinarily dependent upon this market are known to be quite scantily supplied even with thoroughly staple goods, but the desire to avoid obligations beyond the most imperative necessity restrains buyers from placing orders against future trade requirements. As near as possible manufacturers gauge the production to the outlet, and first hand supplies are by no means plentiful, but it is a difficult matter to run affairs upon a profitable basis, and in many cases plants are kept running on reduced time for the purpose of retaining the services of skilled workmen. In the matter of prices, former list rates are, as a rule, retained, but as a matter of fact a great deal of irregularity prevails and mainly to the advantage of buyers. No official notification of a change in White Lead has been given out. Corroders' rates stand as follows: Lead in oil in kegs and dry lead in kegs in lots of less than 500 lbs., 7¼c. net; in lots of 500 lbs. to 5 tons at one purchase, 6¾c.; 5 tons to 12 tons, one purchase, 6⅝c.; 12 tons and over, one purchase, 6½c.; kegs. Lead in oil in 12½ lb. tin pails, add 1c.; in 25 and 50 lb. tin pails, add ½c.; and in 1 to 5 lb. tin cans, assorted (100 lbs. in case) add 2½c. per lb. to keg price. Terms on lots on 500 lbs. and over, note or acceptance at sixty days, or 2½ per cent. discount will be allowed for cash paid within fifteen days of invoice date. To make either of the above required quantities any assortment of packages of white lead, red lead and litharge may be counted. The above quotations are free on board cars or boat at corroding point. Linseed Oil has fair average trade demand, but shows no approach to animation, and there is plenty of stock for wants of market, with cost averaging very much as before. We quote on general range at 48@49c. for Western, 50@51c. for City from domestic seed, and 62@63c. for do. from Calcutta seed. Spirits Turpentine has slow, uncertain sale; the offerings appear to be increasing and the general tone of the market is weak. We quote at 26½@27½c per gallon, according to quality, quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—Business continues moderately active only, and about all the demand developed comes from buyers wanting small parcels for immediate requirements. Supplies are plenty enough for the market as it stands, and prices remain nominally steady. We quote Tar at $1 90@1 95 in pine or Wilmington bbls., $2.00@2.05 in pork bbls., and $3.70@3.75 in oil bbls.. Pitch $1 50@1.70

IT is hardly possible that the strength of the stock market can endure unless something be done to relieve the situation. Business is as entirely at a standstill as it can be among seventy million, more or less, of people who continue to eat and drink and rub holes in their clothes. In the Northwest and South, there is uncertainty in regard to the means for moving the crops; in the East and Middle States, mills and works are shutting down in all directions and in the West, particularly the mining regions, there is such a stagnation as was never seen before, since the land was taken from the Indian. This means armies of unemployed everywhere. In any part of the country can be seen anxious and dreary little parties of workmen and their families moving from one place where there is no work to another where there is nothing to do. The loss of wages which this means practically paralyzes retail business and so on up to the manufacturer. On the railroads, this condition of things results in splendidly equipped Pullman cars traveling across the country with not enough passengers in them to pay their running expenses; with long lines of empty freight cars on the side tracks and with the wholesale discharge of men in every department. Railroad securities cannot advance in the face of such a showing, and in despite of the losses that future returns of earnings must show. Railroads learn something in the ways of economical management, but do not make money by laying up rolling stock and discharging hands; to do that they must work both to the fullest extent and best advantage. Worst of all, Congress, true to its traditions, is showing itself to be an obstacle to improvement. Now, there is still time for a fall business if Congress will do the one thing needful to revive confidence in the great money centres of the country, repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman Act of 1890. This would bring out currency hoards and revive the confidence of foreign investors quicker than anything else. While it may be a disputed question whether there is enough money for the full commercial needs of the country, there cannot be a moment's question of the fact that if proper employment were given to all we now have, the face of things would be immediately changed for the better, and there would be more opportunity and the public would be in a better frame of mind to give calm deliberation to the selection of the best form of currency to meet the needs of the nation's business. The paramount need is to induce that which we have to seek immediate employment. If this be delayed and business continues stagnant for a month or two longer a most serious condition will arise. A large proportion of the laboring population will be without means and the winter upon them. The recent strength of the market has been based upon the relief found in Europe on overselling and other things temporary in their effects. To maintain and enlarge this requires an agency of more power and duration. To all this there is, however, a silver lining, and this is the dark hour before dawn. In 1857 when all the banks in the State of New York suspended specie payments, by which act they violated their charters, and bank stocks tumbled from 200 in some cases to as low as 15 and 20, it looked as though the end had come and it took a courageous man to buy a share at any price. There were a few long-headed men, however, who bought largely of bank stocks, though as they afterwards confessed they didn't at the time see their way out, they only felt that somehow a way would come, and it did. The Legislature shortly afterward met and passed an enabling act which restored the banks to all their rights and privileges, and in a very short time the prices of bank stocks rose by leaps and bounds as fast as they had previously tumbled.

COMMERCIAL and financial conditions abroad remain practically unaltered, although there are one or two significant indications which are of interest to us at home: one is the recognition in London that the monetary stringency in the United States is adversely affecting the English markets; the other, a wakening of doubt as to the wisdom of the step taken by the Indian Government in closing its mints against the free coinage of Silver. The first of these is not likely to be without influence in aiding this country to obtain gold in London, particularly at this moment when English requirements for internal circulation are usually large. The Bank, however, is in a strong position to meet demand, its stock of bullion being about £29,000,000, against £26,000,000 a year ago. The opinion a week ago was that perhaps two millions could be spared for America and that the Bank of France could also easily extend aid, its stock of gold being much above the average. It is evident, however, that the monetary relief which we can obtain from Europe save under pressure is limited. London is expecting dearer money. As to the Indian currency question there are as with us apparently two camps of opinion. This is not to be wondered at when one reads the conflicting evidence given by experts before the Indian Currency Committee. On one hand it was asserted that the fall in exchange stimulated Indian export trade, on the other this statement was as emphatically denied. Some characterized the fluctuations in exchange as "intolerable evils," others declared that they had found no difficulty in protecting themselves against any adverse effect of variation. Opposition of opinion went even so far as to question whether rupee prices in India have risen or fallen. Some judges—and good judges too—declared India to be sinking deeper and deeper into poverty, others—with judgment of equal weight—were certain that the country was never so prosperous. It is needless to point out that if the Government did not possess some more certain ground for action than was afforded by this evidence, the step taken deserves to be characterized, as it is in London, as "a step in the dark." The Economist says: "The experiment of the Government has been made under conditions of doubt and difficulty, and as to how it will turn out no one can yet form any trustworthy opinion." The progress of this "experiment" then is well worth the attention of our people for, plainly, failure would certainly make England far more friendly to silver than she has been in the past. Argentine's affairs, an improvement in which might by reflection be of benefit to us, seem to be going from worse to worse. The political situation is chaotic, and the new Finance Minister is candid enough to declare that the task put upon him is a crushing one. It is of interest to notice that he announces himself a convert to protection, not only as a new source of revenue which the country positively needs, but to give root to nascent industries.

UP to we may say the present point the real estate market has fortunately been in a position to view the existing monetary stringency, not of course with unconcern, but with a degree of equanimity probably impossible to any other trade. This has been due to the happy circumstance that the acutest stage of the financial crisis happens to be coincident with the period when even under the most favorable circumstances transactions in real estate are practically at a standstill. But, now, when the opening of the fall season is scarcely more than one month distant, the trade is naturally beginning to evince solicitude as to what the future course of events will bring, particularly when in no direction in the commercial world can even the clearest sight detect any real certainty. The condition of our affairs everywhere is problematic, dubious, strained. The only reason why real estate is not sharing positively the general tension is that it is dominant. Recent foreclosure sales, however, are significant of what would be prevalent were we now in an active season. Of course, between to-day and the first or middle of September a great many things are possible. It is quite on the cards that the rapid turn of affairs which many are expecting may happen. There is abundant that is promising in the situation to warrant it, indeed the existing stringency is to so large an extent the outcome of what may be called a damming up that it is hard to conceive how the restraining forces which have been operant for months past can be loosened without producing a more or less violent recoil. The state of the country is not such that a long process of reconstruction is necessary to produce prosperity. A very slight return of confidence might result in bringing out much of the vast sums of money now hoarded or locked up, and any action by Congress assuring the stability of our monetary system would attract the foreigner again to American securities. Money easy, higher prices would result, and factories now closed or closing would resume work under most favorable conditions. But the difficulty is to say whether improvement to this extent may reasonably be looked for by the time the Fall real estate market begins. If yes, business can be recommenced at something close to the point where it was suspended for the summer. If not, realty must perforce come down to the level of other commodities. Events making in this direction have already happened. Insurance companies have advanced their rates, as stated elsewhere, to the legal limit and are peremptorily refusing to make new loans. Under such conditions the sale of real estate at the figures prevailing last spring will be out of the question. Big concessions to purchasers will be necessary and stagnation will be inevitable. How the market will open depends upon the events of the next four weeks.

WHATEVER the immediate outcome of the present financial troubles may be, one thing can be easily and surely predicted, that the rate for money in 1894 is likely to be extraordinarily low, a condition which will be of benefit to those who have or are likely to want mortgages on real estate. This fact should also be held in view by those who are now purchasing railroad stocks for investment. The Lake Shore, for instance, will in the next few years have a large amount of 7 per cent bonds come due, these can be easily funded at a rate not to exceed 4 per cent, the difference going into the pockets of the stockholders. It is the same with the St. Louis, Alton & Terra Haute Co. which has next year some $6,700,000 of 7 per cent bonds which, if it can float a new mortgage at 4 or 4½ per cent, will put into the pockets of the holders of the junior securities the difference and probably make the common stock now quoted at 25 to 30 a regular 4 per cent security. The Union Pacific is likely to benefit materially next year from a low rate for money, as it not only has the chance of settling with the Government, but in addition will in 1896 to 1899 have some $27,000,000 of 6 per cent bonds coming due, which can be legitimately funded at lower rates, and in addition has over $15,000,000 of collateral 6 per cent notes to fund in the immediate future.

THE President's message to Congress was precisely what everybody that was not in search of the queer and unnecessary should have expected. It was such a document as any sober-minded, well-instructed responsible person would have written, and we may see what strange ideas our people have of their "statesmen" when Press and Public are filled with a sort of surprised admiration, because the Chief Magistrate of the nation did not indulge in politics and partisanship or make incursions into the region of doubtful or foggy monetary theory at a crisis when prompt positive action upon certain ground is more needed than anything else. Cleveland has demonstrated again that his strength lies in the direction of "horse-sense"—a mental quality which is probably of more value at this moment than any other. Safety just now lies in seeing clear and thinking straight, and in the deliberate suppression or postponement of all the more debatable questions. "The first thing first" should be the rule of action.

WE cannot feel at all sure, however, that this course will be followed in Congress. Certainly it will not be followed if our "statesmen" have their own way. The opportunity is a great one for vagary, the vaporing of ignorance, and windy theorizing through the mazes of inconsequentialness, and it will be only under the stern suppression of a positive public command that it will be allowed to slip by. What Sydney Smith said of the Corn Law may be said of the Silver Question; it has divided people into two classes: those that can think and those that cannot. Nine-tenths of those that are talking just now are distinctly to be placed in the latter category. The first step, and that at the present moment is the only step, is to repeal the Sherman Act. This, however, we do not think can be accomplished unconditionally. The Silver party is strong enough at Washington, not indeed to defeat repeal, but what is really the essence of danger in the situation, defer it.

Recent Legal Decisions.

ATTEMPT TO PUNISH AS FOR A CONTEMPT OF COURT FOR INTERPOSING A FRIVOLOUS DEFENSE TO FORECLOSURE PROCEEDINGS.

An effort, the first of its kind, it is said, was recently made to punish a mortgagor for contempt of court in interposing a frivolous defense to a foreclosure proceeding. The facts were of a peculiarly aggravating character to the mortgagee. The suit was that of John F. Betz against Peter Buckel et al., in the Superior Court. But Charles Johnson, the Brooklyn saloon-keeper and sporting man, is the only defendant against whom the contempt proceedings were directed.

Johnson interposed a defense of the original proceeding, thus necessitating a trial, at much delay, but had his defense thrown out by Judge McAdam, with costs adjudged against him personally "for having unreasonably and unwarrantably defended the action." Then upon the sale of the property he bid it in at $102,000 over and above the first mortgage and interest, and signed the auctioneer's terms of sale. But he refused thereafter to pay the ten per cent cash payment, giving as an excuse that some one who was to have joined with him in the purchase was unable or unwilling now to do so. Upon this state of facts the court ordered that the property be again offered for sale and that Johnson pay any deficit that might result from the price bid by him upon such resale together with all the cost of the resale.

A deficit did result of $15,722.45, and Johnson refusing to pay it counsel for the plaintiff, Lawyer Abraham L. Jacobs, moved that Johnson be compelled "to pay to the plaintiff the sum of $15,722.45, the deficiency arising between the first and second sales of the mortgaged premises in this action, and interest thereon, etc., and in default thereof that he be punished as and for a contempt of court."

Judge Gildersleeve, in an opinion rendered July 11, said: "The plaintiff is clearly entitled to a decree of this court directing Johnson to pay to him the above sum. It appears, however, that Johnson is utterly insolvent, and that such a decree will be of little value to the plaintiff. Anticipating Johnson's default, plaintiff asks that in the event thereof Johnson be punished as for a contempt of court." The Judge held that such failure by Johnson to pay, on order of the court, would not constitute a contempt for which he could be punished. Lawyer Jacobs applied for and secured a reargument of the case, but with the result only of securing a repetition of the original holding by Judge Gildersleeve. The Judge held that "the plaintiff is clearly entitled to an order directing Johnson to pay that specific sum. Upon such an order being made, an execution can be issued to collect it. The order should be regarded, for the purposes of its collection, as a judgment in all respects. Where an execution may issue, no attachment to punish for contempt in not paying money can be used." Lawyer Jacobs said he would appeal from this decision.

The Mortgage Debt on New York Realty.

OVER $600,000,000 PAST DUE.—INTERVIEWS WITH PRESIDENTS OF LOANING INSTITUTIONS AS TO THE PROBABILITY OF ITS BEING CALLED IN.

To be forewarned is to be forearmed. It is the unexpected that causes trouble and disaster. The special application of these proverbs at this time is to the conditions governing real estate loans. Owners of and dealers in real estate have been inquiring recently about the prospects of an extensive calling in of loans on real estate by savings banks, insurance companies and other loaning institutions. It is the proud boast of the advocate of real estate investments that in the financial panic which has seized upon the country and set the values of all movable properties bobbing up and down like corks on a turbulent sea real estate has remained firm and unyielding—its values unaffected by the disturbances on its surface.

And yet there is—there always is—a magazine under the real estate market which could be exploded at any time and which, if it should be exploded, would inevitably spread a greater wrack and ruin broadcast than is possible by the financial storms which only ravage the surface movables. For real estate is the foundation of all wealth, and real estate values are at the base of all values. The man who has his wealth in unincumbered real estate is best prepared of all men to view with imperturbable calmness the passing of a financial tempest. But even in opulent New York City the number of men whose wealth is represented in unincumbered real estate is exceedingly small. Under ordinary business conditions unincumbered New York City real estate is an expensive luxury; it is cheaper and more profitable for a man to employ his money in commerce or manufactures—or in incumbered real estate—because, in such times, money is easily obtained on real estate security.

Because this is true it happens that a large proportion of the real estate of New York City is incumbered up to an average of 50 per cent of its value—and therein exists the magazine. The larger proportion of the mortgages representing these incumbrances are held by the trustees of estates of deceased persons, by private investors and by the savings banks and insurance companies of the city—financial institutions that are authorized by law to lend money on real estate security. The savings banks are authorized to lend up to 65 per cent of the total amount of their deposits on bond and mortgage security on New York City real estate. As a matter of fact they have only about 41 per cent of their deposits so invested. The law places no limit on the amount that a trust company or insurance company is so privileged to lend.

A careful computation of the amount of money loaned on real estate in New York City shows that there is now due upon such loans to

Savings banks	$159,751,568
Trust Companies (including the Title Guarantee and Trust Co)	9,484,555
Safe Deposit Companies	100,000
Insurance Companies (estimated)	65,000,000
Title and Casualty Insurance Companies	1,134,172
Total	$235,470,295

The average of loans made to banks, insurance and trust companies during the last three years has been not quite 33⅓ per cent of the whole. Assuming that average to be right as to the total mortgage incumbrance on real estate in this city (it is undoubtedly the highest justifiable), the amount loaned by private individuals, trustees of estates and of other institutions, is $470,940,590, which, added to the above total, gives an approximate grand total of $706,410,885 due on mortgages on New York City real estate. The appraised valuation of this real estate for taxable purposes for the current year is $1,562,583,893. Assuming this appraised valuation to represent 60 per cent of the actual market valuation, we find the actual market valuation of New York City taxable real estate to be $2,604,306,990, and that this is incumbered with mortgage debts to the extent of 27 per cent of its value.

Of this vast amount of mortgage indebtedness, by far the greater part (one of the savings banks' presidents placed it at seven-eighths of the whole amount) is past due and subject to call by the lenders at any time. That is, the mortgages upon which the money was loaned were made all along during the last forty years, and the loans have been continued right along under the original security, without renewal or new mortgages. So that it appears that about $618,000,000 of the money loaned on mortgages of New York City real estate is subject to call at any time, on not more than thirty days' notice. This sum is about equal to half of the whole volume of money composing the circulating medium of the United States at this time.

But for the purposes of the present inquiry, it is not necessary to take into consideration any except the loans made by the savings banks. The other lenders—the trustees of estates, private persons, insurance companies and title guarantee companies are not threatened by any such calls upon their cash resources as the savings banks have been, and are not, therefore, exposed to the immediate necessity of realizing upon their resources. That some of them, especially the insurance companies, are taking advantage of the opportunity presented by the monetary stringency to squeeze their customers as much as the law allows, is true. But this is one of the things to be expected in any such period, and those who cannot help themselves must put up with the treatment they are receiving and seek their redress when their turn comes round again.

It is because of the demand made by some of the savings bank depositors for their money—manifestly in consequence of the panicky feeling that is so widespread, that the fear has been expressed that the savings banks would soon or late be forced to call in their real estate loans. Manifestly, any such proceeding would be disastrous to real estate owners. With the money market in its present condition it would be practically impossible for owners to raise the money to meet such a demand, even if it extended to only ten per cent of all the overdue loans. But, to be forewarned is to be forearmed, and in order to prepare its readers for any possible contingency of this character, by information from the best possible sources, THE RECORD AND GUIDE has interviewed the presidents of all the leading savings banks and some of the representative brokers, and the presidents of the title insurance companies. In some instances a special sensitiveness about seeing their names in print has resulted in an agreement on the part of the reporter to withhold the name, but the individual in all such instances was of representative character, and had special and sufficient reasons for imposing this condition.

President C. H. Kelsey, of the Title Guarantee and Trust Co., said:

"There is not yet much disposition shown to call in mortgages. A good many mortgagors, however, are being notified that the interest on their past due mortgages will have to be increased if the mortgages are to remain. Generally this increase is submitted to, as the customary mortgage lenders are becoming infected by the reluctance to part with money, and it is hard to replace the mortgages.

"If there should be a general calling in of mortgages, while the amount ready to be loaned on mortgage is so small it would simply be fruitless. The mortgagors could not pay if they were refused new loans, and the lenders who persisted in their calls would simply bring the whole house down upon their own heads.

"I see no reason for calling in mortgage loans and do not believe there will be a general call. The present troubles are so purely the result of a widespread and senseless scare that they are likely to right themselves very quickly when once common sense has its sway again.

"Those who call in good mortgage loans are likely to get their money just as the whole excitement has subsided and find no good use for it when they get it."

Mr. John Harsen Rhoades, President of the Greenwich Savings Bank, said there was nothing in the present situation to warrant the opinion that there would be any general calling in of real estate loans. "So far as the scare among the savings bank depositors is concerned," said Mr. Rhoades, "that is practically over. No, there is nothing in the conditions forced upon the banks by that scare to require any calling in of mortgage loans. The savings banks of this city and State will not disturb their real estate loans unless the process of liquidation now going on shall continue to such an extent as to cause a depreciation of the values of real estate.

"While that is the proper answer, in general terms, to your question, it would be well to bear in mind a few of the contingencies that hinge upon the near future. If this liquidation should continue for sixty days and the suspension and failure of commercial houses and banks is not stopped, you may look with certainty to an advance in the rate of interest on real estate loans to 5 per cent. Yes, I am aware that some of the loaning institutions have already advanced their rates to 6 per cent—the legal limit—but none of the savings banks have gone to that extreme as yet, and I do not think they will. But I have never yet seen a business depression or genera financial disturbance that did not sooner or later reach real estate, and I have no doubt but that real estate will have to bear its legitimate share of the burden that has fallen upon the country. Values will have to go down, to some degree, even under the most favorable circumstances. And why should not real estate suffer from the same influences that have produced such a shrinkage in the values of all other forms of property?

"True, New York City realty has in recent years taken on a more stable character than formerly, and in general is less liable to fluctuations in market value than land in other parts of the country. Much of it is held in strong hands by people who have no need of selling at any time and who are amply able to carry their property through any panic that is likely to befall this country. But they are only a small proportion of the holders of New York City real estate, and the large majority are willing to sell whenever they can do so to advantage. With the great majority of business men real estate is a secondary form of investment. They use their money primarily in their business and in its extension and enlargement, and only invest in real estate from their surplus profits. If there was any sale for real estate to-day, you would find plenty of such owners ready to part with their holdings at cost.

"Now, if this almost universal liquidation should continue for any great length of time, what would probably result would be this: the lenders on past due mortgages would begin to scrutinize their mortgages and wherever they thought the security was weakened by depreciation they would call in a part of the loan—say on a $10,000 loan they might require the borrower to pay $1,000, and on a $5,000 loan, $500—and so on, thereby getting in a portion of their outstanding money and strengthening the security of that which is left outstanding. This I say would be the probable course of procedure if the present liquidation should continue—but only, in the case of the savings banks, as a last resourse. No, I do not think there is any danger that we will come to that.

"If Congress could only see that all that is demanded of it now is the repeal of the purchase clause of the Sherman law, and would do just that alone and do it promptly and then go home, this panic would stop right off. It makes no difference what the real causes of the present trouble are, the people have gotten it into their minds that it is the accumulation of silver under the operation of the Sherman law that is causing all the trouble and their confidence will be restored when that cause is done away with. Then money will come out of its hiding-places and business will resume as before.

"A panic quickly wears itself out, and unless the people down at Washington shall resharpen its edge and give it new cause for continuance the country will be in good business shape again within a few weeks. The hard experience through which the country has already passed has prepared it for a rapid recovery and a new era of prosperity. The financial clouds are edged deeply with a silver lining. The outflow of gold has been stopped and the current is turned the other way, and I do not doubt but that before the present influx ceases $50,000,000 will have come back to us from Europe. Then there has been a tremendous stoppage of import orders; merchants in every branch of the import trade have been cabling abroad—'Do not send us a dollar's worth of goods until further orders.' That will result in a very material diminution of the annual imports and the consequent commercial indebtedness abroad. Then the shutting down of our domestic manufactories for longer or shorter periods, in connection with our decreased imports, will result in a clearing out of all our existing stocks, and by another season there will be a famine of goods. That will draw money out of its hiding places Then, again, this country is to-day the bargain counter of the world. Our agricultural products are so cheap that buyers are after them from all quarters of the world, and we are selling and shipping them abroad as fast as steamers can be obtained for it. And the prices of corporate properties in Wall Street were never so attractive as now. In return we are bound to get paid in gold. All these causes working together will produce such a revulsion of our conditions, such an influx of money to the markets as will start every industry anew and with an accumulated energy from the present depression. That is the bright side of the picture. Whether we shall realize it depends upon what Congress does in the next few weeks."

Mr. Rhoades is not a monometallist. He believes that silver is necessary to the moneys of the world. He does not believe that Government has any right to issue its notes as money, nor to put any limit upon the coinage of either gold or silver. Its duty in the latter respect would be fulfilled by ascertaining and prescribing a ratio between the two metals, leaving to commerce the natural function of maintaining their parity or revealing the difference. He believes Government will be forced to issue bonds for money to meet its natural requirements within the next year and says the issue ought to be large enough to refund a considerable part of the present debt; that the bonds ought to be a long time issue and to bear a low rate of interest. They would be taken by the national banks and become the basis of a national bank circulation.

President Andrew L. Soulard, of the German-American Real Estate Title Guarantee Company, said: "There is still a great deal of uncertainty about the future, which makes it difficult to answer your question without conditions. But I am inclined to think that the worst of this panic is over, and if there is to be any calling in of mortgage loans it will come from the savings banks. The big institutions that are among the largest lenders on bond and mortgage have ceased making any loans at less than 6 per cent and have advanced their interest rate on all or nearly all their past due mortgages to 6 per cent. Of course, there has been great indignation among their borrowers, but there is this to say for the insurance companies: the money is undoubtedly worth much more to them under present conditions than 6 per cent, and it is 'business' for them to do as they have done. They are impelled to take the course they have by the rivalry that exists between them; and, doubtless, their policyholders will not find fault if as a result of this policy their dividends are increased. I have not advanced the interest rate on any of our loans, even when money has been worth 12 per cent to me—because I do not believe in making the situation any harder for our customers than it actually is. Some who have had their interest raised have come to me to ask what they should do. I have advised them that they had better pay the increased rate for the present and trust to the near future for an opportunity to refund their loans at a lower rate of interest.

"Do I look for a speedy recovery from the present panic, and a free loan market? Yes, I do. If, as seems very likely, the crops move as usual and the silver repeal measure is passed, the conditions which gave rise to this panic will be done away with and confidence will be restored. Then the money that is stuck away in its hiding places will come forth and there will be a large influx of foreign capital; money will be so plentiful that there will be difficulty in employing all of it, and interest rates will be lower than ever. Still, it is in the power of Congress to prevent this recovery. But I look for a short session and the passage of a compromise measure, which will be generally satisfactory. Of course, if this panic continues, and there is no early recovery of confidence, it will break every merchant and every business man as well as have a disastrous effect on real estate, and we'll all go down in one common pool.

"I think the change for the better will be felt about the 1st of November. Why do I fix that date? Because I allow ten or fifteen days for the continuation of the unsettled conditions and the clear demonstration of what Congressional action will be. Then time for the gradual settlement of financial affairs to accommodate the movement of crops and to conform to the new conditions—the cancellation of import orders, etc. That will brings about a settled condition of business on the new basis in the latter part of October. Then I believe the revival will begin."

President Merritt Trimble, of the Bleecker street Bank for Savings, which has $20,432,300 invested in mortgage loans, said that out of over 116,000 depositors in his bank not 3,000 had called for their money. The serving of notices had gradually ceased and was now almost over. In answer to the reporter's inquiry he said there was a very small probability that the savings banks would call in any part of their real estate loans. All the savings banks were doubtless prepared with money to meet all the demands that would be made on them for money at the expiration of the periods of notice and had not been required to realize on more than a portion of their Government bonds. Naturally, they would first try to realize on their bonds, because they were of a character more easily and promptly negotiable than real estate securities. But if worse came to worst the banks would probably begin a scrutiny of their mortgages and single out the least desirable and call upon the borrowers for at least a partial payment of their loans. Mr. Trimble said the interest on the loans made by the Bleecker street bank had been paid as promptly this year as ever. He thought the resort to their real estate securities for money would only be made after other sources had been exhausted. But, generally speaking, he felt that real estate values would have to come down. "Real estate," he said, "is the last to feel the depressing effects of a financial stringency, but there has never been a panic that real estate did not share in its burdens, and real estate does not recover as quickly from such a depression as other properties. I do not feel sanguine about the immediate future of real estate. I feel sure that there must be a decline from present prices before there will be any extensive trading. Yes, I will admit, that if there is a very speedy recovery from the present panic, and money becomes plentiful in the loan market, real estate will feel the effects of the panic but mildly. But prices, especially of vacant property, have been very high and although, as you say, they have been based upon income capacity, still, the income of real estate is going to be affected in some measure and consequently prices will come down. With business throughout the country in its present condition would you buy real estate at its present prices? I think not. Property of other kinds would be a better purchase. Of course, the proper policy for holders of real estate is to hold on to it until values are restored, as they are sure to be. But there will be many to whom money will be worth so much more in their business than it is in real estate that they will be willing to sacrifice some of the original cost for the sake of a quick conversion into ready money. That will bring down prices. And it will do no harm to have prices come down to a new basis. The quicker this is realized the sooner will come the recovery, and renewed building and trading activity. But as to the calling in of mortgage loans—no, that will be done only as a last recourse, and things have got to be a great deal worse than they are now before that will be forced upon us."

At the German Savings Bank was seen the only evidences of a scare among the depositors. At no other bank was there any considerable number of people serving notices of their intention to withdraw deposits. That feature of the panic has already disappeared from all other savings banks. But for some unaccountable reason, the Germans, who constitute the greater part of the German Savings Bank's depositors, and who are ordinarily less prone to unreasonable excitability and panic, are still giving their savings institution a good deal of trouble. There were about eighty depositors in line with their books before the teller's window when THE RECORD AND GUIDE reporter called. All this is of course the evidence of a senseless and ignorant fright. There is hardly a stronger or better conducted financial institution in the country. Of its total assets of $32,810,366 11 (as per last examination by the State bank examiner), $16,880,033.33 is invested in real estate loans in New York City.

President Philip Bissinger was in a very cheerful frame of mind notwithstanding the excitement evident in the outer office. "Oh, that is already declining," he said. "Our people are getting ashamed of themselves and I have no doubt a few more days will see the end of this scare among them." To the question: "What, in your opinion, is the probability of any general calling in of mortgage loans, by the savings banks?" Mr. Bissinger retorted: "Is the world coming to an end? Is the country going to the dogs? Nonsense! Not until the bottom drops out of everything; not until such a financial cataclysm overtakes the world as we have never seen is anything of that sort likely to happen. Why have the savings banks got United States Government bonds, and New York City bonds and other readily negotiable securities, if they are going to rely on real estate loans for ready money in a time like this? No, sir! All other resources will first be exhausted. But what is the use of talking about it; there is no condition of things to justify any such fear. Just think for a minute. If the demand for money should ever reach any such extreme who would be left to buy the real estate? Borrowers could not pay off their loans and any general attempt to foreclose on them would break every financial institution in the country—yes, they would go to smash in universal wreck before that stage would be reached.

"So you see we are all concerned in keeping things in order as they are. The depositors would be the worst losers in case of any such general collapse. It is to their interests to keep their heads clear and foster our resources rather than get excited and sacrifice them. Yes, matters are visibly improving. If Congress repeals the purchase clause of the silver law—no matter what else they do, business will soon resume its normal conditions and money will be easy."

President John Tiebout, of the Dry Dock Savings Institution, said: "Before we come to that pass the country will have gone to the bow-wows. No, sir, there are no indications whatever that we will have to call in any of our mortgage loans. We have other resources, more readily negotiable, sufficient to supply us with money for any probable exigency." This institution has assets of $20,690,324.94, of which $9,158,800 is invested in real estate loans. Interest is made payable on February 1st and August 1st; and of the interest due on August 1st over 93 per cent had been paid on August 8th—which is a better than average payment.

At the Bowery Savings Bank, which has $54,543,617.27, only $16,713,828 of which is invested on bond and mortgage, the answers to the general inquiry were substantially the same as above noted; and at another big savings institution, in Wall street, the replies were of the same tenor. All of the gentlemen who were seen spoke freely and without reserve, and all were of the opinion that real estate would inevitably suffer a moderate decline from the prices obtaining before the panic began. They all felt sure, however, that New York City real estate would emerge from the trouble with increased credit as an investment medium, and would enter upon a period of great activity. They argued that the economy that was enforced upon all people by the prevailing stringency, would result in an accession of financial strength in the end, and lead to a period of great and general prosperity.

A prominent loan broker said that the loaning institutions ought to be held to a strict account for the part they are playing in the pending troubles, for they are undoubtedly to blame for much of the prevalent distress. The raising of the interest rate to the legal limit was an outrage under the circumstances, and undoubtedly, when better times returned, they would be made to suffer for it. This gentleman, who is a director in several large financial institutions, did not share the apprehension of the bankers that there would be any considerable shrinkage of values of real estate in this city. He said: "I believe there will be a quicker recovery from this panic than we have ever known under similar circumstances. There is plenty of money here, only it is for the moment withdrawn from the market. People have been frightened by a threatening cloud, which has almost passed by. When they see that there is no danger, that property of all kinds is at bed-rock prices, and the country is just as prosperous as ever it was, they will get over their fright and will reinvest their money. The first ones to do this are going to get the best security and the highest rates too. The recovery will be so quick that real estate will have no time to show any weakness. It is undoubtedly fortunate that the panic did not strike the real estate market until after the season was over, and the summer, in which there never is any market, was upon us. Before the fall season opens I look to see the panic numbered among the things of the past; and, although it is probable that building for the next six months will be confined to absolute necessities, there will be a fair amount of trading."

The Relation of Silver Production to Gold.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

The two main arguments of the monometallists have been:

First—That the vast overproduction of silver relatively to gold makes it impossible to sustain the value of the white metal, and

Second—That the use of a debased currency is a crime against the laborer, a fraud against the creditor and a wrong done the entire nation, and if persisted in must end in inevitable disaster.

By a process which is quite incomprehensible, the army of writers on that side of the question appear not only to have persuaded themselves that they were right, but to have actually convinced the press, the bankers and the public generally that there was and could be no honest answer to their case. And yet, as a mere matter of cold facts and figures, their premises are bad, and consequently their arguments and conclusions must be inaccurate.

Let us take the first premise: The world's production of gold and silver for fifty years ending with 1890 is as follows:

	Gold.	Silver.
1841 to 1850—10 years.....	$880,000,000	$840,000,000
1851 to 1875—25 "	3,175,000,000	1,275,000,000
1876 to 1890—15 "	1,620,000,000	1,740,000,000
Production for 50 years...	$5,175,000,000	$3,355,000,000
Annual average.....	$103,500,000	$67,000,000

It is true that during the latter part of this period the yield of gold fell off and that of silver increased, but the indications now are that the tide has turned again and that gold is in the ascendant. These figures ought to be sufficient to show that the first premise is bad, and that there is not the slightest reason, because of production (or for that matter for any other reason) to change the existing standard of 16 to 1 to any higher ratio, as has been seriously proposed in some quarters, and which many bimetallists are almost ready to accept. Such a compromise would be a more serious error than even the Sherman Act itself and more difficult to amend hereafter. There is nothing in the figures nor in the probable future of production to warrant any change of the standard. The question is: Shall we restore to silver its true quality as money? If yes, the standard is better and nearer the true one, as it is. If no, then there is no sense in changing it.

Now as to the second premise:

Where is the debased currency about which so much is written and which is going to disgrace the nation and injure every one. I for one am quite unable to discover it. Only yesterday twenty thousand double eagles in gold were sent voluntarily to the Treasury and exchanged for silver dollars. To-day a premium of 3 per cent was paid for silver dollars over certified bank checks, and this after a dozen years of solemn argument and righteous indignation over the baseness of the poor silver dollar. The fact is, the debased currency is a figure of the imagination which does not exist, has not existed and cannot exist, as long as this nation has any credit or honor left.

When the United States puts its stamp on a silver dollar and undertakes to preserve its parity with gold it is sheer nonsense to say that dollar is debased. Neither does it matter anything whatever, whether the ounce price of the silver in that dollar has gone down or gone up, or whether it contains 371 grains or 480 grains of silver. All that matters is, has it a solvent and honest guarantor behind it, and will it buy as much as a golden or a paper one. If it were true that it must contain the full value of a golden dollar's worth of silver, then is it also true that a five dollar bill must contain five dollars' worth of paper to save it from being also debased.

But, say the writers: If we keep on buying we shall soon exhaust both our credit and resources, and if we adopt free coinage we shall surely come to grief. After all then there is so far no debased currency, but only the fear that there may be one hereafter, but so there may be an earthquake hereafter. The fear is, however, groundless, as may be demonstrated by figures, not loose wild talk. The silver product of the United States to-day probably does not exceed 3,000,000 ounces per month, or 36,000,000 ounces per annum, in value at the present price about $25,000,000. Is this the sum which is to bankrupt the great United States, whose financial resources are greater than those of any power on earth? Yes! greater than those of all the continental nations of Europe put together. Those of us who can remember when this same nation (with less than half its present population and less than one-third its present wealth) spent $3,000,000 every-day for four years, can hardly think so. For the four thousand millions spent in four years we had nothing left to show; for the few millions spent in buying silver, at the lowest prices on record, we have the metal itself as collateral, and it will be our own fault if we fail to realize a large profit on the purchase. Senator John Sherman says as an excuse for the passage of the Sherman law: "The result of buying 4,500,000 ounces a month will be the best antidote against the purchase of all the silver of the world at one third more than its market value"! Did the Honorable Senator ever stop to think how much of that silver was in sight in the world or could be bought? Ninety millions of pounds sterling would cover the whole of it held by Continental Europe, and the attempt to purchase one-third of that amount would produce a corner in silver which would be the admiration of our stock exchange. From the inception to the end of this discussion silver has been exported, and every steamer that leaves this port still carries it to Europe. If the price declines, the export of it will increase. If the price advances it will increase still more. Silver is cheap and the world knows it, and level-headed is the nation which lays up a stock of it now at these prices. There is, however, if needed, a simple and absolute means of protection against the influx of foreign silver, and that is by a duty on its importation.

By all means repeal the purchase clause of the Sherman Bill, not because there is anything of real danger in it, but because the nation has gone stark mad on the subject. The papers have told the people, and the people believe them, that it is a real live ghost, unsparing, malignant and devilish, which must be exorcised, before there can be any peace in the land; therefore, in the name of Heaven, lay it at rest. It matters not that a few men with cool brains know that the ghost is only a broomstick with a white sheet around it and an empty pumpkin for a head. Everybody will find that out hereafter! But that does not help us now.

August 10, 1893. ROBERT A. CHESEBROUGH.

Special Notice.

ARTIFICIAL STONE WORK.

James Gough is one of the very busiest of the artificial pavement contractors in town. He is engaged on the sidewalks, yards and cellars of five houses on the northwest corner of West End avenue and 77th street; a block of houses on the corner of West End avenue and 93d street; five houses on 70th street, near Amsterdam avenue, for H. Chaffee; Hotel at 87th street and Madison avenue for Higgins & King, and twenty-four houses on East 92d and 93d streets for John McLaughlin. Mr. Gough has recently removed to No. 533 East 81st street, where all orders and communications should be addressed.

IRON CORNICES, SLATE AND METAL ROOFING AND METAL SKYLIGHTS.

August Jacob, the well-known cornice maker, of No. 260 East 78th street, is furnishing the cornices and roofing for six houses on East 89th street, for Messrs. Sauer & Gross. He is also engaged on four big flats on 65th street, between Central Park West and Columbus avenue, for W. H. Ramsey. Mr. Jacob has built many tenements on his own account and has been very successful. His latest sale includes three houses on the southwest corner of 1st avenue and 124th street, as announced elsewhere. A short time ago he sold four tenements on the northwest corner of 2d avenue and 110th street, for $95,000. He is now building a handsome, well-arranged flat at No. 351 East 83d street, size of lot 30x67 2x77.

LOGAN'S PATENT SANITARY HORSE STALLS.

Messrs. Stern Bros.' handsome, commodious and well-equipped new stable at No. 150 West 30th street is fully provided with Logan's Patent Sanitary Stable Drains. Other recent work using the Logan Drains includes four fine stables, erected by the Clark estate on 68th street, between Amsterdam and West End avenues; Mr. Geo. E. Dodge's private stable, No. 257 West 69th street, and Mr. M. K. Jesup's stable at Lenox, Mass. This drain is illustrated on page vi and catalogues and information will be sent on application to M. Logan, No. 854 7th avenue, near 55th street.

CONSOLIDATION OF ROCK PLASTER COMPANIES.

The "Rock Plaster Company of New York" and "The Rock Wall Plaster Company of Brooklyn and New Jersey" have consolidated under the name of "Rock Plaster Company of New York and New Jersey," under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with office at No. 44 Broadway, New York City, factory foot of 7th street, Hoboken, N. J. The officers of the company are: President, R. L. Stevens, of Hoboken, N. J.; first vice-president, Col. E. L. Price, Newark, N. J.; second vice-president, C. A. Stevens, of Hoboken, N. J.; treasurer, E. O. Schuyler, of Bergen Point, N. J.; secretary, Joseph D. Bedle, Jr., of Jersey City. The company has enlarged its factory at Hoboken to meet the demand of its steadily increasing trade, and is in position to serve its customers quickly and to their best interest. The Rock Plaster Company has probably done as much for the hard plaster business as any company in existence, and by means of its improved machinery and process of manufacture it is enabled to furnish rock plaster at a figure that compares favorably with old-fashioned mortar. In addition to the plaster for walls, this company has introduced solid rock plaster partitions, which are only 2 inches in thickness, and which are being very largely used in place of the terra cotta and wooden partitions, the price being practically the same as of the wooden partition and very much cheaper than a terra cotta partition. Any one contemplating building will do well to get figures on rock plaster before letting their plastering contract.

CARPENTRY AND BUILDING WORK ON THE EAST SIDE.

A Silverson, of No. 307 Henry street, has during the last few years established a reputation as a carpenter and builder who does all work intrusted to him promptly and satisfactorily. The following buildings recently completed testify to his ability and thoroughness for good work: Southwest corner of Clinton and Rivington streets and southeast corner of Stanton and Lewis street, for B. Galewski; southeast corner of Ludlow and Rivington streets, for Architect Peter Herter; No. 90 Ridge street, for L. Richmann (all the foregoing are six-story structures); and the southeast corner of East Broadway and Pike street, a seven-story building, for A. Cohn. Mr. Silverson will furnish estimates for work in his line.

Gossip of the Week.

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

The old Sixth Street Baptist Church, between Avenues B and C, with plot 63.3x97, on the south side of the street, about 110 feet west of Avenue C, and embracing Nos. 644 to 648, has been sold for $36,350. As soon as title passes, the church will be razed and tenements erected on the site.

August Eckel has sold for Virginia Jansen and Frank S. Webb, the three-story brownstone dwelling property, 20x50x115, No. 118 West 31st street, to James O. West.

S. H. Frankenheim has sold for G. Richard the five-story brick tenement and stores, No. 176 1st avenue, to M. Steinheimer, for $15,500.

NORTH OF 59TH STREET.

August Jacob, the cornice manufacturer, has sold the three five-story brick and stone tenements with stores on the southwest corner of 1st avenue and 124th street, to Charles Tisch, for $60,000. Mr. Tisch has also purchased the adjoining avenue house from Leopold Friesen for $30,000. This row of four houses was finished by Mr. Jacob a year ago, and would have been sold earlier but for the delay caused by Mr. Jacob's effort to get title to a small triangular piece forming part of one of two old roads which formerly existed. At the auction sale in partition last week Mr. Jacob became the purchaser.

Goodman & Stern have sold for Samson Wallach the two five-story flats, Nos. 50 and 32 West 133d street, to Mrs. B. Holzman, for $54,000; and for Mrs. B. Holzman the southeast corner of 2d avenue and 103d street, for $36,000.

It was Messrs. Mangam & Welling who made the sale of four lots on East 110th street for E. Murtaugh to G. Bohlman, and not McMonegal & Eckerson as we erroneously reported last week.

J. M. Williams has sold for Charles S. Kendall one of the block of 20-foot brownstone houses on the north side of 118th street, east of Lenox avenue, to Oliver L. Geer, President of the Investors' Guarantee Co., for $22,000.

Robt. J. Woods has sold for Robt. Wallace to Messrs. McLaughlin & Bach the five-story double flat, No. 58 West 128th street, taking in trade the four-story and basement private dwelling, No. 8 West 82d street.

LEASES.

De Blois, Hunter & Eldridge report the following rentals: No. 44 East 26th street, for the Marquis de Croisic to Wm. P. Ward, for a term of three years, and No. 11 West 10th street, for Capt. Chas. F. Roe to Russell Murray, for a term of three years.

Matthews & Sons, Fulton street and Gallatin place, which is to be of brick, four stories high to correspond with the present building, and will be in the form of an L, covering four full-sized lots, with a frontage of 50 feet on both Gallatin place and Livingston street.

The same architect has plans for two four-story flats with stores, 22 and 20x65 feet, in which the same material will be used. They are to be erected on the northeast corner of 3d avenue and 58th street, and will cost $7,000 and $10,000 respectively.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—Having made a break on values the market appears inclined to stay there, and possibly is even slightly worse than one week ago. To be sure, in exceptional cases, the same top figure is mentioned, or say $5 50 per M, but it is on the intermediate grades where the shading quietly goes on, and in some cases the drop in cost as compared with a fortnight ago is 50@75c. per M. A great deal of consumption must of course, be taking place in this district daily, but, as before suggested, it has evidently passed the flood, and with nothing to tempt dealers or contractors into accumulating stocks against the future, it becomes a pretty difficult matter to find outlets for an undiminished flow of arrivals. Even a shading on cost cannot be depended upon as an attraction to catch buyers in these times when financial conditions compel such caution as to restrict purchasers generally to immediate actual requirements and prevent anything like speculative investment. Another important point of late has been the unusual continuation of dry and favorable weather for making brick, which has kept manufacturers all at work, and of course compelled steady shipments for want of room. Quality, too, has averaged high and satisfactory generally, and common cheap brick did not have much of a chance. Rates are quoted nominally unchanged, but very slow of sale on all outlets. The present production of North River fronts is about all wanted on previous engagement, but manufacturers are not finding much demand for new parcels. Cost is unchanged.

GLASS.—There is no animation in the market for window glass at the moment, nor could other conditions be expected as general business is running. Supplies of both domestic and foreign appear to be sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the market, with sellers very glad to negotiate and willing to accept former rates. There seems to be considerable uncertainty as to when the fires will be started up and much will depend upon the results of this month's meeting to arrange the wages scale; the condition of business, and the probabilities of some change in the tariff, the latter being a subject upon which manufacturers are sensitive. Plate glass sells moderately and at some irregularity on value. Stocks in hand are full enough, though it is stated that one manufacturing concern has found confidence enough to resume production, and one or two others may follow suit.

LATH.—The general and natural turn of the market is rather for the better. A few additional arrivals have taken place since our last and it was not an easy matter to dispose of them, but just now the supply seems to be pretty well cleaned up, and after the heavy amounts of late forwarded it is reasonable to assume that manufacturers are really shipped down close. The final sell out on hemlock lath was at $170 and early this season $ bought spruce but now $2.10 @2.20 cover about the ideas of buyers and sellers It is, however, far from a tempting market for further shipments, and the strength of the position will depend almost solely upon the quantity of stock for some time coming forward.

LIME.—Demand has not been particularly active, neither have the supplies coming to hand proven extensive, and a fair balance was made At the best, however, it is in the natural order of things a monotonous sort of market just now and so likely to remain while the line of cost and the quantity of stock to be offered are both laid out on a cut and dried basis. State lime finds moderate demand, and some arrivals of St. John stock of late have sold at 80c. for common.

LUMBER.—As a whole our market remains in a dull condition, and very few operators attempt predictions as to the time when a change for the better may reasonably be expected. A certain amount of trading takes place in special orders where it becomes necessary to secure the product of favorite mills or arrange for a cut adapted to a particular line of trade, but even in those cases it is not uncommon to confine the deal for the time being to a sort of option on quantity likely to be handled, leaving actual rates open for agreement later on. There does not appear to be much in the way of direct bearish efforts put forth, but buyers feel very easy over the ruling conditions in view of the probable natural weakening effect upon value, and have indeed already met certain tentative suggestions from the selling side, indicating that if acceptable terms of settlement can be arranged, modifications on cost will be made. For the time being, arrivals are composed in the main of stock coming to hand on contract, but it is expected that an increase in the quantity of random must follow in a few weeks.

The Mississippi Valley Lumber Association met at Minneapolis Aug. 8 in semi-annual session and agreed to reduce the cut for the balance of the season one-half. The date agreed on for closing the sawmills was Sept. 20.

Spruce retains an uncertain market. Quite a large quantity has been added to local stock within two or three weeks through the arrival of numerous cargoes delivering ordered schedules, but what could be done with random is an open question. Some receivers have an idea quite a little amount would sell, but the more general view of the situation is that the local trade is not yet prepared to negotiate, especially that portion of it likely to be accepted as desirable custom, and it is probably just as well that no greater offering is looming up. At the eastward many mills are idle, and the sale of logs is unusually slow, with additional amounts coming forward. Advices from Maine report that the drives from both the east and west branches of the Penobscot, about sixty million feet in all, are well forward, and although the main river is rather low it is expected the logs will safely reach the boom by end of present month. Arrivals of piling are still consigned to chains for want of market.

Hemlock probably gets its natural proportion of current business, but that is not saying much for it, and every call made is freely and promptly met. Prices are supposed to be unchanged, but there is no doubt that in a quiet way buyers get a great many allowances that are not quoted.

White Pine makes no change for the better, and to what extent it may have turned for the worse is doubtful. In one way or another tenders of stock to arrive from both western and Canadian sources have been making in larger quantities, and with intimations that buyers prepared to afford acceptable terms of settlement can have favors in the matter of cost. There is plenty of custom possibly that might be able to respond to any reasonable call for substantial security, but very little of it that tries to do so, because of the evidences that a waiting demand is one that gains advantages under present conditions of general business. The line of export orders is narrow and principally of a regular character, with latest advices not promising much improvement.

Yellow Pine on random, special and export deals continues slow and unsatisfactory, and not many really good words are said in favor of the market. From primal points, despite pretty full freight charges, offerings of stuff seem to be making upon quite as low terms as ever, and there are indications that many of the mills for good, hard cash would show buyers still greater favors.

Carolina Pine gets very little demand for cargo lots except from the city mills, which are finishing up rough stocks in lots to suit the hand to mouth character of trade at present doing. Prices are quoted nominally unchanged, but there is reason to believe that some pretty deep cuts have recently been made, especially on boxing.

Hardwoods are selling moderately and irregularly into the hands of dealers, few of whom feel inclination to increase their obligations at the moment. Consumption is a little larger among the manufacturers of house trim who are getting ready to meet their contracts for work on structures now in progress, but they book no new orders, and the furniture men are doing practically nothing. Open offerings are not conspicuous, and sellers make the usual claim of steady prices, when as a matter of fact there is scarcely a doubt that buyers are getting more or less extensive secret allowances, and even the much vaunted strength of position for poplar is contradicted by cuts on price recently allowed by some of the more or less prominent operators.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

The Albany market per Argus as follows:

Trade here during the week has been of fair proportions, considering the dullness in most lines of business. As a sign that conditions are improving, a few good orders are coming from customers who, earlier in the season, announced that they were done buying for the year. This is the situation in the pine trade. Prices are firm, with not much chance for a change, with the stock on the yards so much below the standard supply of other years. Lake freights, Bay City to Tonawanda, have declined from $ 75 to $1.50, but there is no change on the canal. In spruce and hemlock, trade is rather more quiet. The mills on the upper Hudson have just started sawing, after an enforced idleness of a couple of weeks, due to the low water. In hard woods, trade is fair and the assortment good. Shingles and lath are moving fairly, except hemlock lath, which are scarce.

THE WEST.

We take the following from the Northwestern Lumberman:

It may be asked what has become of the contracts made early in the year, especially with Eastern buyers, for the large percentage of this season's cut particularly on Green Bay and in the upper peninsular of Michigan and at Duluth? Are not these contracts being carried out? To this it can be replied that the contracts are generally intact, but the buyers were to pay for the lumber as it was shipped, or after it had been put in pile. Now that trade is so dull and money so hard to be obtained buyers are asking for extensions and delay, some of them demanding that the logs be carried over until next year. This is virtually tying up the resources of the mill operators for the time being and forcing them to saw lumber for the general market in order to defray current expenses. Since there is a weak and scattering demand for lumber and prices are low, it is not to be wondered at that the only apparent relief from the present dilemma is in stopping the saws. Some curtailment has resulted from abandoning night sawing and working short days, but as a rule the mills have thus far been kept running. A revival of demand within two weeks may save the manufacturers from shutting down, but further prolongation of deadness in the market would neeessitate that measure. * * *

The time is approaching when camps must be started preparatory to making roads and cutting and skidding logs. It is so near at hand that loggers must make up their minds soon as to the amount they will put in the coming season, or as to whether they will bank any. It is reported in one important instance that a heavy operator in Northern Michigan has recently declared that, unless the outlook shall speedily and clearly brighten, he shall not cut a stick of pine for next year's sawing. In the Menominee and Lake Superior regions there is considerable talk in favor of restricting the coming season's log cut, and the same inclination is manifest throughout Wisconsin and upper Minnesota. The outlook for the fall trade is less promising than for years. Manufacturers now see that unless there soon is to be a mighty rising of demand, to continue during the fall and winter, there will remain over unsold a large surplus of lumber cut this year. For this reason they see no profit in putting in a heavy stock of logs to supplement those that will remain unsawed at the end of the season. There is a surplus of both logs and lumber. Stumpage is too high of price to keep on slaughtering it, especially when that will further depress the market. In order to save the value of their stumpage from a depression that is likely to follow that in lumber, they must stop operations in the woods.

At Chicago:

The market is nearly at a standstill. An occasional cargo drops in and is disposed of at figures within the quoted range, though prices are somewhat irregular and much as the commission men can catch them. Piece stuff is quoted lower than last week, the figures now being $9 to $9.50, the larger quantity probably changing hands at the lower price. There is little long stuff arriving, scarcely enough to make a market, and prices are almost nominal on that class of lumber. Prices of inch lumber are relatively less weak than on piece stuff, though in the absence of demand common inch cannot be called anything but weak, except in respect to thick factory stock and good strips and even in sales of such lumber there has been a decline of fully $1 a thousand.

Most of the larger poplar mills are shut down and will probably cut but little more stock this season. The logs that came down in the June rise are nearly all cut, and although there are plenty more up the streams, there is little likelihood of any quantity of them coming out this season. Such being the outlook, there ought to be no difficulty in maintaining prices, as the supply of lumber on hand is comparatively light. It is true that demand is below the average for the season, but the mill men claim there is no difficulty about disposing of their product as rapidly as it is ready for the market. Yard dealers at Chicago and elsewhere are buying supplies at less than association prices by picking up small lots here and there at the smaller mills, and are able to do better on such purchases than they could a month or two ago. But the market, as a whole, is remarkably firm, considering the demand and the association members insist that the price list will be maintained, at least so far as they are concerned.

Poplar stumpage is getting scarcer every year and the price of logs has been steadily advancing. So long as there is no decline in logs, there is not much prospect of lower prices for lumber.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman as follows:

From day to day comes the news of one mill after another shutting down temporarily, while others are taking off night crews and otherwise curtailing their product. The demand continued strong for so long a time after business in other lines was exceedingly quiet that it gave lumbermen hope. Now, however, a season of dullness has set in and for the next few weeks nothing else can be expected. However, there may be anticipated a better fall and winter demand, but it will not do to continue to rush manufacture in expectation of it. Logs are easier kept, and at a less risk than lumber, and many manufacturers are seeing the matter in this light and are refraining from filling their yards with piled lumber, on which a heavy insurance must be carried.

NAILS.—A diminished, and in many cases, positively suspended production, coupled with efforts among manufacturers to bring the offering under control, does not as yet benefit the market to any noticeable extent. Demand in fact finds nothing whatever to stimulate, it is simply the few kegs necessary to satisfy immediate wants to which buyers persist in confining themselves. We quote Cut at $1.05@1.25 per keg for car lots and $1.35@1.45 per keg for parce's from store for iron, and add 3c. per keg for steel; Wire, $1.50@1.55 at mills, and $1 80@1.85 from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—So decidedly dull and uninteresting has the position become that even trade papers, devoted in a large measure to interests of the paint and color business, have not hesitated omitting regular markets if at all crowded for space. Nearly every manufacturer, importer and large jobber has the experience of encouraging a line of would be custom that is willing to place orders with much more freedom, but upon a basis of credit that no one cares to risk just now, though much of it may possibly be of the best. Buyers, therefore, between choice and necessity are confining their orders to narrow limits of present trade wants and even on that basis looking continually for better terms. They get them, too, in numerous cases, for while prices are not officially changed, there are more ways to extend favors than by openly marking down cost limits. On domestic zincs a decline of ¼c. per lb. has taken place and there is the ever present rumor in regard to leads, but still without official indorsement. Corroders' rates stand as follows: Lead in oil in kegs and dry lead in kegs in lots of less than 500 lbs., 7¼c. net; in lots of 500 lbs. to 5 tons at one purchase, 6¾c.; 5 tons to 12 tons, one purchase, 6⅝c.; 12 tons and over, one purchase, 6½c.; kegs. Lead in oil in 12½ lb. tin pails, add 1c.; in 25 and 50 lb. tin pails, add ½c.; and in 1 to 5 lb. tin cans, assorted (100 lbs. in case) add 2½c. per lb. to keg price. Terms on lots on 500 lbs. and over, note or acceptance at sixty days, or 2½ per cent. discount will be allowed for cash paid within fifteen days of invoice date. To make either of the above required quantities any assortment of packages of white lead, red lead and litharge may be counted. The above quotations are free on board cars or boat at corroding point. Linseed Oil has a certain steady sale on a regular outlet for current trade requirements, but beyond that gets little attention. There is supply enough for all wants, and it seems to be sold readily enough at former rates. We quote on general range at 48@49c. for Western, 50@51c. for City from domestic seed, and 62@63c. for do. from Calcutta seed. Spirits Turpentine continues slow and unsatisfactory and with plenty of stock available in all positions prices are weak at a still further shading. We quote at 2 ½@26½c. per gallon, according to quality, quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—There is a fair consumption considering the times and the season, but supply enough ready to meet all calls as fast as they develop, and sellers appear satisfied when they obtain former rates. We quote Tar at $1.90@1.95 in pine or Wilmington bbls., $2.00@2.05 in pork bbls., and $2.70@2.75 in oil bbls. Pitch $1.50@1.70.

BUILDING MATERIAL PRICES.

LUMBER.
Appended quotations are based almost wholly upon prices obtained for goods from first hands. Yard rates necessarily range much higher owing to the expenses attending sorting out and grading cargo and even car lots, besides which must be added the cost of handling and carrying until consumers are ready to invest. Terms of sale also prove important factors and, altogether, it is impossible to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable in character.

VOL. LII. AUGUST 19, 1898. No. 1,527

THERE is nothing in the general business outlook or in the movements of stock exchange prices that suggests or promises early improvement in the situation. The effect on quotations of such important events as the open admission of the bankruptcy of Northern Pacific and the assignment of the Oliver Iron and Steel Company was small because the trading was narrow and very dull. Had they occurred at a time when any large blocks of stock were being marketed the effects of these failures would have been very potent for evil. Of course, we must always remember, particularly in times like these, the enormous force that can be exerted toward recuperating our commercial forces as soon as confidence can be restored. We cannot always go on reducing our production. The restriction in manufactures that is now taking place must produce scarcity and all that has then to be contended with is the capacity of the people to do without many of the things they once thought indispensable, and this capacity has limits. But people are, however, too much occupied with the awful present and near future to cast their gaze very far ahead. Two things have been brought out during the week which will give a good deal of satisfaction. One is the new position into which events have forced high-priced labor, which cannot now successfully resist the demands of employers for a lower scale. Sympathy is now as strong as ever for the poorly paid, but it is recognized that good only can follow from a change which prevents the higher branches of labor from continuing the attitude of tyranny they have too often assumed of late years. Railroad managers especially may find this helpful toward the economical operation of the properties in their hands with correspondingly increased prospects for profit on the capital sunk in them. The other point for which there is cause for congratulation is the evident intention to compel an examination of the Northern Pacific affairs in the courts. The manner in which this property has been financed has often been the subject of remark here and if the Northern Pacific security-holders can force restitution, as they very probably can, they will not only benefit themselves pecuniarily, but will produce a moral effect which will practically reform the railroad management of the country. As it is in too many instances, a stockholder sees what is left by labor unions taken by the managers. Indeed, the present situation is a golden opportunity, the like of which has not occurred for decades, for the managers of our railroads to bring down their expenses to a really profitable ratio to income. They have not been able to suceeed in doing this in late years. Will they make the most of the chance presented to them now?

THE article published in this paper, last week, on the mortgage debt on New York realty has attracted, as it merited, a very great deal of attention among all interested in real estate. The facts set forth therein were somewhat of a surprise, even to the best informed, and it is, perhaps, scarcely to be wondered at that at first reading not every one placed the same interpretation upon them. It may be worth while for us to recapitulate. It was shown from reports submitted to the State officials that the savings banks of the Metropolis have loans amounting to $159,751,568 on New York real estate. From the same authority we learn that the Trust Companies have $9,484,555 likewise loaned, the Safe Deposit Companies $100,000, and the Title and Casualty Insurance Companies $1,134,172. In the case of the Insurance Companies, however, there are no public reports to be referred to for information. The annual statements of the companies give the amount that they have out on bond and mortgage in gross, not making any distinction as to how much is on New York realty. Consulting the best authorities, we estimated that probably the insurance companies have something like $65,000,000 on New York realty. This is the only item about which there could be any question. We have, however, gone a little deeper into the matter this week, and due to the courtesy of the insurance companies we are now able to give the exact amount. Our figures we find should be increased by about $15,000,000—as a fact the insurance companies have $80,000,000 on New York realty. The total given in our tables would consequently have to read $250,470,295 instead of $235,470,295. This addition does not materially affect our general conclusion, which was that something slightly in excess of $700,000,000 is out on mortgage on New York real estate. Assuming that the appraised valuation represents 60 per cent of the actual market value, this shows that the mortgage debt on realty amounts to about 30 per cent of its value. From one or two quarters this has been regarded as an adverse showing, and as a "bear" demonstration. We are very certain, however, that no banker, no head of any financial institution, no well-posted real estate man will do anything of the kind. The figures are a remarkable and even an unexpected evidence of the soundness of real estate. No other commodity that we know of can make a better showing. One other fact which our article sets forth has not everywhere been rightly understood. We refer to the estimate that as much as $600,000,000 of the mortgages out are past due. Some persons have hastily regarded this as an adverse indication. They suppose that the lenders could and in times of depression would call this amount in. It ought not to be necessary to point out that there is not the remotest danger of lenders taking any such course. A general calling in of loans would be absurd. No one would think of attempting it, because, if for any other reason, it would be impossible. To attempt to do it would mean the ruination of the mortgagor. He would not be able to get his money—the very thing that he endeavored to get—and he would have to take the property, the very thing that under the circumstances he would not want. As President C. H. Kelsey, of The Title Guarantee and Trust Company, said in our article: "The general calling in of mortgages would simply be foolish." Every business man is aware of that, and no bank president or trustee or anybody else with any sense would commit financial suicide for the mere fun of it.

THE sharp, unexpected turn which has been given this week to the rapid transit situation must be viewed with mixed feelings. If the resolutions of the Rapid Transit Committee and the utterances of Mr. Steinway are to be taken as positive assurances that negotiations with the Manhattan Company have absolutely ceased, it means that the city is peremptorily deprived of the only possibility that exists for the immediate improvement of its rapid transit facilities. No one interested in the welfare of the metropolis can refrain from deploring this circumstance. Three years, perhaps five years, at the shortest, will be required to construct a new road, and in the meantime the city must suffer in purse, comfort and morals. On the other hand, it is immensely to the benefit of the city that the Commissioners have been driven by the force of events to the position which they should have taken long ago upon the grounds of public policy and wisdom. THE RECORD AND GUIDE has insisted from the very first that the Municipality and only the Municipality can give New York the transportation system it needs. The Commissioners and Public Opinion, misled by the entire press of the city (which, it will be remembered, sapiently opposed the Manhattan when that company was desirous of adding new tracks and extensions, and then to reverse matters supported the company when it was not desirous of any additional privileges), have been conducted by a circuitous route to the point which was as clear in the beginning as it is to-day—if New York is to have rapid transit the city must build the road.

IN their reply, the Manhattan officials wasted very little of their valuable time in courteous phraseology or in indicating that they were conscious of any responsibility to the people of New York. The matter was to them strictly an affair of dividends, and we believe that no business man would, under the circumstance, act otherwise than as the Manhattan did. The best policy for that company is to maintain things precisely as they are. There is no money for them in seeing that every passenger has a seat or is carried beyond the Harlem for a single fare; and in their own Suburban road they have the most eloquent testimony of how little money there is in running trains in competition with the trolley cars, while waiting for the territory to "grow up." It was foolish ever to expect the Manhattan Company to make large outlays that from the nature of things could not increase their dividends. It will be only under the influence of competition that the Manhattan people will spend money to retain traffic. The rapid transit which the city has been asking for is of a nature that cannot possibly pay directly at first. To look to private enterprise for service under these conditions is nonsense, and the strange thing is that people haven't seen it before this. But the city is in a position which no corporation can occupy. It can borrow money at a low rate of interest, and it can derive an income from the road even before it is completed—by the increase in taxes that would result, due to the enhanced value of real estate. A well-equipped trunk road running through Manhattan Island to the Yonkers line would pay for itself in a few years by the improvements which it would produce in the 23d and 24th Wards alone.

IT would be foolish, however, to suppose that the fight for municipal ownership is clearly won because the Rapid Transit Commissioners have opened their eyes. A portion of the press, a portion of the public, some of our officials, the Legislature and the Manhattan Co. have to be dealt with. The latter, especially, will surely fight progress toward a result that would establish a permanent competitor whom they could never absorb or buy out and whose road would be run for the benefit of passengers and not for the benefit of shareholders. The enabling legislation necessary before the city can begin work will surely be opposed, perhaps, very strongly, at Albany. Citizens should organize for the fight. The Real Estate Exchange Committee should take action immediately and so should the American Federation of Labor which, as our readers know, have been strongly in favor of city ownership. In more senses than one this is a very favorable opportunity for them to be heard. They are complaining just now of the number of unemployed in this city and are seeking to find relief in some quarter. The construction of any sort of a road by the municipality would furnish work for thousands of men whom it would be to the advantage of the city to employ as, no doubt, they would be willing to accept just now something less than standard wages.

Bimetallism in France.

PRESIDENT ST. JOHN OF THE MERCANTILE NATIONAL BANK INTERVIEWED

Mr. St. John said: "Yes, I did see attributed to Chevalier the opinion that France had never enjoyed true bimetallism. I observed, too, the statement prefaced with the remark, 'Chevalier, it should be stated, was the great champion of silver in his day.'

"Chevalier was indeed the champion of silver, but to the absolute exclusion of gold, in 1853, on the ground that gold would become as abundant as iron and therefore was about to be unfit to rank with silver as money. Chevalier did not succeed, however, in closing the mints of France to gold, although Holland did abandon it.

"To my mind, facts, and if possible, indisputable facts are the only safe foundation for all opinions. And the facts on this point are as open to the painstaking research of any one, at present, as ever they were open to Chevalier or the champions of either gold or silver.

THE FACTS REGARDING FRANCE.

In the following tables the statistics of the world's production of gold and silver and market price are from Dr. Soetbeer's tables, an authority whom even monometallists revere. The market price is quoted in silver as related to a fixed sum of gold; thus the figures 1 to 15.61 leading the extreme right hand column means a market value for a given weight of gold, the same as for 15.6 times that weight of silver; the mint value of gold for gold coin being 15.5 the value of silver for silver coin, constantly. The several calculations added can be verified by any one.

The coinage statistics are from a report of the Finance Minister of France. For the sake of brevity, only noteworthy years are presented; but years of conditions most adverse and years of conditions most favorable are carefully selected.

NOTABLE FACTS IN THE TABLES.

In the foregoing tables the following among other particulars seem specially noteworthy:

First, remembering that the mint law of France was decreed in 1803 and fixed the value of gold for coining into gold money at 15 5-10 times the value of silver for coinage into silver money. In this immediate association, note in the period 1801 to 1810, the average yearly production of silver as 50¼ times the year's production of gold; yet, nevertheless, the coinage in 1806 of about an equal sum of gold and silver; and in 1807 the coinage of gold as about 4 times the coinage of silver, and the market value of gold as 15.6 times the value of silver.

Second, note in 1811 the coinage of silver at 3 times the coinage of gold, although the production of silver is down to 47¼ times the year's production of gold.

Third, in 1852 the coinage of silver was 6 times the coinage of gold, while the production of silver was only 4½ times the year's production of gold. Observe again in 1854 a coinage of $101,000,000 of gold as against only $10,000 of silver coined while the production of silver was still 4½ times the year's production of gold.

Finally, after as many other observations as one may choose to make, note the statistics for 1870, immediately before the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war, the coinage of gold and silver at about the same amount that year, while the annual production of silver in the world had risen to about 7 times the weight of the gold produced each year.

How vast were these alterations in the relative production of gold and silver, ranging between 50¼ and about 4½, will better appear in the column of coin-value of these products. Thus, when the year's production of silver was 50¼ times the production of gold, these relative products at coin-value were 76 per cent silver against 24 per cent gold. When later the production of silver had fallen to 4½ times the production of gold, the coin-value of these products was 78 per cent gold to 22 per cent silver; a complete reversal of the relative productions, if taken at coin-value.

FRENCH COINAGE VOLUNTARY BY OWNERS

Observe, now, that under her Coinage Decree of 1803, which continued in force until 1873, all this coining of gold and silver at the mints of France was due to the voluntary act of owners of the gold and silver bullion. It follows, that if the open market offered to owners of silver or gold bullion a better price for either than the mint valuation of it for coining into money, that the coining of the metal valued higher in the open market would temporarily cease. In other words, if owners of either gold or silver could use it more profitably elsewhere they would not at such moment take it to the mint. Therefore, the fact that the coinage of both gold and silver is of record year by year, and practically every year, is prima facie evidence that the mint value was practically the market value for both metals in the average of the year.

AN APPLICATION TO THE UNITED STATES

And now to question these records of France for an opinion as to these United States.

The notable achievement of her mints, as pointed out, involved a period when 76 per cent was silver against 24 per cent of gold in the coin-value of both produced each year; and equally a period when 78 per cent of the product was gold against 22 per cent of it silver, and also the variations of relative production in the periods intervening; or, as viewed by weight, the achievement of the mints of France was alike evident with the production of silver 50 times the weight of the gold produced, as again when the silver was only 4½ times the weight of gold produced; either of these comparing with the present production of silver amounting now to 23½ times the gold produced each year.

Recollect now that France began the period, say in 1801, with a population of 27,500,000, which increased to only 36,500,000 in the seventy years and is only 38,500,000 now. The United States has a present population of 65,000,000 of people, growing at a rate to exceed within ten years the population of Great Britain and France combined; and our people occupy a territory seventeen times the area of France. Hence my profound conviction that our already vastly greater and prodigiously enlarging domestic trade promises us a growing demand for money sufficient to assure us, better than France was ever pre-assured, that the mints of the United States, if made equally unrestricted in their operation, will quite as well provide for us a continuing market parity for our gold and silver coin.

A word now as to our coinage ratio, since 1834 15.988 to 1. I think we ought not to make the sacrifice of a great asset of the United States to alter this ratio at the outset if we reopen our mints to silver. But among conflicting opinions concede if we must a ratio of say 20 to 1. The United States will thereby make a sacrifice of 25 per cent in the value of a commodity of which we are the greatest producer in the world.

The 25 per cent increase in the demand for silver in every silver dollar coined at that increase of ratio, would doubtless afford a better certainty of our maintaining the metal parity of our gold and silver coins. Also, if the United States shall make the sacrifice immediately for such assurance of the people's safety, Congress may be relied upon to restore the ratio, wholly or in part, upon any discovery that the sacrifice was needless or too great; and thereupon adopt the highest valuation for either metal that will leave the parity of our gold and silver coins secure.

Rapid Transit Once More to the Front.

COMPTROLLER MYERS COMES OUT IN FAVOR OF CITY OWNERSHIP—PRESIDENT STEINWAY ALSO IN FAVOR OF IT.

Comptroller Theodore W. Myers has illustrated this week the difference between the man who will and the man who will not change his mind on proper occasion. Mr. Myers has held the confidence of the people of this city for years and this was only shaken when, on turning to him some months ago to help them in their appeal for rapid transit through city ownership he gave them the cold shoulder. Mr. Myers's is a naturally conservative disposition. If it were not so perhaps he would not have been so excellent a financial officer. He is also a strong stickler for democratic tradition and non-interference by government with private enterprises. It is for these reasons that he has all along been opposed to the doctrine of city ownership of any rapid transit system.

But when in June last Mr. Myers expressed his views of the matter to THE RECORD AND GUIDE he was more than half convinced that the argument and facts were all in favor of city ownership. He continued, notwithstanding, to insist that it was an undertaking for private corporate enterprise, but concluded his statement by saying: "Still, you know the difference between the man who will and the man who will not change his mind."

The most significant fact in rapid transit progress this week is that Mr. Myers has changed his mind and now comes out in energetic advocacy of rapid transit by a new and comprehensive system and by city ownership and construction. It is the most significant fact because hitherto city ownership has been prevented only by the local authorities; the people were overwhelmingly in favor of it and it would have been provided for at Albany last winter but for the opposition of Tammany Hall. Now this conversion of Comptroller Myers to the side of the people on this issue gives them an ally within the municipal citadel. With his assistance a winning fight can be made this fall for a system of rapid transit that will not only provide for immediate requirements but expand with the continued growth of the city and meet the demands of city travel for all future time.

Comptroller Myers admitted that he was driven to this change of heart by the stress of circumstances. Had the Manhattan Elevated Railroad Company not declined to consider the very favorable propositions made them by the Rapid Transit Commission for the extension of its lines, he might still, to use a camp meeting metaphor, have continued in his ignorance and sin. But with Comptroller Myers, as with many other enlightened people, the action of the Manhattan Company has demonstrated the fact all along maintained by THE RECORD AND GUIDE that real and satisfactory rapid transit can never be provided for this city except by the municipality itself. Said Mr. Myers:

"Hitherto I have always been a staunch opponent of the proposition that the city should build its own road; and I still see the dangers and disadvantages that might result from such a course. But critical troubles and difficulties that seem hopeless demand heroic treatment, and I am free to confess that I have been almost brought to the belief that no adequate means will ever be found to transport our citizens over the long distances that lie between their homes and their places of business, except by municipal construction.

"Experience is a great teacher, and he is worse than a fool who will not profit by it; and now that the situation must be looked squarely in the face, it must be admitted that the economic and practical advantages which would result from municipal construction can hardly be overestimated. It has been all along admitted that, by the use of the city's credit, the road could be built at three-fifths of its cost to private capital. Thus, if the cost of the road were to be $50,000,000, the interest charge to private construction would be two-and-a half millions a year, but only one million and a-half to the city. The result of this would inevitably be that the road could be better constructed, its service would be more satisfactory, and its profits would be proportionately greater than would be possible if it were built by private enterprise. It is, of course, idle to expect capitalists to enter the field otherwise than selfishly and with a view exclusively to profits; the city, on the other hand, could look solely to the welfare of the traveling public—and on such a road every citizen must necessarily be a patron.

"Such a system would undoubtedly prove highly profitable to the city, and its profits could be utilized either by their reception into the General Fund for the reduction of taxation, or the formation of a Sinking Fund, which would quickly wipe out the cost of construction and make the road a free gift to the city inside of twenty-five years, or by a reduction of the fares to say 3 cents, which would prove an inestimable boon to the community at large.

"Fortunately for the city, if it be determined to undertake this great work, the legislative means to accomplish it are easily obtainable. If special legislation is all that is requisite, the Legislature would undoubtedly yield to the popular demand and give us the necessary laws within the first week of its session. If an amendment to the Constitution be necessary it is our good fortune that a Constitutional Convention is about to assemble, and there can be no doubt but that the clause limiting the indebtedness of cities could be easily amended so as to yield an exception to the extraordinary necessities of the hour."

Mr. Myers said he had no special plan to suggest, except that when the city undertakes the business it should build upon a more comprehensive and substantial plan than if a private corporation should do the work.

President William Steinway, whose vision has from the first been clear that only through city ownership could an ideal system of city travel be provided, has again expressed himself to that effect. In the New York Times of yesterday he is quoted as follows:

"Various solutions of the rapid transit problem are available. The best way would be for the city to build a road. The Constitution forbids the city lending its credit to a private enterprise. By a simple act of the Legislature, however, the city might undertake the work as its own enterprise. Nothing in the Constitution stands in the way of that. It is as competent for the city to build a rapid transit road as it was for it to build the Croton Aqueduct or the Brooklyn Bridge, or to build and own piers, or to own the ferries, or to supervise any improvement designed for public use and benefit. Municipal construction in these days is usually better than private construction, and the ease with which the city can borrow money at 3 per cent makes municipal work much cheaper than any other kind."

Thus it appears that after months of delay the plan which has all along been urged by THE RECORD AND GUIDE and the Real Estate Exchange, is receiving the support from official circles which, with a united effort from now forward, will unquestionably end in successful achievement. In the sense that one great obstacle has been removed, the way to real rapid transit has been made easier by the events of this week. It is hardly likely that any definite plans will be determined upon before the return of the summer tourists to the city, and the revival of business in the fall. But within a few weeks a movement will be organized for the purpose of securing to the city an adequate system of rapid transit, by city ownership and construction. And the real estate interests of this city will have a hand in that movement.

On May 27th THE RECORD AND GUIDE announced that J. B. McElfatrick & Son, architects for the reconstruction of the Metropolitan Opera House, had awarded contracts to L. E. Weber, mason; E. C. Horn, carpenter, Kerr & Rosario, papier-mache. The balance of the contracts have been awarded as follows: Iron work, Levinson & Just; plumbing, Rossman & Bracken; gas piping, Thos. Hughes; electric wiring, New York Electric Equipment Co.; heating, J. D. Clark; brass and bronze work, Einbigler & Adler; elevator inclosures, Hecla Iron Works; stage, C. D. McGiehan; opera chairs, Andrews Demorest Seating Co.; fresco decoration, Benvenuti Bros.; gas and electric fixtures; General Fixture Co. The work on the building is being pushed forward rapidly, and the house will be ready for the opening in November. It is now estimated that the work will cost about $450,000.

Herter Bros.' Work to Go Right Along.

Beginning Monday of last week there were numerous Mechanic's Liens, aggregating over $70,000, filed against four buildings completed and under construction by Peter and Frank W. Herter, of 191 Broadway. Last week two of the liens, aggregating $7,000, against the southeast corner of Rivington and Ludlow streets, were satisfied. This corner is nearly finished and has been mortgaged to the Jones estate for $108,000. The corner o. Rivington and Allen streets is completed and a permanent loan securedf Nos. 137 and 139 Wooster street is nearly completed, and the southwest corner of Wooster and 3d streets is inclosed. About one-half of the filings are duplications, as liens were filed by sub-contractors for moneys included in liens of the contractors. An understanding has been arrived at which will lead to a resumption of work which was suspended for a short time, the lienors being satisfied that all claims will be promptly met when contracted for or as soon as it is possible for the Messrs. Herter to secure permanent loans on the two unfinished buildings which are so nearly completed. The announcement in the daily press that the extensive holdings of Herter Bros. would be turned over to a trustee was premature, and when the whole case is considered it seems surprising that there should have been any liens filed, because, considering the extent of the operations, the indebtedness is very small. The fact is a series of disappointments, due entirely to present conditions, led to slips, which had apparently been provided against.

Answers to Correspondents.

"MORE OR LESS"—GOLD CLAUSE.

To the Editor of THE RECORD AND GUIDE:

SIR—Will you kindly answer the following in your columns, viz.:

First—I bought or contracted to buy 100 feet of ground, four (4) full lots. In surveying the property it is found that the property is less than 99 feet in width. The contract contains the clause "be the said several dimensions or distances more or less." The seller knew that there was but 99 feet or less, but made no mention of the matter at the signing of the contract. Can I regain the money I paid on signing contract by reason of the shortage, or does the above clause compel me to accept the property? He claims it does.

Second—Can a buyer legally refuse to take title to a property, with the gold clause bond, if the contract does not state that there is a gold clause, and no mention of the fact was made at the signing of the contract?

SUBSCRIBER.

Answer.—(1) You can read and write. You read that clause in the contract before you signed it. Why did you not ask what it meant? You did not "contract to buy 100 feet of ground." You did contract to buy "100 feet," "be the same dimensions more or less." Unless there are more facts than you state, you must take the 99 feet.

(2) Being on vacation, and no authorities at hand to consult, I answer that I should think that the buyer cannot refuse to take title because the bond is payable in gold; but you would better go pay your lawyer a fee to look that point up.—LAW EDITOR.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

DEAR SIR—Will you kindly inform me in your next issue about the following: I leased a store for the owner for one year. At the end of two months he takes the collecting out of my hands. Can I not recover the commission for the remaining ten months?

Is it customary in such cases to collect the entire commission at the signing of the lease, or deduct them as the rent is paid by the lessor?

ANXIOUS.

Answer.—Yes. You can recover the 2½ per cent commission on remaining ten months' rent. Where you continue to collect the rent monthly it is customary to take 5 per cent (that is 2½ for renting and 2½ for collecting) out of every month, but you were entitled to the 2½ per cent down on the whole year's rent, just for renting, if you had chosen to claim it.

Opposition to Saloons on Columbus Avenue.

PROPERTY-OWNERS OBJECT TO FOUR SALOONS ON A BLOCK OPPOSITE MANHATTAN SQUARE—THREE ALREADY OPEN AND A FOURTH PROPOSED.—EXCISE COMMISSIONERS, IMPRESSED BY THE OBJECTIONS PRESENTED, REJECT THE APPLICATION.

There was a hearing at the rooms of the Board of Excise last week in the matter of the application of M. H. Phelan for a saloon license for the northwest corner of Columbus avenue and 80th street, opposite Manhattan Square.

Commissioners Murphy and Dalton were on hand and heard the reasons why a license should not be granted. There were present Builders Michael Giblin, of Giblin & Taylor, who a few months ago completed sixteen first-class private houses on 80th and 81st streets, close to the corner for which a license is sought; Robert Wallace, who is completing eight fine houses on the south side of 80th street; Robert Grant, who is building four houses west of the Wallace houses; Wm. Saunders, of Hanson & Saunders, who are building on 81st street, and F. F. Woodward. Other property-owners and residents were represented by proxy and by petition.

It was explained that the building on the 80th street corner is a one-story structure with walls only 8 inches thick and without a cellar or sewer connections, and to establish a saloon and beer garden in such a place would be detrimental to health as well as positively injurious to the neighborhood, which is of the first class. All the houses on 80th and 81st streets are four-story private residences and there are already three licensed saloons on the Columbus avenue front, between 80th and 81st streets, a sufficiency for all time and more than enough at the present day. Furthermore there is still another saloon on the south corner of 79th street and Columbus avenue, others on the Amsterdam avenue corners at 80th and 81st streets, to say nothing of the Endicott, on Columbus avenue, between 81st and 82d streets. To grant a license for still another saloon with three already open within a block of 200 feet would be a positive detriment to a district which the objectors have done very much to improve, and by their work and capital creating a large increase in taxable values to the great gain of the City Treasury. The Excise Commissioners were impressed by the strong facts fairly presented, and they decided later in executive session to refuse to grant the license.

The proposition to open another saloon with three already on the block is very remarkable, considering the character of the district, and the Excise Commissioners will receive due credit for refusing to be parties to a plan which would do much to depress values and greatly damage one of the finest streets on the West Side.

Real Estate Department.

There is nothing in the condition of the real estate market this week to call for comment. The fact that here and there an owner has parted with his property at a sacrifice price was to have been expected. The largest transaction of the week is a case in point. Here the owner wanted ready cash. He could have had $15,000 more for his property had he been willing to take back a mortgage of $100,000, but he wanted cash and made the concession necessary to get it. Had his property consisted of stocks or bonds it would have been just the same. It is said that in order to get the cash the buyer made a sacrifice sale of some securities. So the thing goes; if you want a large sum of cash in a time like the present you have got to make a sacrifice to get it. But these facts are apparent—that there are buyers ready for every piece of New York realty that is offered at a bargain—and that the scarcest thing on the bargain counter as yet is New York City real estate. Indications of an easier condition of things in the money market have inspired a little more confidence, and owners are hoping that the financial depression will pass by before it becomes necessary to make any reductions in prices. But if this is to be the case the change for the better must come quickly and emphatically. In any event the conviction is frequently expressed that unimproved lots must come down considerably before there will be any extensive revival of building operations.

QUARTER-DAY IN REAL ESTATE.

In the early days of the week a RECORD AND GUIDE reporter tried to get the attention of a prominent broker and agent for the purposes of an interview, but without success. The gentleman was busy with his office corps and his books and pleaded the stress of "quarter-day" business as an excuse for refusing to be interviewed. He had the collections due on that day to look after, the accounts therefor to prepare and the statements to fix up and send out. And this on the first of August.

Not many people, even in the real estate business, are aware that the real estate year is divided so that the quarter days fall on the 1st of May, which is relatively the real estate New Years, on the 1st of August, on the 1st of November and on the 1st of February, but so it is. Later in the week, when time was less pressing, the desired interview was accorded and written up and revised, and appears in another column of this paper. Then the broker said:

"Didn't know that the 1st of August was a quarter day, eh? Well, that's not so surprising as it seems. I've been twenty-seven years in this business and I don't pretend to know everything about it yet. Yes, the 1st of May is the controlling day in the renting business of all important down-town properties, and the year is divided by quarters, beginning with May 1st—August 1st, November 1st and February 1st.

"Are many of our rents paid quarterly? Certainly, in nearly all the big office buildings—yes, and on the leases of some big residences also. We have banks, bankers, brokers, insurance companies—all the big office tenants, you know, who pay their rent four times a year on the regular quarter days. And they paid on the first of August this year, promptly, too, every blessed one of them. How's that? I tell you the times are not so bad as they are represented to be."

At the meeting of the Board of Street Opening and Improvement, yesterday, the plans of the Department of Public Works for the widening and extension of Elm street from Chambers street to a junction with 4th avenue at 9th street were finally approved.

Gossip of the Week.

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

Hoffman Bros. have sold for Francis M. Smith the property, No. 2 Maiden lane, to S. J. Colford for $135,000. The lot is 21x88.10, and there is a five-story stone building upon it, rented for $12,400, with $1,000 vacant. Mr. Smith is a resident of Paris, and, it is said, refused $150,000 for the property only a month ago. The sale was finally made at the lower figure on a cash basis—literally, a fifteen days' contract. The property was really twice sold at the $135,000 figure, but the first buyer found it impossible to get so much money together in so short a time, and had to throw the bargain over. Within two hours another buyer was found who took the property. In the absence of both members of the firm, Hoffman Bros. were represented by E. P. Holdridge. Two other brokers were also interested in the transaction.

J. Kottek is the buyer of the Sixth street Baptist Church reported sold last week. Max Just was the broker.

Dow has leased the new six-story brick and stone store at Nos. 186 and 188 Wooster street, near Bleecker, size 50x100, to the Underwriters' Salvage Co., of New York, for five years, from May 1, 1894, at $9,000 per annum. Building News.

WEST FORTY-SECOND STREET CHANGES.

In the block between 6th avenue and Broadway, on West 42d street, there are four separate jobs in progress, three of which embrace the conversion to business uses of five of the imposing brownstone houses that have hitherto fronted on the street. Most important of these is the dismantling of the three dwellings, Nos. 135, 137 and 139 West 42d street, preparatory to their reconstruction for the use of Acker, Merrall & Condit, the grocers. The stoops have already been removed and some of the partitions also, and the excavation has begun. The buildings are to be extended to the full depth of the lots, strengthened and made convenient for a grocery business.

On the opposite side of the street, adjoining the St. Cloud Hotel, No. 144 is undergoing alterations, chiefly to the two lower stories, which are designed to fit the building with a store in each, and at No. 126, nearer 6th avenue and adjoining C. C. Shayne's fur store, the front has been taken out up to the second story and a new high plate-glass store front with a heavy cornice has been put in. Each of these jobs is significant of the transformation which was begun a few years ago and which will hardly cease until all the stately old residences in the street have given way to permanent business structures. The fourth job is the renovation and alteration of the St. Cloud Hotel, now nearly complete. For 42d street is sure to become a cross-town business thoroughfare, similar in character to 14th and 23d streets.

Out Among the Builders.

Charles Rentz has drawn plans from which L. Greenblatt intends to build a five story and basement brick, stone and terra cotta flat, 25x40 in size. The plot is on the southeast corner of Orchard and Hester streets. The building will be arranged for stores in the first story and the sidewalks will be vaulted. Cost, $18,000. The same architect has planned a three-story brick and stone stable, irregular size, to be built for I. Goodstein & Son at Nos 346 to 350 East 62d street, at a cost of $14,000. Also a six-story and basement brick, stone and iron factory and store, to cost $12,000, and to be built for H. Petry at No. 293 Delancey street; and for an alteration to be made in No. 149 East Broadway for Goodstein & Son. The interior will be altered, new front put in and a one-story rear extension built.

Architect Geo. F. Pelham has the plans in preparation for a one-story mottled brick stable, 50x100, with gravel roof, to be built for Christina Behlmer on 68th street, south side, 200 feet east of West End avenue. It is estimated to cost $12,000.

John Hauser is the architect of six three-story and basement dwelling houses to be erected in 114th street, south side, 125 feet east of Lenox avenue, for Louis Wirth. Two of the houses will be 16 feet front, one 16.8, two 17 and one 17.4, all 50 feet deep. They are to have bay window fronts, two will be of brownstone and the rest of buff brick with limestone trimmings. The trim will be hardwood throughout and all the latest improvements will be provided. They are estimated to cost $78 000

W. H. White, of Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., contemplates the erection of eight six story brick stores, on Wooster street, Nos. 203 to 224. The plot is 260x100 in size, and the stores will be similar in design to those now under construction at Nos. 189 to 195 Greene street, for which R. Berger was the architect.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

Mortgages against 23d and 24th Ward properties will be found all together at foot of this list.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—Rather a disconsolate set of operators was found on 'Change this week, the market having become pretty badly demoralized under the continued pounding of supplies without compensating demand. It is said the arrivals have been rather smaller and a goodly portion of them on contract, but there was evidently a larger quantity in hand than could readily be managed, and every promising-appearing buyer was promptly buttonholed and offered terms on a declining ratio until a trade was made or the would-be seller came to understand that further negotiation was useless, in that quarter at least. At present $5.25 is said to be the very tiptop figure, and some very good stock selling at $4.50, with poor stuff said to have gone inside $4; but the latter is probably the lowest accepted on stock from the River yards. Consumption has of course fallen away and is likely to do still more as work gradually reaches completion and nothing new of importance is begun, so that the market is dependent largely upon the manner in which supplies are forwarded. Appearances indicate that manufacturers generally have kept on shipping stock without much intermission, but some have suspended moulding and it is assumed more will follow unless the market improves in general tone and condition. Pales have had to follow the decline, and $2@2.25 seems to be considered almost the best that can now be depended upon.

LATH.—The little gain of tone noted last week was not sustained, simply because considerable additional arrivals came to hand and receivers were once more placed at a disadvantage. Indeed, so far as local custom was concerned it simply had to make a place for any stock it might conclude to invest in and to find buyers receivers had to look about in adjacent territory. The price settled off to $2 again on spruce, and while at the close a fraction more is asked, the only immediate hope for sellers is in moderate receipts. There seems to be very little said about the prospect for arrivals, but apparently a sort of suspicion that the stock manufacturers are desirous of selling is not all forward.

LIME.—A repetition of pretty much old stories was to be heard. Some arrivals have taken place, probably all if not more than wanted, and a few still remain unsold, but the combination of manufacturers and its influence here keeps a pretty steady line of value, with probably no special discounts allowed. Dealers report only a moderate measure of attention from consumers, and lack faith in any expansion the natural consequence of which is that they do not care to invest except for a working supply and assortment.

LUMBER.—The distribution of supplies is still in the main confined to deliveries under engagement and for building purposes, manufacturers wanting very little stuff and not a few of them manifesting a willingness to cancel contracts if a reasonable opportunity is afforded. Occasionally some new business is obtained but only when the buyer can give the most satisfactory terms, and an instance has come to our knowledge where a builder with quite a large job on hand is settling from day to day for the stuff as he cants it off. Naturally, with such poor encouragement dealers find themselves in a position where the most decided caution must govern their action and negotiations are in consequence limited as closely as possible to actual necessities, either in the way of ordering required special cuts or taking up some odd parcels to maintain a working assortment. Open offerings are as a rule limited, but there is evidence that in a quiet way salesmen are feeling the market in some cases, and are intimating to good houses that when they feel like talking business for winter supplies they may be able to obtain some favors

Price shows no change worthy of mention. Further business is reported in specials, but of an irregular character, and it takes dealers a long time to make up their mind to place orders even where it is evident that nothing can be gained by standing off. Randoms remain entirely nominal because there are so few offering and the uncertain character of the demand. It is believed that by this time there is place for a great deal of stock, but buyers incline to conceal their wants and wait, while receivers feel that if they had anything to offer it would be at a great disadvantage and would have to be upon an adjustable scale of prices to suit the merits of the buyer with whom they were dealing. Primal points report scant supply of logs at the mills and a large percentage of saws idle as a cautionary measure on the part of manufacturers. Piling is dull and of uncertain value.

Hemlock arrives occasionally and we hear the same story about it as for other woods; it comes forward mainly in the execution of running contracts and finds practically no new demand. Very few agents, however, are seeking trade, for bad as the conditions are a seller would simply have no chance at all who attempted to hurry negotiations or increase the line of custom.

White Pine, thoroughly staple in character, and without which no first-class assortment would be complete, seems to be just about as much neglected as any other description of stock. That is, it is not being generally purchased. A great deal of custom shows a measure of interest regarding the general chances for obtaining a supply, and occasionally a contract is made; but as a rule the tendency is simply to keep posted and wait a little longer to see how affairs will turn. Again we hear of tenders making at somewhat modified rates, but without resultant business, because even where custom can give satisfactory terms it still hesitates about committing itself to obligations until better satisfied regarding the business prospect.

Yellow Pine receives moderate attention from all sources and for all kinds of stock, although now and then a little custom is secured for specials for delivery later in the season. From some of the primary markets offerings still come in a manner that would seem to indicate a willingness to be very accommodating to each customer, yet the pressure to realize as a whole has not been so great as many of the trade have expected for this class of wood.

Carolina Pine enters into consumption to some extent, as it fills a great many wants for moderate priced goods, but offers a very poor market for sellers seeking custom for large invoices. Even the local mills which are enabled to do a good jobbing trade by filling the "immediate necessity" orders of a great many buyers who ordinarily negotiate direct with primal points only order cargo lots as from time to time their accumulations may commence to work down. Offerings are at former rates, and selling "according to agreement."

Hardwoods have nothing to recommend them more than other growths, and they are handled in the same slow conservative manner for some time noted. There does not appear to be any great degree of pressure from the selling side, indeed some of the thoroughly staple descriptions make rather a scanty showing owing to the natural refusal of manufacturers to place their product upon an unwilling market and they have to maintain that position so long as business continues in the present unpropitious condition. Prices are very uncertain, because nearly every deal is of a special character, but in a general way the advantages tend in buyers' favor, and there is quite a wide gradation according to desirability of custom.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

The Albany market is reported by Argus as follows:

The number of lumber dealers reporting a fair trade has now dwindled down to a very few, and the district has been rather more quiet than ever for the majority during the past week, if that is possible. Under these conditions it is fortunate that stocks are so light as prices can continue to be held firm and the dealers are not sacrificing anything. While some dealers look for better conditions after Congress shall have completed its labors, others are not sanguine. The river freights to New York are reported a little easier, but otherwise the situation is unchanged. The spruce mills on the upper Hudson have again shut down, and a break on the Champlain canal has been holding back receipts of spruce and hemlock and Canada pine for the past ten days. Hardwoods, shingles and lath are unchanged.

THE WEST.

Reports from all directions this week are even less favorable to actual current distribution than before this season. There are no places wherein even a fair demand is reported, except a little livening up at Ashland, Wis., Kansas City, and a fair local demand at Portland, Me., points so far distant one from the other that such reports have no bearing on the general condition. The demand has been reduced to a slow and meagre movement of stuff for immediate consumption in such building and improvements as are necessary. There is absolutely no anticipation of future trade in the purchase of wholesale stocks. This paralyzes the great volume of the lumber business throughout the country.

At Chicago, the market is still in a moribund state. A few cargoes are being sold, but there is really no general demand. Transactions are practically for cash. Dealers do not want to go in debt for lumber, and the commission men would not let them if they did. The yard men buy when they can raise the money and need the stuff for their trade. Lumber is consigned to the market by manufacturers who want to move a little to make piling room and get money with which to meet running expenses. When yard dealers buy at all, since they have to pay cash, they demand low prices and get them. This condition of things has forced piece stuff down to $8 50 a thousand, in some instances, and the outside figure is now stated at $9 for short lengths. There is little straight selling of exclusively long stuff, so that separate prices on such lumber are scarcely quotable.

The same may be said of wide joists and timbers. Prices are such as are made privately in each individual sale on all kinds of lumber. The money takes the stuff at the best figure that can be obtained.

Inch lumber has perhaps suffered less than piece stuff, but it has dragged in sales, and consequently has to some degree dropped in price.

Dealers are having some trouble with New York exchange. They frequently receive from country dealers drafts on New York, on which banks here charge about $20 a thousand for exchange. Dealers cannot stand that, and either send the drafts back to the makers, or charge the exchange to them. Country banks having balances in New York are inclined to draw them down in the present emergency, and hence urge yard dealers to accept New York drafts. The wholesale men here are advising their country customers to make their drafts on Chicago, as New York exchange is not desirable. This feature is becoming a serious hindrance in remitting payments.

As with all other woods poplar is in light demand, but this has failed, so far, to have any depressing effect upon prices, owing to low and broken stocks. Most of the mills are shut down and a number of them do not expect to start up again this season, as they are out of logs. Reports from some of the eastern markets indicate that more poplar is moving in that section than a month ago, but the demand is nothing to what it would be if times were good. Demand for poplar in the west is dull and dealers claim to be able to buy all they want at considerable below association prices. Stocks in the yards at Chicago are ample for all requirements.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman as follows:

That the cut in the great white pine territory of the upper Mississippi valley will this year fall considerable short of last year's cut is now certain. The action of the manufacturers of this district at their meeting Tuesday in Minneapolis, in resolving to shut down their mills Sept. 20th will cause at least a 25 per cent reduction in the cut, and many have not been planning to cut as much this year as last anyway. Last year's cut of white pine amounted to 9,000,000,000 feet, and it will fall at least 2,250,000,000 feet short, leaving a cut of 6,750,000 000 feet. Even less than this will probably be cut, and the logging operations over in Wisconsin this winter will amount to not more than half of last year's cut, and in the Minneapolis district not more than one third of last year's unusually large amount of timber will be banked. But in curtailing the cut, it is thought that an impetus will be given trade, in as much as there will be no large surplus of stock carried through the winter.

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trades' Journal says:

Just now the supply of Oregon pine is largely in excess of the demand. Two cargoes, one a very large one, arriving within a short period of each other, will necessitate considerable care in studying the market to avoid over pressure, which, in slow-selling goods of this character, would entail a serious sacrifice in the price. It is a pity that fine timber of this kind, with all the qualifications for high class work, is not better appreciated on this side of the Atlantic; but unfortunately, like sequoia and jarrah, the immense distance it has to come puts it out of the reach of the ordinary dealer here, the expense of holding it being its chief disadvantage to those who like a quick turn over. Only a limited number of the trade can afford to deal in it, and till some cheaper mode of getting it to market is hit upon, any rapid extension in the demand for it is unlikely.

METALS.—Copper—Ingot reported weak at the date of our last review has continued to grow more so and as lower prices do not seem to act as a stimulant to demand the condition of the market is quite unsettled. Openly the offerings do not seem to be extensive, but there has at all times been a supply quite equal to the outlet, with indications of enough behind to satisfy a great deal more custom. On the average range of valuation we quote at 9¾@9⅞c. for Lake and 9⅝@9¾c. for casting brands. Manufactured copper is meeting with less than the usual amount of attention and complaint over the condition of trade is more frequent than for some time past. Irregularity on price is also spoken of with the pitch in buyers' favor. We quote as follows: Sheet, not above 30x72 in., 16 oz. and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz., 23c.; do, 12 to 14 oz., 24c.; do, 10 to 12 oz., 25c.; do, 8 to 10 oz., 28c.; do, under 8 oz, 30c. Sheets longer than 72 inches add 1c. for 12@14 oz., 2c. for 10@12 oz, and 3c. for 8@10 oz. Sheets, not above 30x96 in., 16 oz and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 24c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 26c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 30c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 33c. Sheets longer than 96 inches 22c. for over 32 oz, and add 1c. for 16 to 32 oz.; 1c. 14 to 16 oz.; 1c. 12 to 14 oz,

1c. for 10 to 12 oz., and 12c. for 8 to 10 oz. Sheets, not above 48x96 32 to 64 oz, 22c.; do, 16 to 32 oz, 24c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 26c. do 12 to 14 oz, 28c.; do, 10 to 12 oz. 32c. Sheets wider than 48x96 and longer, 22@25c. for 32 to 64 oz.; 25@27c. for 16 to 32 oz, 27@29c. for 14 to 16 oz. and 29@34c. for 12 to 14 oz. All bath tub sheets, per lb., 16 oz. 24c.; 14 oz, 26c.; 12 oz 27c.; and 10 oz, 29c. Bolt copper, ⅜ inch diameter and over, 22c. Circles, segments and pattern sheets, 60 diameter and less, 3c. above price of sheets of same thickness; circles, 60 to 96 do do, 4c. do: circles, 96 do and over, 5c. do. Cold or hard rolled copper, 1@2c. per lb. above the foregoing prices. Copper bottoms, 26@32c. per lb. IRON—American Pig remains very dull and it is simply impossible to find any class of buyers willing to handle a supply until absolutely forced to by necessity, and that necessity is made the boundary of investment. Some of the poorer grades are selling lower and prices all around are weak. Production has become much curtailed and now stands at about 100,000 tons per week, against 185,000 tons normal. We quote at $14.00@15.00 per ton for No. 1 X foundry; $13.00@14.00 for No. 2 X do. and $11.75@12.50 for Gray Forge. Old material has uncertain value with a general inclination in buyers' favor, but possesses no attraction to increase the demand at the moment. Possibly, a pretty good supply could be reached if wanted. We quote at $16.00@16.50 for old iron rails; $15.00@16.50 for No. 1 wrought scrap; $11.50@12.50 for cast scrap, 13.50@14 for old car wheels, and $6.50@10.00 for borings, stove plate, etc. Manufactured iron participates in the general dull conditions and reports generally show dissatisfaction among sellers. Especially are complaints heard regarding the absence of calls for figuring on contracts for future delivery. Prices remain nominally unchanged We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary size, at 1.80@1.90c. from store, and refined at 1.90@2.20c; Rods round and square, 2.10@2.20c.; Bands, 2.20@2.30c.; Norway Nail Rods, 3¾@4c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 3.00@—c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1.10c. less on large lots from car. Steel rails, have found no improved sale. There was thought at one time to be a growing interest on the part of one or two leading roads, but the only purchases were a few small lots for repairs, with the old rate retained. We quote standard sections $29 per ton at mill, with usual advances for delivery at tide water Pig lead went to a lower line of value, under pretty free offerings for all deliveries and a generally indifferent sort of demand Of late, there has seemed to be a tendency toward greater steadiness. We quote at 3.30@3.35c per lb. The manufactures of lead are quoted at 6¼c. for Pipe, 7c. for Sheet, 15c. for Tin-lined Pipe, and 37½c. for Block Tin Pipe. Pig tin has been quite unsettled. Consuming demand was light and unimportant and the speculative line of operations found check through financial difficulties prevailing. Valuations are more or less nominal at the moment. We quote at about 18.25@18.30c. for round lots, and 18½@18⅝c. for jobbing parcels. Tin plate has found moderate sale, and mostly of a regular trade character, buyers investing merely to maintain assortments Prices unsettled with desirable custom obtaining favors in a quiet way. We quote as follows: I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment Melyn grade, $6.35@6.37½, each additional X add $1.50; I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Allaway grade, $5.60@5.65, each additional X add $1; Charcoal terne, M. F. grade, 14x20, $7.35@7.40; M. F. grade, 20x28, nominal; Worcester, 14x20, $5.70@5.75; Worcester, 20x28, $11.35@11.40; Dean grade, 14x20, $5.30@5.37½; Dean grade, 20x28, $10.50@10.70; D. R. D. grade, 14x20, $5.10@5.15; D. R. D. grade, 20x28, $10.10@10.15; I. C. Coke, Penian grade, 5.30@5.35; J. B. grade, 14x20, 5.40@5.45; I. C. Bessemer steel, squares, $5.60@—— basis; I. C. Siemens steel, squares, $5.65@—— basis Spelter has found about an ordinary car lot trade, with no large parcels wanted. Offerings fair and prices generally ranging easy. We quote 3.80@3.85c. for Common Western, according to brand.

NAILS.—There is no improvement in the general features of the market. Custom is limited principally to the regular run of operators and they in turn limit orders to just as small quantities as may seem likely to serve their most necessary wants The production is very small of both cut and wire nails but there has been plenty of stock to satisfy the wants of the market. We quote Cut at $1.05@1.25 per keg for car lots and $1.35@1.45 per keg for parcels from store for iron, and add 3c. per keg for steel; Wire, $1.50@1.55 at mills, and $1.80@1.85 from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Business in pretty much all kinds of paints, oils and colors is still of a moderate uncertain character. A great deal of dependent custom has shown a certain measure of interest recently that created an impression of orders to follow, but nothing has come to a point of trading, except some small purchases for assortment and only the most thoroughly staple stock handled. A period for larger consumption is about at hand in many of the suburban districts, but is in part balanced by orders already booked or a determination on the part of distributors to make stocks in hand go just as far as possible, and take additions only as an urgent necessity to do so may arise For all calls making now there is a plentiful supply of goods available and no trouble is made in matter of cost, although the policy of manufacturers seems to be to abstain from making official announcements of change, as for instance in case of leads. Corroders' rates stand as follows: Lead in oil in kegs and dry lead in kegs in lots of less than 500 lbs., 7¼c. net; in lots of 500 lbs. to 5 tons at one purchase, 6¾c.; 5 tons to 12 tons, one purchase, 6⅝c.; 12 tons and over, one purchase, 6½c.; kegs. Lead in oil in12½ lb. tin pails, add 1c.; in 25 and 50 lb. tin pails, add ½c.; and in 1 to 5 lb. tin cans, assorted (100 lbs. in case) add 2½c. per lb. to keg price. Terms on lots on 500 lbs. and over, note or acceptance at sixty days, or 2½ per cent. discount will be allowed for cash paid within fifteen days of invoice date. To make either of the above required quantities any assortment of packages of white lead, red lead and litharge may be counted. The above quotations are free on board cars or boat at corroding point. Linseed Oil meets with a demand bounded by the narrow limit of current trade wants and there is nothing particularly noteworthy in the market at the moment. About former rates ruling and the offering of supplies is equal to all calls. We quote on general range at 48@49c. for Western, 50@51c. for City from domestic seed, and 62@63c. for do. from Calcutta seed. Spirits Turpentine has generally ruled quiet and without positive change in value, though the tone on the whole is weak. We quote at 25½@26½c. per gallon, according to quality, quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—Business has shown some irregularity, but in no case reached any animation, because of the continued refusal among buyers to handle stuff in excess of clear cut wants. Supplies have been offered to full extent of market requirements and at easy rates. We quote Tar at $1.90@1.95 in pine or Wilmington bbls., $2.00@2.05 in pork bbls., and $3.70@3.75 in oil bbls., Pitch $1.50@1.70 offers a complete protection against

DRY ROT, FUNGI, MILDEW, MOLD AND CRYPTOGAMS,

and is available for both Wood-work and Masonry.

This new substance is a product of the FARBEN-FABRIKEN vorm. FRIEDR. BAYER & CO., Elberfeld, Germany. It has been thoroughly examined and tested by Professors V. MILLER and HARZ, who have stated that

"ANTINONNIN IS A PEERLESS PREVENTATIVE OF MILDEW."

The Chief Inspector of Buildings at Munich, Herr STETTNER, and many architects and builders, have indorsed this view.

Antinonnin is odorless, non-volatile, soluble in water, and makes eligible mixtures with Lime and other dis emper applications.

Antinonnin penetrates wood and remains in it, forming a perfect protection against fungi, mildew, and continuous dampness.

Antinonnin is far superior to Tar Oils, Carbolineum and similar preparations on account of its freedom from odor, its ease of application, its lasting properties, and its EXTRAORDINARY POWER AS A DESTROYER of all fungoid growths and all organisms which favor dampness and mildew.

ANTINONNIN

is the best application now known for the MASONRY and WOOD-WORK of CELLARS, STORE-HOUSES, WINE-CLOSETS, LAUNDRIES, STABLES, WATER-CLOSETS, all OUT-HOUSES, and all structures exposed to the influences of damp

Antinonnin may be mixed with pure water, lime water or whiteash, and applied with a brush or sponge

Appended quotations are based almost wholly upon prices obtained for goods from first hands. Yard rates necessarily range much higher owing to the expenses attending sorting out and grading cargo and even car lots, besides which must be added the cost of handling and carrying until consumers are ready to invest. Terms of sale also prove important factors and, altogether, it is impossible to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable n character.

VOL. LII. AUGUST 26, 1893. No. 1,328

THOUGH business should continue dull and Congress refuse to act promptly and effectually, there are still facts in the financial situation that make the outlook for the future more hopeful if we will choose to see it that way. The principle of mutual aid, for instance, found further development this week in the arrangements that were made to prevent the formal failure of one large house. A fellow-feeling makes us wondrous kind is true in this case. In ordinary times the banker or merchant has to stand each on his own feet and fight the world with his own two hands. But the necessity for mutual protection first drove the banks into union of action and the same principle is being extended to and among their customers with the very best of results in protecting values. If it could become a custom that no house of clean and conservative record should ever be permitted to go down under the slaughtering process it would have a large influence in steadying general business and in encouraging honorable dealings. It is the slashing of prices—or, in other words, the treading in the entrails of a fallen man that makes what is called a panic on the Stock Exchange. It must be noted, too, with satisfaction, that the reports of failures, both of banks and mercantile concerns, have been fewer in the past week. It is hard, of course, to imagine how under the present system of suspension of their own undertakings a bank can fail, but no doubt if suspension was desired the banking mind would be equal to the problem. But that they do not fail or that failures are fewer is a good feature. There have been signs of reawakenings here and there which also have their wholesome effect, notably the announcement of the starting up of the Joliet Steel Mills. The building up of the business of these mills was done by some of the shrewdest men in the country; they were among the first to shut down in anticipation of the times through which we have passed and their reopening indicates that the judgment which has deserved respect hitherto now inclines to the belief that it is time to make ready at all events for improved conditions in trade. Against this some might set the closing down of the Oliver Mills last week; but if it is a question of judgment, one would prefer the opinion of the man who shut down more than a year ago, and is opening up now, to that of one who has only closed down now under financial stress. So in one place or another there is something good to hear and see. The independence of the market of the movement of money in London is another good sign, and so is the rally of the Northern Pacific securities. It is not by any means a time to halloa, the woods are still around us with many dark places to pass through to reach the distant margin, but there are points of view from which the light can be seen gleaming through the foliage.

THE financial and commercial outlook in Europe remains unchanged, or at least there is nothing to record that may be considered of particular promise for the United States, unless it be the larger output of gold announced from South Africa. THE RECORD AND GUIDE pointed out last Fall that, while we in this country are theorizing about the monetary problem, much of a practical nature was being done in the Randt district towards settling the problem at least for the present. South Africa of late years has added immensely to the world's stock of gold, her production having increased from 230,640 ounces in 1888 to about 1,425,000 ounces in 1892. During the current year the output has been enlarged still more, being for the first seven months 791,140 ounces, compared with 663,983 ounces in the corresponding period of last year. At this rate the outturn for 1893 will approximate one and a-half million ounces, or, expressed in money equivalent at $20 to the ounce, $30,000,000. This is equal to the average annual gold production in the United States for the last ten years. Good judges assert that a very much larger output may confidently be expected in the 'Randt. Reports, too, come from Russia that due to improved appliances gold production in that country is increasing considerably. M. Ottomar Haupt estimates that last year the Russian mines yielded $29,500,000 worth of gold, and a larger production is looked for this year. In the face of these steadily-growing figures theorizing in Washington about the "scarcity of gold" appears somewhat as a waste of time. Certainly the monometallic nations are not at all likely to pay very much heed to bimetallism on an international basis so long as the production of gold is expanding in the way we have indicated.

THE end of another week of continued financial depression and business suspense finds the real estate market in the same passive condition that has characterized it for the last six weeks. Self-constituted prophets, whose sources of inspiration are manifestly not divine nor pure, have been testifying all manner of evil about real estate, and as a consequence there have been a good many people looking around among brokers' offices for choice parcels at bargain-counter prices, but they have been generally disappointed. Of course it will not be a surprising fact if now and then some too venturesome builder or weak-kneed owner is forced to liquidate on short notice and a foreclosure of his attenuated interest in the property result. So long as the incomes derivable from houses and other rentable properties are sustained there is no reason inherent in real estate for a decline in general market values, and a widespread canvass of brokers' offices this week elicits the universal statement that in all parts of the city rents are fully up to the figures of last year, and in a few instances houses—in the district below Central Park—have been leased at an advance. But again it must be admitted that, although inquiries by prospective tenants are frequent, the renting season for houses has not fully set in, and probably will not for another two weeks. Many brokers report a larger inquiry for houses, both to buy and to rent, than they had in August of last year. As another indication of the stability of the real estate market, the deluge of foreclosure sales prophesied by the prophets of evil, has not occurred, although the number of foreclosure suits filed is greater now than a year ago. There were only five foreclosure sales scheduled for this week, and all of these, save one, were adjourned. But again, by way of exception, it is a fact well known in the real estate field, that frequent loans have been made in the last few years, by lenders who hoped to ultimately get full title to the property by the foreclosure of their mortgages. They loaned up to 75 and even 80 per cent of what they considered the market value of the properties, in the expectation that some of the borrowers would be caught in difficult financial positions and would not be able to carry their "equities," and would have to let their properties go. This fall will doubtless see some of this class of mortgages foreclosed, but market prices may not be affected by these proceedings, for the mortgagees will follow up their original intentions and take title to the property even against outside bidders.

THE curtain has been rung up again upon the Rapid Transit problem, and we find the same old farce in the process of enactment. Mr. Bushe comes forward with a scheme for a new elevated road to be constructed by private capital along the West-street-Seventh-avenue-Boulevard-Kingsbridge-road route, and the multitude of cranks with viaduct and deep tunnel and hundred-mile-an-hour electrical devices emerge clamorously from the blessed retirement to which they were consigned by the recent fruitless negotiations with the Manhattan Company. The Commissioners gather the cloak of officialism around themselves again and gravely sit down once more in their William Street sanctum to listen to the reiteration of all the sad stuff and nonsense which was poured into their ears during the past twelve months. The newspapers are taking up their old cries, praising what they once damned, damning what they once praised. Everybody talks at the same time; din and confusion deepens; passengers crowd indecently into the elevated cars just as they have done during the last five years or more; and Commissioners, cranks, newspapers and public fancy they are actively engaged solving the rapid transit problem!! Has there ever been a parallel to this tiresome, senseless folly? Was any important public matter ever treated in a way so thoroughly asinine?

IT WOULD be well if a stop were put to this promiscuous chattering. Intelligent action is impossible until we thoroughly understand the position we are in, and the possibilities before us. In the first place, do we or do we not require immediate betterment of our transit facilities. If we do, it is sheer nonsense to talk of ignoring the Manhattan Co. The city cannot get quick relief from any source other than the present elevated roads, unless our engineers have become prestigitators. On the other hand, is it not equally plain that if the Manhattan be permitted to build extensive additions to its system it is folly to expect that private capital can be induced to construct the much talked of "adequate system of rapid transit" which everybody agrees the city needs. Indeed, what is the nature of this "adequate system" which advocates of underground, viaduct and elevated systems all alike deem necessary? We are told it must extend from the Battery to the Yonkers line. Its capacity must be very much greater than that of any of the present "L" roads and it must admit of great expansion so as to meet the future needs of the metropolis. The trains on it must run thirty to forty miles an hour, and, whether the road be underground or overhead, they must be propelled by some less noisy and odorous force than steam. Finally, the through fare must not exceed five cents. This, or something like it, is what the public says it wants; and the belief is that private capital will come forward and produce the article needed. Greater nonsense never got into the heads of people out of a lunatic asylum. The fact is, private capital cannot give New York the transit service it needs and is looking for. It is sheer silliness to say as some do, "we want the adequate system (as described) but we don't want it from the hands of the municipality." The only course then is to throw the "adequate system" overboard and cease talking about it. The choice lies between "adequate system" from the municipality and make-shift system from the Manhattan Co., or some other corporation, and if the city determines to rely upon corporate enterprises, we believe it is the wildest of wild goose chases to go hunting for any corporation other than the Manhattan. It is in the field, it can better afford to act than any outsiders, and it has its political and financial connections in all quarters to exclude opposition. We believe the Manhattan can't afford to build to the Yonkers line or do half the things the Rapid Transit Commissioners lately demanded; and if that Company can't do them, no one else can. In other words the "adequate system" or the "half adequate system" doesn't square with "business" and dividends, and can't be made to do so just now. Isn't it time for us to recognize where we are at, and not continue to flounder around demanding the impossible. If we want "immediate relief" we must go to the Manhattan. It is crass nonsense to demand "immediate relief" in one breath and in the next to say "we should have nothing to do with the Manhattan." It is equal folly to cry for an "adequate system," and then declare some private company must build it. Finally, it is ridiculous to say to the Manhattan Company "extend your lines, add new tracks and loops," and then turn round and expect to find some other corporation ready to accept the "leavings" of the rapid transit problem.

IN dealing with that faction of our people who are shrieking for more money, and who think that we must have $50 per capita or go into universal bankruptcy, it may be useless to appeal to statistics because such men hold that if facts do not agree with their theories so much the worse for the facts. But there are some suggestive figures which give the amount of currency afloat in different countries, and it may be well enough to call attention to these figures for the benefit of men who are not impregnably entrenched in a priori opinions. England with her enormous Colonial and foreign commerce added to her domestic commerce maintains an incomparably larger traffic than France, and, could the figures be obtained, it would probably be found to rival that of the United States notwithstanding our larger population. In other words, England, with very much less currency than France and still less currency than the United States, manages to plod along, covering the whole ocean with her fleets, with no more panics than other countries experience: and so abominably set in their ways are those Englishmen that they cannot be convinced that they need any more money. The idiots seem to prefer commercial paper of one kind or another, only insisting that it shall be measured by the standard of the gold sovereign. How exceedingly dull they must be! But they know how to take their revenges against a people who clothe themselves in silver, and refresh themselves with showers of silver certificates as a means of averting commercial drought. They secretly think, no doubt, that we do not know how to do business. On reflection, too, there is cause enough for suspecting that they are more than half right. But we have one foil that may be interposed. The influences that have led to our inflated monetary ideas have not sprung from our successful financiers but from our statesmen. Good business men and sound economists are likely to have corresponding ideas all the world over.

Rapid Transit.

A proposition for an independent elevated railroad line was laid before the Rapid Transit Commission on Wednesday by Mr. Bushe. The route indicated is from Battery place up West to 11th street, thence to 7th avenue and thence via Broadway and the Kingsbridge road to the city limits. He also proposed a branch line, beginning in Church street at Murray street, and running through Church to Lispenard and through private property to Canal street; thence along Wooster street and University place to Clinton place, to 6th avenue, to Greenwich avenue to a junction with the main line at 7th avenue. After the meeting Lawson N. Fuller said this was the original Washington-Heights-Taxpayers'-Association plan, and he was sure it would be quite satisfactory to the Manhattan Company. Mr. Bushe was asked after the meeting was over whether there was anybody behind the plan proposed by him, but he gave the evasive answer: "It is the work of the Commission." The plan will be considered next Wednesday. It can be nothing more than a stop-gap, however, affording the Commission something to putter over until the question of municipal construction is settled by the people in the fall.

Mr. Robert A. Chesebrough on the Financial Situation.

Men's hopes and hearts are set on the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman Act as the sole remedy for the financial crisis, and perhaps for that reason only, if for none other, it were well to repeal it; but supposing that result is not attained, is it well to let the people believe that real danger assails the country, and that their financial interests are actually to be destroyed, unless those hopes are realized? It would certainly seem that such a course was unwise and cruel in the extreme, and, besides that, it is not true; and why should not the people be told the truth. The last three months has furnished evidence enough to show what blind unreasoning fear worked up by red hot journalism can do, and argument seems useless in the face of such an object-lesson; but still common sense will in the end prevail, and reason resume its sway eventually.

First—What can the repeal of the purchase clause possibly do, but to stop the purchase of a few million ounces of silver per month, at lower prices than are recorded in the annals of mankind, and which, unless all previous history is at fault must result in large profit to the purchaser. If this amount was spent annually on forts and iron clads, which become obsolete or worthless in a few years, no one thinks that would mean national bankruptcy, but because it is paid out for immutable, imperishable and unchangeable silver, which we still retain as an asset, we are in the very throes of despair.

Second—Should the Sherman Act stand unrepealed, and the present price for silver be retained, it will be impossible to buy 54 million native ounces per annum, for the simple reason that it will not be produced in the United States.

The entire product last year was 57 million ounces, of which Colorado yielded 24 millions, but this year its mines are practically shut down, and it is unlikely that the total yield of all the States will reach 36 million ounces during the next twelve months. Of this amount 12 to 15 millions will probably be exported—and the former large stock in the Mercantile Trust Company has dwindled to practically nothing. Allowing that something will be used up in the Arts, where is the United States going to get its 54 million ounces under the Sherman Act. Not certainly from Europe, unless all principles of trade are reversed and silver flows to cheap markets instead of dearer ones, as it is now doing and will continue to do. Possibly a few million ounces may dribble in from Mexico as it has done in the past, but even this source of supply has been shut off by the prevailing low prices, for why should it come here at its bullion value of 70 cents, when it has a money value of one dollar in Mexico.

What the people should know is that the prosperity of the United States does not depend on whether the nation buys silver or not, or to what use it may hereafter put it; but that it does depend on the maintenance of the national credit and honesty and on the fulfillment of every obligation it has undertaken. This clearly understood and appreciated, the Sherman Act becomes immaterial and the annual aggregate amount involved is even less than the monthly household expenses of running the government. As our revered Lincoln once said: "You can fool some of the people all the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time." Neither will it so prove in this case.

"ORNAMENTAL IRON."

Among the interesting trade publications is Ornamental Iron, a new candidate for public favor. It is published monthly in Chicago by The Winslow Bros. Co., iron workers. It is of very neat appearance, and handsomely illustrated by photogravure process from designs that have from time to time been worked out in the establishment of the publishers.

Bimetallism in the United States.

VIEWS OF PRESIDENT ST. JOHN OF THE MERCANTILE NATIONAL BANK.

With the facts submitted in last week's RECORD AND GUIDE, on the bimetallism of France, I mentioned that an economist or financier of the repute of Chevalier had not been able to persuade the authorities to close the mints of France against the coining of gold, in 1853, although Holland did afterward discard it. We are yet to discover whether, or not, economists of no higher repute in our day are to persuade the United States to abandon silver.

Doubtless it was astounding to witness, in the decade ending 1860, the average production of gold in one year exceeding the aggregate production of gold in any ten years of the three centuries before: a quarter-century's production of gold surpassing the aggregate production of gold in the prior 300 years. But Chevalier was in error in predicting that gold was about to be "as plentiful as iron," and therefore "no longer fit to rank with silver" as primary money.

Our coinage act of 1792, founding the Mint, established bimetallism as the system of the United States, Jefferson agreeing with Hamilton that "the unit must stand on both metals." Fifteen pounds weight of pure silver was the decreed equivalent of one pound weight of pure gold; a relation, or "coinage ratio," of 15 to 1. The "Dollar or Unit" was appointed to contain 371.25 grains of pure silver: the identical weight of pure silver in our standard silver dollar of to-day. But by act of 1834 the $10 gold piece was made to contain 232 grains of pure gold; i. e., 23.2 grains to the dollar, as against 371.25 grains of silver in the silver dollar, a new coinage ratio of about 16 to 1.

The preponderant influence in securing this alteration of the ratio in 1834 was the then incumbent Secretary of the Treasury, Thomas Benton. Seizing upon the old ratio erroneously as cause enough for him for an effect which he deplored, Mr. Benton attributed to the ratio a notable absence of gold from circulation. Had the eyes of his experience been opened wider, he would have noted likewise an absence of silver from circulation, other than in small change. The real effect which he but partially conceived, namely, the absence of gold and silver in large transactions, was caused by the abundance of bank notes afloat and much popular distrust of many of them.

Mr. Secretary Benton felicitated himself later upon the return of gold into current circulation, attributing its return to his new-found coinage ratio. He, failed again, however, to notice quite as free a circulation of silver concurrently, this joint effect on gold and silver being largely due to the abolishment of the joint-stock corporate notes of the Bank of the United States. And recollect that at that time half-dollars, quarters and dimes were as unlimited legal tender as gold coin until 1853, which may explain the limited coining of the unwieldy silver dollar piece in those days.

But Mr. Senator Sherman, of Ohio, is the economist or financier against whose convictions I submit historic facts to day, dealing with his remarks in the Senate of the United States on January 13, 1891. This speech is so highly valued as still to be advertised occasionally for sale in pamphlets at 2 cents each.

SENATOR SHERMAN: "If any article is allowed to be coined which is cheaper than another, the cheaper article will take the whole volume of circulation, and the dearer article will either be hoarded by those who value it higher or be exported to other countries where its use is demanded. * * * I shall only cite the example in our own country. * * * In 1792 gold was undervalued by the relation of 15 of silver to 1 of gold * * that slight deflection from the standard that was adopted only three or four years afterwards by the French Government demonetized gold. * * There was none of it in the country. The history of the country shows that. * * * I have already said that from 1792 to 1834 gold was demonetized because it was undervalued, and after that silver was demonetized because it was undervalued. * * * And when the ratio was adopted in 1834 all the silver of our country fled from the country, because it was valued in other countries higher than 16 to 1."

But the facts of record in the Bureaux of Statistics and the Mint refute the Senator flatly. Thus, in the period cited first in which, according to the Senator, our coinage ratio "demonetized gold," the aggregate coinage of gold exceeded the aggregate coinage of silver in the first eighteen years. During the second period when, according to the Senator, "all the silver of our country fled from the country, because it was valued in other countries higher," the aggregate coinage of silver during the first eight years exceeded by $6,000,000 the aggregate coinage of silver during the prior forty years. Later comparisons of coinage would be unfair, after 1842, because our gold production from an aggregate of $7,500,000 during ten years to 1842 increased to an aggregate of $103,000,000 during the next eight years to 1850; while the production of silver in the United States had not exceeded $1,000,000 in gross to this last-named date. Nevertheless, we find a coinage of silver exceeding $18,000,000 alongside a coinage of gold of $86,000,000 in these last-named eight years.

But note the following selected details:

MINT RECORD WITH THE RATIO AT 15 TO 1. COINAGE.			MINT RECORD WITH THE RATIO AT 16 TO 1. COINAGE
For 1809	gold $169	to silver $767	For 1835	gold $2,186	to silver $3,443
1810	501	618	1836	4 135	3,606
1813	477	620	1837	1,148	2,096
1815	3	17	1838	1,869	2,333
1819	258	1,140	1839	1,376	2,209
1820	1,319	501	1840	1,675	1,736
1826	92	2,002	1841	1,091	1,132
1833	678	2,759	1842	1,829	2,332
1834	3,009	3,004

Observe herein the relative coinage of gold and silver, before and after 1834, varying independently of ratio. Note, first, the coinage of silver in 1819 at 14 times the coinage of gold; and next year the coinage of gold at 2½ times the coinage of silver, this being the period in which "gold was demonetized," unless the Senator is wrong. Next, in the period following 1834 when, unless the Senator is wrong, "all the silver of our country fled," note the coinage of silver during each of the first eight years, with a single exception, as exceeding the year's coinage of gold; in some of the years a coinage of silver nearly double the coinage of gold; and an aggregate coinage of silver exceeding by $4,000,000 the aggregate coinage of gold in these first eight years.

But the facts refute the Senator more flatly still, if reported on the net movement of gold and silver into and out of the United States, as follows:

Thus, prior to 1834, while, according to the Senator, the existing ratio "demonetized gold," and "there was none of it in the country," the records show a gain of gold by net import in excess of export of gold during every year, 1825 to 1833 inclusive. And oddly, too, we observe a loss of silver by excess of exports over imports of silver during three of these nine years. Again, after the alteration of the ratio so as to undervalue silver and while, according to the Senator, "all the silver of our country fled," the records show a gain of silver by excess of imports, exceeding $26,000,000 in four years.

Note also, that this net gain of $26,000,000 of silver is accompanied with a net gain of only $23,000,000 of gold in these four years. Also, that these $23,000,000 of gold and $26,000,000 of silver are net imports of the two metals in the self-same years; a flat refutation of the assumption that the new coinage ratio enticed gold and banished silver. And note finally, from all records complete, that every important movement of the money metals into and out of the United States, up to the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861, have been invariably joint movements of the two metals in one and the same direction.

Therefore, with all the actual facts accepted as the sole basis of just conclusions, Mr. Senator Sherman and Secretary Benton appear alike inaccurate and in error as to the effect of either coinage ratio, as serving at any time to demonetize either gold or silver.

The error of Mr. Secretary Benton and the Senator was due, if I mistake not, to their equally exaggerated notions of the effectual operation of the so called "Gresham law;" an insidious monetary law whose discovery is more justly attributable to Aristophanes than to Gresham.

This so-called Gresham law, although insidious in operation, is doubtless as certain and continuously effective as the law of gravitation. But when we witness the blade appearing from the ground and mounting, ever upward, into a stately tree, we perceive a law quite as natural as the law of gravitation and effectually overcoming the law of gravitation, as long as there is life. The life principle in commerce also is as certainly and continually overcoming effectually this so-called Gresham law. History affords us no single example of the unobstructed operation of this so insidious monetary law.

The records of no nation, whose mints were open to the unlimited coinage of both, show any continuous banishment of the one metal with the enticement of the other, for coinage or settlements in trade. Least of all, can any pretense of such cross movements of the money-metals be adduced from the records of the United States.

The experience, quoted last week, of the open mints of France, dealt with periods of a production of silver 50¼ times and 4½ times the production of gold each year; a range, at coin value, between 76 per cent silver with 24 per cent gold, and 78 per cent gold with 22 per cent silver; both comparing with the present production of silver at about 23 times the weight of the gold, or 59 per cent of silver with 41 per cent of gold at coin value, for the year 1892.

But the viciousness of any so extravagant conception of the insidious Gresham law, on the part of many as influential as this Senator, will yet be measured properly in the history of the United States, if this conception shall serve, in the present crisis, to discard silver by law as no longer fit for primary money in the United States.

MUNICIPAL NOTES.

Commissioner Michael T. Daly, of Public Works, will receive bids until Monday next, August 28th, at noon, for the following jobs:

For furnishing materials and performing work in pointing up, cleaning and painting the exterior walls of the Third District Court House.

For furnishing material and performing work in the pointing up the exterior walls of the Seventh Regiment Armory.

For furnishing materials and performing work in flagging and curbing the sidewalks of the new Criminal Court House, on the block bounded by Centre, Elm, Franklin and White streets.

For sewer in 183d street, between Amsterdam and 11th avenues.

* * * *

The bids for the construction of the Third Avenue Bridge over the Harlem River will be opened in the office of the Commissioner of Public Works on Tuesday next, at noon, by Commissioner Daly.

* * * *

The Dock Department will receive proposals until Tuesday, Sept 5th, for the materials and work for constructing a new dumping board on Pier 42, North River. About 85,000 feet of yellow pine, 10,000 of spruce and 13,000 pounds of iron are embraced in the engineers' estimates.

* * * *

The Fort Washington Ridge Road Commission (office No 115 Broadway), will receive proposals until September 11th, at noon, for regulating and grading the Fort Washington Ridge road, from 11th avenue Boulevard and 159th street to the Kingsbridge road.

The big ten-story granite and iron power-house and office building of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, on Elm street, running through from Duane to Pearl street, will not be finished this year. The building is ready for the roof, and the interior framing is nearly complete. But as a measure of economy, induced by the tightness of the money market, the company has issued orders to the contractors to complete only such work as is necessary to put the building in shape for the winter's work. President Bowker said yesterday that this, with much other work of construction, had been begun by the company before there were any premonitions of severe financial weather, and it had concluded that a proper regard for the existing financial conditions required them to economize in this way.

MUNICIPAL BUILDING PLANS.

Next Friday, September 1st, will be the final day for the reception of competitive plans for the new municipal building that is to occupy the site of the present City Hall and some adjacent park land. Already one set of plans has been received—all the way from Savannah, Ga. This fact affords an indication of the widespread interest evoked in architectural circles by the competition. The indications are many, also, that the architects of this city will be well represented in the competition, for most of the leading offices have had large corps of draughtsmen at work on competitive drawings all through the summer season. The terms of the competition seemed to offer a fair field with a likelihood that the best plan would win, and as the prize will be one of the largest the country will ever afford, the inducements were sufficient to insure a more general and widespread competition than has ever been had. The result ought to be most interesting. The assembly at any time of a large number of sketches and perspectives of a great public building by the representative architects of a nation would be an artistic event of importance, and when there is the added incentive of competition for a prize affording a comfortable life fortune and a conspicuous niche in the temple of fame, surely the "inspiration" is not wanting for a triumph of national art.

The Town of Roselle.

[COMMUNICATED.]

ROSELLE, N. J., Aug. 21, 1893.

I have been spending a day here and have enjoyed a drive along the splendidly macadamized roads which have made Union County famous all over the country. It is not too much to say that these roads have done more to attract New Yorkers to New Jersey and increase the value of its real estate than aught else.

Roselle is situated on the line of the New Jersey Central Railroad. It is reached in about 35 minutes from Liberty street by the express trains, and in about 50 minutes by the way trains. There are 62 trains daily from New York, with a headway of from eight minutes and over between 3.40 and 7 P. M., while there are 44 trains daily to New York. There are several trains daily also by the Lehigh Valley Road, which runs through the northern part of the town.

What impressed me in the journey over the Jersey Central Road was the absence of dust and cinders, hard coal being used and the road-bed being finely ballasted. The trip is largely in front of the water breezes, and the cool air and absence from dust are in marked contrast to the journey through the tunnel on the Harlem and New York Central Roads.

Arriving at Roselle I found one of the prettiest depots on the line of the road. It is not so much the depot I refer to, but the park and beautiful elm and maple trees in it. This gives the depot an attractiveness which is to be further enhanced by a fountain, with which the local residents are about to adorn the park.

Roselle owes much of its success to its selection by the principal officers of the Jersey Central Road as their home. It was also the first place in the United States to be lighted by electricity, Edison having put in his "pet" plant here. The result is that to-day not only every street, but every house containing the modern improvements, is lighted by electricity, a very unusual thing even in these days of electric lighting. Then again all the roads running through the town are macadamized. Water pipes are laid and the one defect of sewering is about to be remedied by the letting of a contract to give a first-class system of sewage to the town by next winter at a cost of about $60,000. It is also to have a supply of gas for cooking and heating purposes, the residents of Roselle being quite abreast of the times.

A prominent feature of the town is the large number of fine shade trees which line the streets. Then there is an absence of tumble-down houses, nearly every villa being modern and attractive. I did not see any factories or even a single saloon.

VALUE OF LOTS.

The prices of lots vary from about $600 to $1,500 each. All the lots here are laid out 50x200 in size, which is equivalent to a dimension of four New York City lots. It will thus be seen that, with electric lights, macadamized roads, water pipes laid and sewers about to be laid, with access to Wall street and the City Hall in about 50 minutes, the value of property here is absurdly low.

As a matter of fact, good building lots are now being offered at even lower figures than those I have named, within a few blocks of the Jersey Central depot. These lots are owned, so I learn, by Melville C. Smith, of Broadway Arcade fame, who is said to have purchased twenty-one acres in the heart of the town, some twenty years ago. They are now being offered at about $450 per lot, and upward, which is somewhat lower than the price of neighboring vacant ground. The property is improved with a number of attractive villas, costing, I should say, from about $3,000 to $8,000 each, and all the lots are restricted.

PROMINENT RESIDENTS.

When the principal officers of a railroad select a town in which to reside there is good reason to believe that they have selected pretty nearly the ream spot on the line of their road. With the exception of the President himself, many of the principal officials of the Jersey Central Road reside at Roselle. Among them are Vice-President S. M. Williams, General Passenger Agent H. P. Baldwin, Superintendent W. H. Peddle, Freight Auditor W. E. Miner, Purchasing Agent De Witt Smith, Chief-Engineer M. W. Mulford and others.

Among the other residents, most of them New York business men, are the following: C. A. Merrill, general superintendent of the Pullman Car system in New York; Temple T. Berdan, stock broker; C. V. Banta, cashier of the Merchants' National Bank; E. W. Bodine, stock broker; Frank E. Earl, of the Atlas Steamship Co.; Chas. Dexter Miller, ex-president of the Cotton Exchange; Rudolph C. Blancke, flour merchant; John I. Howe, of Adams & Howe; Miller Moore, the ship-builder; J. McGifford, superintendent of the Union County electric light system; Read Gordon, of Gordon & Dilworth; W. T. West, dry-goods merchant; Prof. Helm; and D. Quackenbush, E. P. Tenney and other retired merchants. The Countess Pauciatich, who owns considerable property in the vicinity, also resides here.

F. M. Tiernan, a local real estate agent, informs me that there is quite a demand for improved cottages here. The rents range from $400 to $800 for houses with modern improvements, including electric light. The tax rate in the township is 1.25 per cent, property being assessed at a very low figure.

THE CASINO.

The Casino is the great centre of social life. It has only recently been finished and has cost, with ground, about $20,000. It is an attractive building, in Colonial style, from plans by Oscar S. Teale, of New York. It has four bowling alleys, billiard tables, a tennis court, ladies and gentlemen's toilet and reception rooms, and an auditorium for dances and musicales capable of seating 500 people. The wives and daughters of members are admitted to the privileges of the club. At a fair held recently to raise funds for furnishing the Casino, about $1,500 was realized

There is a baseball club attached to the Casino, and games are held every Saturday.

NOTES.

There are four schools here—two private and two public. The latter rank among the best in the State. Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Methodists and Baptists are represented in five churches.

One of the prettiest and best-conducted hotels in any town in the State, outside of the great coast resorts, is to be found here in the Van Court Inn, near the depot.

The State Board of Health reports show that Roselle stands among the first three of the healthiest towns in New Jersey. The town is about 70 to 75 feet above tide-water. The statistics show that only one death occurred in six years among two hundred children between five and eighteen years of age.

An electric surface road is projected to run through the town, connecting with Plainfield on the west and Elizabeth on the east.

The commutation to New York is about ten cents each way.

The low price of lots at Roselle is due, evidently, to want of advertising. Numerous places have been "boomed" where lots have sold much higher, without being able to show any of the advantages of Roselle—such as electric light, fine roads, frequent trains and an established population of a good class. It may be interesting to many New Yorkers to know that they can secure lots so cheaply at a place such as this. OBSERVER.

Real Estate Department.

The tax rate, as intimated in THE RECORD AND GUIDE more than a month ago, has been fixed at the rate of $1.82 per $100 of assessed value. This is the lowest rate of assessment for thirty years. With it is coupled the fact that the assessed valuation as well as the real valuation of New York City realty is larger than ever before. The aggregate assessed valuation is $1,933,518,529, which is larger by $105,254,254 than in any previous year.

The Health Department estimate of the population of New York City on August 5th was 1,897,651, and the death rate for that week was 22.79 per thousand.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

Mortgages against 23d and 24th Ward properties will be found all together at foot of this list.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

Regarding the above liens against Herter Bros. (Chas. Weinstein, $4,700, and Preusch, $3,062), it may be mentioned here that Weinstein has a contract with Herter Bros. to the amount of $4,700, and has transferred the largest part of it to said Preusch, who has furnished only window frames yet, amounting to perhaps $300, of which nothing is due as yet. Weinstein has not furnished or done work for one cent, yet there appear liens amounting to almost $8,000.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—With no positive change for the better there is not much to say for the market this week. Prices do not stand quite as full as at the date of our last, and $5 is now generally conceded to be the extreme, unless there be some extraordinary conditions of special character governing a negotiation. It is not a matter of cost evidently that deters buyers from taking hold with greater freedom, but simply an absence of use for stock beyond the moderate quantity they are willing to handle from time to time. The fortunate and favorable feature of the situation has been found in the moderate offerings, the daily arrivals showing quite a shrinkage as compared with the preceding two or three weeks, and the first hand supply was frequently closely sold down. Such conditions were the natural sequence of the condition of the market, which has had the result to cause a suspension of the production at quite a number of yards, a piling of stock at others where facility for such exists, with other manufacturers likely to stop work soon, especially some who are believed to have suffered considerable damage from this week's storm. All hands, too, are naturally desirous of curtailing shipments at ruling rates, which are not remunerative even at cash down terms. Sales remain dull, and are also tame in tone, with few bids above $2 per M.

LATH.—The market evidently has not reached a point of recuperation yet and about the main comfort receivers seem to find is that matters are no worse under the adverse conditions developed. The arrivals failed to fall off as sharply as calculated upon and every additional parcel coming to hand placed receivers at a further disadvantage, from which even the search for custom at outside points could not relieve them promptly, and it was simply a case of accepting low figures or attempting to carry. There is a noticeable antipathy to quoting anything below $2 and probably at the present writing that is a fairly approximating valuation, but for net cash it is generally understood that buyers have been accommodated at a much lower figure. Of course dealers must now be pretty well stocked and the hope of the market is in moderate arrivals or none at all for a while.

LIME.—There is plenty of stock here for the demand, the supply composed entirely of Rockport and Thomaston, but it is controlled well enough and the old line of price sanctioned. The working of the manufacturers' combination seems to be all right thus far, but it ought to have the test of a broader demand in order to see if the output and forwarding of supplies can be thoroughly controlled.

LUMBER.—Very little of an encouraging character can be found in the general situation, and in view of difficulties encountered by some of the wholesale operators, with fears entertained that others may be struggling to keep on their feet, a great many of the trade are inclined to a pessimistic tone in forecasting the market. They take the ground that the lumber business differs from other lines of trade in many particulars in being affected by divisions of the season and that the time has now passed for any possible recuperation to a full and healthy state of affairs in this year's deal. Some building operations have been entirely abandoned, a great many postponed until next spring, and those contemplated during fall and winter will not be liberal lumber consumers, while the manufacturing interests are exceedingly cautious and much less inclined to negotiate ahead of consuming wants than usual. Nevertheless there seems to be really more unpromising talk than is really necessary and the suggestion that there may yet be a good and possibly a lively fall trade is by no means an unreasonable one so far as the handling of bulk parcels for general stock and assortment may be concerned at least, and especially for thoroughly staple lines of stock.

Pretty much all yard dealers including many who indulged in an immense amount of grumbling, have either in the execution of contracts or through fresh sales been steadily eating into their accumulations during the period they were unwilling, or, through the influence of financial conditions, unable to provide for renewals, and stocks at this point are unquestionably scant. Furthermore, because, here and there a prominent house has met with misfortune through abnormal conditions that the best of management could not in all cases circumvent, it is unfair to assume that the entire trade is in danger of following. On the contrary, the major portion of our lumbermen were among the very first to comprehend the impending prostration of business and so shaped their methods as to withstand the enervating influences prevailing during the past few months in a commendable manner. Indeed, we do not believe it is any real lack of ability to obtain credit or even pay outright for stuff, if needs be, that is now restraining demand from many important and desirable sources, but simply a want of power to overcome the feeling of apprehension so long entertained, and there is reason to hope that faith will revive in response to the steady convalescence in financial affairs.

In natural sequence of reasoning it is assumed that just as soon as confidence commences to be felt, negotiations for supplies will open up in more satisfactory form, and bring something like animation into the lumber market once more. Agents and commission men, resident and traveling, are already skirmishing to some extent, and will probably be prepared to meet such demand as is likely to develop, although they claim to have no large quantity of stock, and assert that the mills will only work up to the amount of booked orders. The matter of cost is still a point of uncertainty, with a reasonable chance, however, that buyers have lost nothing during their period of enforced quietness. Prices at the moment are largely of a nominal character, because nearly all deals in bulk parcels have to be governed by influences at the moment of consummation rather than by any uniformity of action among either buyers or sellers. Cases have come to our knowledge where differences of all the way from 50c. to $2.00 per M have been shown on transactions almost identical as to quantity and quality, and sometimes taking place within a few hours of each other. It was simply a question as to whether the buyer or the seller was fooled into trading. The conditions mentioned will apply to pretty much all the leading descriptions of stock with more or less force, and we omit our usual detailed reference this week as practically useless.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES

STATE.

The Albany Argus as follows:

The lumber trade during the past week has been dull in all lines. Few buyers have appeared in the district and the dealers have been a blue lot. Some stock is being received all the time, but there has been practically no shipments from here since our last report. Prices have not been much affected, though there is rather a softer tendency in some lines. The boatmen are the only ones having a good season. Canal freights have been $2.00 since the opening. Last year, at this time, the freight was only $1.30. Spruce and hemlock, hardwoods, and shingles and lath are unchanged. The mills on the upper Hudson are still closed.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

The lumber business of the entire country, on the threshold of a hoped for fall trade, is waiting. Judging from reports received in this office during the week, the trade is resting more quietly than at any previous time this season. All operators seem to have reached a point where nothing is to be gained by effort, and they have sat down, so to say, until there is a call for them to rise to new endeavor. There is almost a total paralysis of bulk stock movement from the mills, except in cases where early contracts are being fulfilled. There is little purchasing of lumber to go forward to points of distribution in advance of current requirement. There is considerable lumber moving from wholesale stocks to retail yards and consumers, but it is all on immediate account and not at all in anticipation. This condition is not confined to any particular kind of lumber or to any locality. All are involved in the general stagnation. The cause of this state of things is well known. Manufacturers and business men cannot obtain money with which to do business.

At Chicago the market is in a waiting mood. Probably the past week has been the dullest of the season. Manufacturers have to a large extent abandoned shipments to the market.

As a rule the commission men know in advance where they can dispose such cargoes as are sent forward. There is absolutely no tempting of buyers with large consignments. The business being done is practically on a cash basis, a fact that would alone preclude large transactions in the present constipated condition of the loan market. On the one hand there is no disposition on the part of the yard dealers to buy freely if they had the ready means; and on the other they could not get the means if they were disposed to buy. The manufacturers will not sell without a good assurance that the stuff will be paid for within a short time after delivery, and thus sales are limited to a few cargoes to those who want the lumber for current trade, or because they can get it cheap and have the money with which to pay for it. Altogether conditions work together to stifle anything like a free movement of product.

Short piece stuff is selling at $9 a thousand when talley suits the buyer; when it does not, lower prices are made, the reported minimum being $8.50. Cash buyers have the inside course to the heart of the seller, and it is probable that lumber is passed over to such men at figures that are not published on the housetops.

Inch stock is being mostly piled at the mills. It is not selling relatively as low in price as piece stuff.

Long dimension, shingles and lath are slow sale.

The demand for poplar lumber is quiet, but as nearly all the larger mills are closed down shipments continue to be in excess of the amount manufactured. Here and there small lots of poplar are sold at low prices by mill men who are compelled to realize on their stock at almost any sacrifice, but outside of these transactions the market continues firm at the association list. As a matter of fact prices have but little to do with the light demand, and trade could not be stimulated by lower values. A large proportion of the factories that consume poplar are either closed down or running only part capacity and under present financial conditions cannot be induced to buy any more lumber than they actually require.

But the poplar manufacturers, as a rule, are in good shape financially to stand a season of dullness, and in any event are sure to come out at the end of the season with light stocks. At the same time the prospect of a good supply of logs for next season's cut is not flattering. There are very few operators now in the woods and every day's delay in beginning operations reduces the prospective cut. Money is scarce and hard to get, and as it takes money and lots of it to get logs into the streams mill men are not counting on a full supply for next season. There are considerable quantities of logs of last winter's cut that have not yet come out and these will probably all come down on the early spring tides, but will fall way short of making up the shortage in this winter's cut, unless conditions shall speedily improve.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman as follows:

The outlook in the log market at Stillwater is not very encouraging at present. There have been no sales noted for the past week, and it is generally understood that the mills down river will need no more logs for this season's sawing. They are pretty well supplied now, and as all the mills intend to shut down the twentieth of next month it does not seem likely that many more sales will be made. Meantime the lake is packed almost solid with logs and they are increasing every day, and from present appearances it would seem that they would remain there until another year. Up to the present time the price of logs has remained pretty firm, but it is very doubtful if they hold that way very long. The loggers are in need of money about as much as all other classes of lumbermen, and it is probable that if they realize anything out of their holdings this year some liberal inducements will have to be offered. Thirteen rafts cleared from Stillwater for down river points last week. This was the heaviest week of shipments for the month.

FOREIGN.

In Scotland, according to Timber Trades Journal:

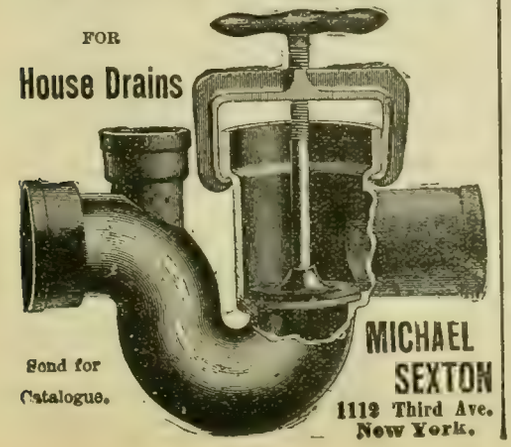
Imports are normal in bulk. American supplies take an important position in the list; Greenock has a few cargoes of Quebec wood, and a number are being discharged at east coast ports; Leith has had three full cargoes in addition to steamer consignments; Dundee has had two cargoes. The Baltic supplies embrace an assortment of the various Russian and Swedish shipments. Existing stocks do not increase nearly so rapidly as they usually do in August. The present condition of trade and the prospects do not call for more rapid accumulation.

NAILS.—Some little increase of demand has come from a few localities, but in the usual form of late prevailing and shows a continued determination on the part of buyers to keep within the limits of early and fixed necessities. Supplies hold out well and low rates are still current. We quote Cut at $1.05@1.25 per keg for car lots and $1.35@1.45 per keg for parcels from store for iron, and add 3c. per keg for steel; Wire, $1.50@1.55 at mills, and $1.80@1.85 from store.



PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Operators in some cases have been talking about a little improvement in trade, but when pinned down to particulars generally made the admission that the gains were simply a few more jobbing orders from custom compelled to have a working assortment. The market, in fact, for pretty much all descriptions of paints and colors, dry or in oil, exhibits a decided lack of vitality, and there is no reason to hope for improvement in this particular market until general business gets upon a sounder footing. Of course ruling conditions either suggest or enforce economy of production, and the addition to first-hand accumulations is small, but for whatever they have to offer sellers are willing to accept at least former rates, and may in some instances make allowances that seem likely to hasten the movements of buyers who are known to be prepared to give prompt settlements. Even on leads cost is modified though it may not be shown in the quotations given out. Corroders' rates stand as follows: Lead in oil in kegs and dry lead in kegs in lots of less than 500 lbs., 7¼c. net; in lots of 500 lbs. to 5 tons at one purchase, 6¾c.; 5 tons to 12 tons, one purchase, 6⅝c.; 12 tons and over, one purchase, 6½c.; kegs. Lead in oil in 12½ lb. tin pails, add 1c.; in 25 and 50 lb. tin pails, add ½c.; and in 1 to 5 lb. tin cans, assorted (100 lbs. in case) add 2½c. per lb. to keg price. Terms on lots on 500 lbs. and over, note or acceptance at sixty days, or 2½ per cent. discount will be allowed for cash paid within fifteen days of invoice date. To make either of the above required quantities any assortment of packages of white lead, red lead and litharge may be counted. The above quotations are free on board cars or boat at corroding point. Linseed Oil does not vary much in general features, a regulation routine trade, with fair offering of stock against natural wants and rates ruling about steady for all products. We quote on general range at 48@49c. for Western, 50@51c. for City from domestic seed, and 62@63c. for do. from Calcutta seed. Spirits Turpentine remain without noteworthy change in cost, but of late inclined to greater firmness, in sympathy with strong advices from the South. We quote at 25½@26½c. per gallon, according to quality, quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—Business has been of moderate proportions all around and the market uninteresting. Sellers, however, assert their ability to obtain former rates, and generally call the position steady. We quote Tar at $1.90@1.95 in pine or Wilmington bbls., $2.00@2.05 in pork bbls., and $3.70@3.75 in oil bbls., Pitch $1.50@1.70.

BUILDING MATERIAL PRICES.

LUMBER.
Appended quotations are based almost wholly upon prices obtained for goods from first hands. Yard rates necessarily range much higher owing to the expenses attending sorting out and grading cargo and even car lots, besides which must be added the cost of handling and carrying until consumers are ready to invest. Terms of sale also prove important factors and, altogether, it is impossible to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable in character.

VOL. LII. SEPTEMBER 2, 1893. No. 1,329

Everybody interested in architecture and in building should read the Architectural Record. 25 cents a copy. Record and Guide office, Nos. 14-16 Vesey street.

TAKING the Stock Market as an indicator of general financial conditions, it would seem that there has been very great improvement, but part of this comes probably from some over-zeal in discounting the change in the situation, which over-zeal has been checked by the decline and dullness of the past two days. Still there is some improvement, and it is not likely that all that was gained will be lost, because there are evidences that both confidence and the buying power are daily becoming greater. There is quite a demand for the better class of investment issues which suffered so considerably owing to the selling by the savings banks and have now returned almost to normal figures, and the speculative issues are gradually creeping higher and keeping the advances they make in most cases. Stocks that have what may be called hand-to-mouth dividends must be the object of suspicion until it is seen how far their dividend value is affected by the falling off in earnings owing to light traffic and by the attempt to readjust wages among the several classes of railway workers. So far, the men seem to be taking the sensible view of the situation by accepting their share of a common hardship with the best grace possible; but there may yet be cases that are more than ordinarily difficult to deal with. But the result cannot be uncertain, the labor market is now too largely stocked to make a successful strike possible. Railroad managers have the appearance of being determined to effect economies wherever possible, in dropping simply competitive trains and trains not competitive that have done only a light business, and in reducing both the operating forces and their rates of pay. These economies will go far to offset the loss of business and in some instances answer the bear case against present values. Money is much easier on call, in fact pressing for employment, and there is even danger of redundancy in the near future should hoarded old currency come out to swell the volume of new that has been created by the national banks to meet the still existing emergency of providing for daily needs in small change. Even some encouragement comes from the Senate, where it is contended that the silver men would not need to make such a tremendous shout about their ability to defeat the repeal of the Sherman law if they really had the strength to defeat it. If ultimate repeal is assured and proved by reliable test, the business world will be content to take the act as repealed, and watch with patience or treat with indifference the discussion of the question the decision of which will be practically foregone.

REPORTS from the commercial centres of Europe continue to complain of dullness. In Great Britain, the great strike in the coal trade, now apparently drawing to a close, has affected many branches of industry, and the trades-unions report an increase in the number of the unemployed. Of thirty-two trades making returns, nine speak of trade as "good," nine as "moderate" and fourteen "bad." There are no particularly promising indications for the future, and in one industry, that of agriculture, the outlook continues to darken. All crops are reported to be below average this year, and Sir William Gilbey, writing on behalf of the Royal Agricultural Benevolent Institution, says: "At the present moment 300 persons, who have cultivated holdings varying from 100 to 2,000 acres, and have been ruined through the various causes of agricultural failure are seeking election to the benefits" (of the institution). The falling off that has occurred in the amount of English capital seeking investment is shown in the report of new issues for the current year. Up to date subscriptions aggregating only £30,551,421 have been made against £65,800,000 in the same period of 1892 and £117,272,462 in 1890. These figures bear out what THE RECORD AND GUIDE has frequently contended: that the withdrawal of foreign capital from American investments, which was the forerunner of the recent stringencey, was not wholly due to lack of confidence in our monetary system, but in large measure to the pressure of necessity felt at home. On the continent the reappearance of cholera is creating some alarm, and it is feared will interfere with business, already none too active.

REAL ESTATE has been circumstanced particularly fortunately in this crisis. Had the monetary stringency set in a few months earlier than it did, or were it to continue a few months longer than there is any good reason for expecting it will now, pinching and liquidation would have been the result or would be the result. As it is, it may safely be said that danger of the worst is past. Confidence is undoubtedly returning in all directions, and slow improvement of financial and commercial conditions is inevitable. Due to great good luck, real estate will pass out of the crisis of 1893 without having felt the full weight of the depression. It will, however, be some time yet before prosperity can be restored; the work of reconstruction will require time, and in the interim it is hardly possible for real estate to be very active. Capital as it returns from hoarding-places and elsewhere where it has been locked up into the ordinary channels of trade will flow first of all to those quarters whence it was drawn. New investments and enterprises will therefore be the last matters it will touch. For some months yet money will be dear—witness the recent action of the Insurance Companies. Real estate owners consequently operating upon mortgages will have to be content with smaller returns, and only under the most profitable circumstances will either new building or new investments be possible. Every day henceforth, however, will bring in a measure of improvement, and dull times will be of only comparatively short duration.

TOWARD the end of the debate there were very few persons who did not expect the defeat of the Silver men as soon as the House came to a vote, but even the most sanguine did not look for the utter rout all along the line with which the battle was terminated on Monday. The defeat was so complete that one dare almost say the silver question no longer exists in this country, but for the fact that so many illogical minds are crazed with crude theories about money, and cannot be restrained by reason, reproof, doctrine, or any influence short of physical coercion from pursuing their hallucinations. There is now no course open to the Senate but to finish with all decent dispatch possible the good work commenced by the lower house, and then leave the country to the financial peace and security it needs for the task of rehabilitating its disrupted commerce. Since 1878 we have been experimenting with silver with results so disastrous that plain common-sense people have reached certain practical conclusions which are sufficient at least for the present. They are content that the theoretical advantages of bimetallism shall stay for the nonce on paper—a stock of dubious possibilities which, of course, will remain to be drawn upon should occasion require. A sick man should certainly be allowed to change doctors, particularly when, as in the present case, the course of treatment received during fifteen years has brought him dangerously near to dissolution. The practitioner who will allow nothing short of a gravestone to prove mistake in his remedies deserves scant consideration from the sick. There are individuals who assert that the coinage of more silver or the adoption of an extremer silver policy would have been the remedy for the crisis we have just passed through, but breakneck opinions of that sort are not to be dealt with by argument. The people of this country can rightfully demand a cessation of agitation about silver until it be clearly seen that events have reopened the matter. For some time to come talk on the subject can have only a disturbing effect upon financial affairs, and tend to delay the full restoration of confidence toward which we are now progressing rapidly.

IT is to be hoped that the people of Chicago will learn from the recent riots that they cannot intrust the management of their political affairs to such demagogues as Mayor Harrison and Governor Altgeld with impunity. The recent disturbances in that city were unquestionably the direct consequences of the inflammatory speeches and acts of these two officials, and it is rather these two men that deserve punishment than the weakminded and vicious who participated in the disturbances. In all societies there are a number of people emotionally and morally weak, whose pernicious activity is restrained only by the knowledge that Society is fixed in its determination to repress their activity in all but an industrial direction. These people are naturally of poor perception, otherwise they would recognize the hopelessness of anarchy. Consequently, when the Governor of a State or the Mayor of a great city makes public profession of sympathy with their political creed, they are incapable of putting a proper value upon what they hear and are tempted to commit excesses, in the belief that somehow or another a favorable chance for action has arrived. The recent speech of Mayor Harrison was nothing short of an instigation to the "mob-element" in Chicago. The city that elected such a Mayor deserves what it has got.

A Big Sale of Tarrytown Heights Property Reported.

The rumor is current that Mr. John D. Rockefeller, whose brother William owns a $2,000,000 estate at Tarrytown, has purchased, at Tarrytown Heights, the "Wentworth Place," for $60,000, and the adjoining property, known as "Kaaksout," the highest point in the county, for about $45,000, and that he has secured options on some of the adjoining property, with the intention of making for himself his permanent home. Whether he will rival his brother's palatial mansion at present or not is, it is said, undecided. Wm. H. Hoyt & Co., however, declare, as Mr. John D. Rockefeller's brokers, that he has signed no contracts and given no checks for the purchase of any real estate on the Hudson.

A Correction.

To the Editor of THE RECORD AND GUIDE:

SIR—The cold types startles me this morning with my allusion to Mr. Benton as "Secretary of the Treasury" (Bimetallism in the United States, RECORD AND GUIDE, August 26, page 247).

Mr. Benton was not Secretary of the Treasury, but a bigger man—on his own authority. Taking him at his word, Mr. Benton was the personification of the Finance of two Administrations, Presidents Jackson and Van Buren. He was the author of the Benton Bill, altering our coinage ratio, in 1834.

My second inadvertence was the neglect to miss from the types the following note to accompany my four columns of figures, thus (,000 omitted).

I beg you not to deem these corrections too unimportant for encugh of your valuable space to submit them for record, and I am,

Respectfully yours, WM. P. ST. JOHN.

NEW YORK, August 26, 1893.

Personal.

C. Abbott French will rusticate at Ellenville, in the Catskills, for the ensuing two weeks.

F. R. Houghton is spending several weeks in Chicago on a visit to the World's Fair.

Broker Chas. A. Seymour, who negotiated the sale of the St. Luke's Hospital property, in June, is on his way home from Europe, in the Umbria, due to arrive to-day.

Mr. A. E. Hoyt has just returned from a summer tour in Europe. The firm, of which he is the head, will resume business shortly in new quarters, at 1463 Broadway, in the St. Cloud Hotel.

Special Notices.

Among the leading brokers seen by THE RECORD AND GUIDE, the firm of Hammond & Gruet, who make a specialty of 9th Ward property, say that the prices of realty in their locality are steadily on the increase. Despite the stringency in the money market they have made a number of sales during the past thirty days and in all cases have procured good prices, which all goes to show that both the holders and buyers are looking forward to still better prices. As to rentals there will be no change this fall to speak of, and the demand for houses and flats is equal at this time of year to that of former years. And in fact the demand for small houses is greater than the supply. They further contend that the old "9th Ward" is one of the biggest fields for investment at the present time.

THREE BEAUTIFUL MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

The Tiffany Glass and Decorating Company had on exhibition last week, at their studios, at 4th avenue and 25th street, three examples of the art work for which this company have attained world-wide celebrity. They consist of three beautiful memorial windows, designed for three different churches, in as many different cities. The first, which is 20 feet high by 5 feet 6 inches wide, is intended for the First Presbyterian Church, of Chicago, as a memorial to the Rev. Dr. Z. M. Humphrey. In this window there are nearly ten thousand pieces of glass. The work shows a skillful and artistic selection of the glass, and the colors blend in perfect harmony. In its brilliant and jeweled effect and the form of the design, it is said to resemble, more than any window which has yet been produced by American workers in colored glass, the famous windows of the Chartres Cathedral of the thirteenth century.

The second window, the Thompson memorial, to be placed in St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, Troy, New York, is in two panels, together 22 feet high and 6 feet 6 inches wide. The subject is taken from Deger's "Annunciation." This window is an excellent example of the Tiffany school, differing from the windows of the English and Munich painters in that the use of paint or pigments on the surface is wholly dispensed with, except in the flesh portions of the windows. The architectural and background portions of the window are made entirely of opalescent glass, the varying tones of color in the glass itself producing the lights and shades of the picture; the effect of light and shade in the drapery of the figures being produced by the form and the varying thickness of the glass. The upper portion of the window is architectural in design, of a Gothic character.

The third example is the Morris memorial, intended for the Church of the Mediator, in Philadelphia. It consists of three windows, or panels, together 6 feet high and 5 feet wide. The general design is ornamental in character, the central window carrying a richly jeweled cross and the side windows panels of cherubs' heads. In the central window the cross is entwined with passion flowers, the side windows having water lilies as the motive. The coloring of the three windows is in rich blues, greens and ambers. In the upper portion of each of the windows is a circle of brilliant cut jewels. The opportunity to inspect these beautiful works of art was taken advantage of by many representative architects and clergymen.

A. E. HOYT & CO.'S NEW OFFICE.

The old real estate brokerage firm of A. E. Hoyt & Co., whose offices were formerly in the "Wellington," at Madison avenue and 42d street, have secured quarters in the St. Cloud Hotel, which has just been rebuilt and renovated at an expense of about $200,000 by the owner, the Astor Estate. Messrs. Hoyt's offices will be No. 1466 Broadway. They will hold an informal opening reception on Friday, September 15th, from 4 to 7 o'clock, in their new offices.

Jas. Murtaugh has the contract for putting the dumb waiters in the Metropolitan Club on 5th avenue and 60th street.

REAL ESTATE LOANS

The fact that the Life Insurance Companies have plumped the rate of interest on all their over-due loans up to 6 per cent—the legal limit—as told in THE RECORD AND GUIDE of August 12th, has been severely criticised. But this criticism has not prevented the fact, nor is it preventing the Savings Banks from advancing the rates on many of their loans. The Savings Banks gave an intimation early in August that they would probably advance their rates to 5 or 5½ per cent about this time, and the indications are many that they have begun to do so. A loan of $100,000 at 4 per cent that had been running over ten years was called in last week, but the borrower found that he could renew the loan at 5 per cent.

One of the significant events of the real estate market of the last week was the placing of a mortgage of $1,250,000 on the Stewart Building at Broadway and Chambers street. Ex Judge Henry Hilton, who is the head of the dry-goods firm of Hilton, Hughes & Co., was the borrower. The nominal lender was the Title Guarantee and Trust Co., but the name of the person who was able to supply such a sum of money at such a time is kept in reserve. Rumor says that it was Mrs. Hetty Green. The fact that the mortgage is to run until Sept. 1, 1898, and is to draw 6 per cent interest shows how great were the exactions to which even the most opulent have been driven to submit to obtain money during the prevailing stringency. Ordinarily 4 per cent would have been deemed a sufficient rate of interest for such a loan. The money is said to be for the use of the firm.

Gossip of the Week.

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

Frederick Southack has sold the six-story brick business building and lot, on the northeast corner of Broadway and Worth street, for James A. Hayden to Geo. Bliss, the banker, of Morton, Bliss & Co. The property fronts 23 feet on Broadway and 100 feet on Worth street, and is 21 feet wide in the rear. This property was last sold on March 31, 1892, but the consideration did not then appear. The present sale is said, however, to have been at a substantial advance upon the price of last year.

Tim & Co. have sold for Mrs. M. Yost the four-story, high stoop, brownstone house, No. 115 West 39th street, 20x50x100, to Oscar Ehlers, on private terms, and for J. B. Bissell the five-story apartment house No. 160 West 20th street, 18.9x about 80x100, to Mrs. Louise Hutchen-Reuter.

Max Simon has sold for L. Wettlaufer to J. Ettinger the five-story double flat house, 25x74x85, No. 140 West 99th street, for $22,000.

MUNICIPAL NEWS.

Contracts for street improvements in the 23d and 24th Wards have been recently awarded by Commissioner Louis F. Haffen as follows: For sewering 68th street, from Webster avenue to Harlem railroad, to P. V. The architectural competition for the proposed new Municipal Building was closed yesterday at noon, when no less than one hundred and twenty-nine sets of plans had been received by Comptroller Myers. Some few of them are from Europe, but for the most part they are the work of American architects residing in all parts of the country. The plans will not be opened until Mayor Gilroy returns from Chicago. In the meantime Comptroller Myers will engage a room for the proper display of the plans.

On 95th street, near Central Park, Mr. H. E. Hartwell is about finishing up three very artistic and cosy little houses. They are unique in design and have many charming features not found in the conventional town houses. The fronts of two are of Lake Superior red and of the other of Indiana white sandstone, the stoops massive and leading by a few terraced steps to a vestibule from which again white marble steps lead up to the main hall. The workmanship on these houses is superior and the floor plans all that could be desired. They will be ready for the fall market.

Out Among the Builders.

OUT OF TOWN.

SOUTH LAKEWOOD, N. J.—French, Dixon & De Saldern, of New York, have the plans for a two-story Colonial frame dwelling, with curb roof and stone cellar, to be built at Casino Park, for Henry Alexander. UNION HILL, N. J.—James J. F. Gavigan, of New York, is the architect for a three-story and cellar frame building, 22x40, to be erected on Hudson street, for Mrs. Henrietta Riotte. It is to have sanitary plumbing, including bath-room, and will cost $3,000.
